OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.
A. Salisbury, Dentist, Rockwood Building, Telephone No. 35.
Dr. Higgins, Office in Gering's Drug Store, Residence Cor. Sixth and Granite, Telephone No. 42.
Drs. Cave & Smith, the Painless Dentists, Union Block, over Citizens' Bank, Plattsmouth.

CITY CORDIALS.

—The heat for the past three days has been prickly.
—A prominent citizen declares that the future postoffice will be on the west half of block 11, lot 24.
—If you wish premium lists of the State Fair, apply to R. B. Windham, member of the State Board of Agriculture.
—The reporter can now pass through the waiting room of the B. & M. depot and safely dot down the names of all the patient people as Omaha passengers with a little variation.
—Mr. Nathan, who has been in the dry goods business here for several years, has declared his intention of selling out and moving to another city in which to transact business. They are now making cheap sales and departing with their goods at any price.
—Work has been commenced to remove the telephone posts out to a sufficient distance to allow the building of a twenty foot side walk, the building of which is soon to be commenced. About the time the paving, sewer and sidewalk building is about half done, the city will remind one of Pompeii.
—The Omaha merchants would reap a rich harvest if they would law a motor line between here and Omaha and get it in shape for carrying passengers. The Plattsmouth business men would then be obliged to move their place of business to that city and they would probably sell more goods to Plattsmouth customers.
—Dr. Livingston, sr., who examined John McClelland, of Ashland, finding him to be hopelessly insane, imparts the information that he entertains faint hopes of his surviving any great length of time and he may not live longer than 3 weeks. The man when asked his age yesterday, claimed to be about five hundred years old.
—The ball game which was played yesterday between the strikers and bachelors terminated in favor of the strikers by a score of 16 to 14. The only reason we can state for the defeat of the bachelors was the non-appearance of any of their lady admirers. If the latter club had had that encouragement, we could not entertain a doubt as to victory for them.
—About twelve young people, provided with fishing tackle, started about 10 o'clock for the fishing quarter on the Platte river, familiarly known as "The Dump." The party is going under the style of a leap year party and the young ladies have promised to care for their friends, assist them when fishing by extracting hooks from the mouths of the fish, taking care of the fish, &c. Particulars later.
—Mack Jones who was examined by the commissioners here a few days ago and sent to the Lincoln insane asylum, died in Lincoln yesterday. W. D. Jones received the news of his death and started immediately for that place, and brought the corpse back this morning. The funeral will take place this afternoon from the residence of Douglas Jones at 4 o'clock. The deceased had been sick for some time, the insanity being caused by softening of the brain. He is a cousin of Mr. W. D. Jones.
—A prominent gentleman of this city and an extensive grain dealer, whenever the reporter asks for any news, he invariably insists that "it's a warm day," and if he cannot be present on the streets himself to impart the information, he leaves the word with a friend to deliver. If we considered it necessary to publish such news, to make people believe it, it would afford us great pleasure, but now we promise him to inform the people through the paper of the first cold day that comes if he will help us out. It's a cold day when it isn't warm.
—Last night the drum in the ears of the music loving people was struck rather forcibly by the sounds of melody which wafted on the cool and soothing midnight air, as their possessors were building air castles in the land of nod. The first thoughts that presented themselves upon awakening were: "What are those sounds I hear? What meaneth this? Wonder if they mean that for me? Had I better go to the window and give them a clap of the hand? What do they expect me to do if they are thinking of me? I have nothing in the house to give them." By that time the mechanics of the staff have completed their invigorating efforts. The ladies and gentlemen we have reference to were on the streets last night until a late hour, serenading their friends and favoring all within a hundred yards of their different locations, with music which they were capable of rendering. In behalf of their friends we thank them for their efforts and request them to call on us on their next annual tour.

—We acknowledge the receipt of a ticket to the Omaha Fair and Exposition to be held at Omaha Sept. 3rd to 8th inclusive.
—Dr. Schildknecht removed a needle from the heel of Max Chapman, son of Judge Chapman, this morning. The needle was driven into his heel full length which caused him intense agony.
—Miss Etta Schildknecht, of Greenwood, daughter of Dr. Schildknecht, returned home yesterday with her mother who went to Greenwood to accompany her. She is suffering from very poor health at present and is here under treatment of her father.
—Almost every day of late some foreign lady has arrived at our depot and been unable, without considerable trouble, to ascertain the whereabouts of their friends. This morning a Danish lady by the name of Maryanna Stienholtz and four little children arrived. From what was understood she inquired for her husband. Some men who heard her speak the name say that there is a man working in the shops by that name. She looked very much fatigued and imparted the information in a way that she had been on the road six weeks.
—A prominent citizen of this place and an accurate mathematician met with what some people would term a misfortune owing to a miscalculation. The gentleman we have reference to got his rig in readiness and drove to the camping ground which was held at Eight Mile Grove last Sunday. On their return the rig exhibited signs of a thirsty disposition and the gentleman took advantage of the first opportunity to water his horse. He drove up to a farm house by which there was a well and pulled up a bucket of water. The lady of the house informed him that they were not in the habit of using that water for watering their horses, and requested him, if he wished to water his horse on their premises to take the bucket of water he had drawn, go to a pump about a hundred yards distant where they generally watered their horses, and prime the pump with the water he had drawn. It is needless to say the gentleman was afforded a little displeasure on account of this, but nevertheless he lugged his burden of bucket and water to said pump and gracefully, but not willingly turned the water into it and pumped the same amount again for his horse. If he had gone through the motions and left the water on the outside it might have suited him much better. He has not yet recovered from the burden of dissatisfaction of having complied with the whims of an obstinate woman.

Composed by C. W. Green on the Death of Kindred Neighbors.
Written for THE HERALD.
How sad and bereaved, our earthly condition,
When loved ones are called to sever their mission.
We miss them by day, we miss them by night,
And vainly would ask their return with delight.
But to us in the flesh they never can come,
For God in his wisdom has prepared us a well-come,
Our kindred to greet in a mansion above,
Where angels in company all raptures their love.
While sad to reflect in the flesh here below,
Let us remember to the loved ones we may go
And greet them in heaven in garments of white,
Happy with Lulu, Manerva, in realms of light.
How restless and rambling o'er thoughts every day,
Reminding me ever of duty we transit to clay—
'Tis oft by misfortune we are called to reflect
To stop our career of wilful neglect.
But few months ago, all pictures of health,
More valuable to man than coffers of wealth,
Located as neighbors, on the street of little Charles,
All at their homes, affectionate stars.
Families once happy, by reason of good health,
Till old Father Time, as seeking by stealth
Brought to the home of Lulu May Green
The Angel of Death, that changed the home scene.
Later a few days, in answer to prayer
One waiting and watching, her summons with care
In anthems of praise, though pain was severe
She left the impress, of a Christian career.
Next in the home, a family of three,
Husband and wife, the mother and daughter;
The wife Christian in spirit, an example was she
To wait on the sick, good deeds did she minister.
God has taken her away, from labor to rest
With Jesus in Heaven, she is now with the blest.
In the hearts of her friends, who linger behind
Will credit to her life, her acts that were kind.
Let us take comfort, in reading the bible,
The will of the Lord, is to be his disciple.
Let the of our life, into darkness so untrue,
When the summons may come, be ready in line,
Up into glory we'll pass in review,
Dressed in the garment, by Jesus made new,
Freave to reign, with the people of God,
Shall be our happy lot, when released from the sod.
Take courage my brother, 'tis vain to be sad,
We shortly shall go, to the home that makes glad
That we shall be numbered, with thousands on high
Redemption to sing, resounding through sky.
Plattsmouth July 29, '88.
A man can furnish his house more completely from the furniture store of H. Boeck than at any place in town.
"New Letter of Junius."
During the war of 1870 there was published anonymously a brochure called "A New Letter of Junius," the author of which was M. Alexandre Dumas, Jr., which contained the remarkable prophecy concerning the then crown prince of Germany: "And when Prince Fritz shall wish to resist the current, and shall say, 'But I, Lord, have always loved peace,' the Lord shall answer him, saying, 'I have declared equally guilty those who do evil and those who permit it to be done in their sight. I have made thee handsome and good, not solely that thou mightest make reparation for the paternal crimes, but that thou mightest prevent them. Thy punishment shall be to die without having done good.'"—Figaro.
A Product for Building Paper.
Resin, as used in building paper, is being largely replaced by a petroleum product called "still wax," or wax tailings. An important advantage in the use of this petroleum product, in connection with paper and flammable substances, consists in its non-liability to oxidize and thus produce spontaneous combustion. Moreover, it is said to toughen like age, instead of growing more brittle, like resin and coal tar pitch. It is not more combustible than resin; it burns slowly with a dull flame, producing immense quantities of lampblack of fine quality. It melts rapidly at 300 degs. Fahr., and in that state combines perfectly with resin, asphaltum and warm oil. Its use is therefore expected to increase largely.—Frank Leslie's.
Everything Else Settled.
"So you have my daughter's permission to ask me for her hand, have you, young man?"
"I—I am happy to say, sir, that I have," replied the poor but worthy youth.
"And I suppose," said the banker, after a pause, "you have also asked her to name the day. About what time, sir, do you expect to break into the family?"—Chicago Tribune.
Fair Maidens of Circassia.
I met but few women of the pure Circassian race in the Balkan peninsula, as these people have been removed over into Asia Minor and colonized on land there. The days are gone by when Circassian girls are openly sold into slavery to the Turks, although, like many another thing in Turkey that the law professes not to recognize, the practice is by no means stopped.
A few years ago the Circassians sold their daughters and sisters to the highest bidder, with the same cold blooded bargaining that might characterize the sale of a horse. The more lovely the girl the higher the price. Far from objecting to this commercial transaction, the Circassian girls' lamentations were loud and long when they learned that their chances of being bought and carted off to Stamboul were lessened by the edict of the porte making their purchase illegal. This transfer from their uneventful village life to some gilded harem at the capital was the goal of their ambition. But after all it is hardly necessary to use the past tense in treating of the Circassian girl. If she is beautiful she is as certain to drift to Stamboul nowadays as she ever was; her fathers and brothers are just as unscrupulous, she is just as willing, and the law is practically a dead letter.—Thomas Stevens in Woman.
New Style of Barometer.
A new idea, and an excellent one. There is some talk of making a new style of barometer out of ground hog fat. That would open a new industry in ground hogs and give employment to some other wise worthless human beings. Let us have the new barometer.—Detroit Free Press.
One evidence of vulgarity is the straining of every nerve to keep up appearances.
The Oxford English dictionary shows that there are 15,000 words in current use beginning with the letters A and B.
FOR THE LAST TIME.
I shut the door and I am now alone—
Alone with that still form upon the bed,
I draw the curtains back, but make no moan
As I look down on my beloved dead.
Mine now, O, surely I may call thee so!
Now that the fret of life for thee is o'er,
Quiet and cold thou liest there so low,
And thou wilt speak to me no more, no more.
For the last time I come to look on thee,
To stamp upon my aching heart thy charms,
And as a memory to take with me,
Hold thy dead form once more within my arms
One last long kiss upon thy lips I lay;
May angels speed thee to a brighter clime,
Farewell forever. Now I turn away—
O sweet, good love! this is the last time
I shall see thee more.
