The Plumed Knight's Welcome on His Arrival Home.

Boston, August 14.—The Blaine party was not astir until late this morning, and several callers on Blaine were denied ad mittance. At 11:30 a delegation from all y live throughout the winter, back inland, the Home Market club was admitted to a conference, and at 12 the party left for the railroad station. There were no demonstrations en route. When the carriage reached the station there was a large crowd present, and it was with difficuly Blaine was cheered by the crowd, and as the train was about to move away he cognition. The train then moved on its way to Augusta.

The train arrived at Angusta at 8:45 p. m. The front of the depot was a solid block of humanity, shouting wildly. As Mr. Blaine stepped on his own grounds the band played "Home Sweet Home" and he was loudly cheered as he walked to the platform, accompanied by the reception committee. Hon. W. P. Whitehouse then welcomed Blaine in a hearty address, and then Blaine advanced and "I thought, as my public history began and centered here, that those who had known me for thirty-five years might extend a cordial welcome, but I had no conception that men from all quarters of the commonwealth would have been here. You can have no conception how it impresses one who has been for a year beyond the seas to meet a welcome like this. But you must take the will for the deed, for my words cannot reach the borders of this vast assembly. I am deeply indebted to you who come from other towns and cities, and it is to you of Augusta, and of almost all Maine, who have done me this great henor I pour out my thanks, I have seen much in my last year, much of countries beyond the sea, but have seen nothing in any kingdom of Europe which did not give me deeper and more profound appreciation of my own country. I have seen nothing in European industrial systems that did not confirm me in the be lief that the system of the United States absolutely essential to life, however necesis far wiser and more beneficent to every sary it may be to its regular and systematic working man. If I have in the past spoken a worthy word in support of that goes almost as perfectly for a time as though system, in the future I hope to gay many it were still there to dominate the rest of the more, and more weighty.

"I give you my profoundest thanks. There is to me no state like Maine, no valley like the Kennebee, no city like Augusta and no home like that home," for the first time and who have embraced (pointing to his house.)

A Terrible Sight For Parents.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 14.-Last evenning while several lads were playing just above Chandiere falls, Albert Legault, about fourteen years old, was accidently if the animal is held up by case leg at strugpushed into the river. The alarm was given but too late for rescue. By the time the boy reached the head of the be held firmly with a pair of forceps the frog cataract hundreds of people stood alongside the brnk of the river, among them his father and mother, pawerless to answer their son's piteous cries for help, which he was rapidly driving. Just as has been known to crawl straight for its hole he reached the falls he was observed to in the wall after suffering like mutilation. throw his arms in the air and plunge into the seething waters 100 feet below.

The Library's Naughty Books.

Every library has its skeleton-in other words, a collection of improper or immoral books. In the Boston Public library this assortment is hidden away in a series of modest little closets, designated as the "Inferno." On these shelves arranged in suggestive rows are all such volumes as ought to bring a blush to the cheek of innocence. The restrictions upon their circulation are very rigid indeed, for it would seem that there are lots of people who are always trying to get hold of something nasty in the literary way. Almost invariably they give it as an excuse for demanding such books that they are going through a course of English or French literature and are compelled reluctantly to peruse the objectionable works as a portion of the task before them. So the attendants are obliged to exercise considerable discretion. If a reader comes up and says he has heard that such and such a book is naughty and that he would like to see it, the volume will probably be given him; but if he tries the "course of literature" dodge, he is apt to be refused. The applicant for an objectional work is usually asked to fill out a slip, giving his age and occupation, together with his name, reference for character and reason why he wants the book. This slip must receive the indorsement of the librarian before the request is complied with. "At the bindery" is the ordinary formula employed in such cases, which, being translated, means that you cannot have what you want. A book that is marked in the catalogue with a single star is not to be circulated freely, because too costly. A double star indicates that the volume is too rare to be allowed to go out of the library on any account. Three stars usually signify that the work is immoral, and only to be seen on application to and by permission of the authorities.—Boston Herald.

AN ESKIMO KITCHIN.

The Strange Lamp Used by the Cook Ment and boup.

Let us suppose that in the social a white man is traveling with a party of reindeer numbers from the sencoast, where they usu where they expect to see a number of reindeer migrating northward in warm spring weather. Such trips I have made a score of times, and while, of course, they will differ ven in essentials, a typical one can easily be hosen from the lot. The first day is not a good one, for the many little hooks and crooks of camping are not working as harmoniously as they will a that a passage was cleared by the police. little later on. The car'y morning of the second or third day flads the little party asleep in a snugly constructed snow houseor igloo as the Eskimos call it-and as there stepped to the platform in respons to calls is a long day's trip ahead, to make a desired and thanked the people for their kind re- hunting spot, it is necessary to rise early. Of course, it has been daylight since about 2 o'clock in the morning, although the sun will not reach the vernal equinox for six weeks or two months, but the Eskimo does not use such early times for his morning work, but rises about 5 or 6 o'clock to begin the day. The first one to awaken at this hour arouses the good housewife, whose duty it is to start the kitchen fire. She simply puts on her coat and prepares to start the fire directly in front of her in the stone lamp which does the duty of a stove. This is an open lamp, very similar to a huge clam shell, the flame burning along the whole length of the free edge, or from ten to twenty inches usually. The wicking for this strange lamp is a compact variety of moss, which grows on the rocks, the the oil is that of the seal or walrus. The lamp is of stone, a sort of soap stone steatite, as is also the kettle which hange over it; the latter is a rectangular dish, whose length is about that of the flame of the lamp over which it hangs. Nothing in this thick stone kettle ever bails, but simmers away as long as the fire is kept under in until the meat in it is cooked in this way, der meats like reindeer, and longer with walrus and seal. The meat is cooked in chunks varying in size, but averaging about that of one's fist, and when ready to be served the breakfast is in two courses, so to speak. First comes the meat handed around to the party, who by this time are dressed in their reindeer suits. When the meat is eaten, the soup resulting from its boiling is passed around, and if it is very cold weather, this part is not considered perfect unless it has an inch or two of hot grease swimming on its surface. This, undoubtedly, assists them in resisting the intense cold of the climate, With the meat, too, a large amount of fat is devoured during the cold winter weather .-Liout. Schwatka in The Chautauquan.

Brain Not Essential to Life.

Physiologists speak of death as occurring through the cessation of the action of either the brain or the heart or the lungs. But the brain cannot be regarded as an organ course. The entire organ may be remayed from certain kinds of animals, and yet life body. The heart beats, the lungs respire, the stomach digests and the several glands continue to claborate the secretions proper to them, and not only all this, but actions are performed which are well calculated to excite astonishment in those who see them the idea that all intelligence resides in the brain.

Thus, for instance, if the basin be entirely removed from the need of a frog and the web between the toes be pinched, the limb is immediately withdrawn; if the shoulder be scratched with a needle the hind foot of the same side is raised to remove the instrument: gles; if placed on its back-a position to which frogs have a great antipathy-it immediately turns over on its belly; if one foot endeavors to draw it away; if unsuccessful, it places the other foot against the instrument and pushes firmly in the cffort to remove it; still not succeeding, it writhes the body from side to side and makes a movement forward. I have seen a rattlesnake but witnesses to the terrible death to strike after its head was cut off, and a viper

Nor are such experiments the only evidence that we have that life may persist though the brain be absent. It sometimes happens that individuals of the human species are born without brains. In one instance of the kind life was present for six months. Though very feeble this being had the faculty of sucking and the several functions of the body seemed to be well performed. Its eyes clearly perceived the light and during the night it cried if the candle was allowed to go out. After death the cranium was opened and there was found to be an entire absence of the cerebrum. In another case that of a male infant which lived eighteen hours, there was found after death no vestige of a brain, nevertheless respiration was established; the pupils contracted to light; bitter juice put into the mouth was immediately rejected and loud noises caused movements of the body. In another case in which the cranium was entirely empty life continued for four days, yet this being opened and shut its eyes, cried, sucked and even ate broth.-William A. Hammond.
