Harrison On Pauper Labor.

INDIANAPOLIS, August 16.—Six thousand and visitors from Rush, Decatur and Delaware counties called upon Gen. Harrison this morning. In reply to the address of the spokesman, General Harrison made a short speech, calling attention to the necessity for legislation in the interests of the protection of an honest ballot in Indiana. Later in the day two more delegations arrived from Delaware and Decatur counties. In these delegations were a large number of veterans and colored men. In reply to the address General Harrison gave his views briefly upon the subject of pauper labor and American wages. He said:
"The disastrous effects upon our workmen of competition and underpaid labor are not obviated by keeping the cheap worker over the sea if the product of his cheap labor is allowed, free competition with the products of underpaid labor abroad as well as against the coming to our shores of paupers, laborers under contract and Chinese. These two thoughts are twin thoughts, the same logic supports both, and the republican party holds them as a dual conclusion of one great argument."

A SONG OF DREAMS.

A dream of a merry child at play,
Blue-eyed and fair, frolicsome, gay,
Bliss as the birds in the springtime are,
Singing about like ploeps afar,
Chaucer's of trochee, untouched by fear,
Singing her way through the golden year.
A dream of a woman, old and gray,
Aked and bent, wending her way
Lonesomely toward the last milestone,
Where the grim, dark shadow of death is born,
Stern staked and weepy, and worn with care,
The candle of life at its final flare.
A dream of a grave in a churchyard lone,
Neglected, drear, with weeds overgrown,
With only the chirp of the cricket's song,
As it sings in the grass the whole night long,
To break the silence that broods so deep,
Where the worn-out soul and body sleep.
—Susie M. Best in Home Journal.

Rivers Swerving to the West.

It appears that the western and southern bank of the Rio Grande is the one which suffers most from the abrasion of the current. Why does the river show this tendency to work to the westward? Something like this appears in the case of the Mississippi. Evidently the river had its principal debouchment into the sea through bayou Manac and the lakes. In the course of time that route was abandoned for the one now known as the main river, which is very considerably to the westward of the old outlet. In the meantime the river has shown a disposition to transfer its channel still further to the westward through the Atchafalaya. Can it be made to appear from these facts that there is a tendency in great rivers flowing in general directions along meridians of the earth's longitude to swerve to the westward? Can it be held that because the rotation of the earth on its axis is to the eastward the weight of the water in such longitudinal rivers is thrown by the centrifugal force against the western bank so as to abrade them with increased energy and effect?—New Orleans Picayune

The Emperor and the Yankee.

It is told that while the late Emperor Frederick was in London for the queen's jubilee Sir Morell Mackenzie introduced a noted American doctor to him. After a careful examination of his throat the imperial patient, in his usual cheerful manner, inquired, "I suppose an imperial throat is very much like that of other mortals?"
"Well, sir," came the quick reply, "we will try and make it so at any rate." The then crown prince thoroughly appreciated the quick Yankee wit, and, striking his broad chest, said, "But this is all right, is it not?" The Yankee gravely looked the splendid proportions of the illustrious patient up and down, and deliberately drawled out, "As for the rest, sir, you would make a good American." Fritz's merriment was great, but the German doctors present were aghast at such levity.—New York Tribune.

How It Is Done.

Mrs. Degusha—Mr. Brown, don't you think Miss Smith is a very beautiful girl? And she is so intellectual.
Mr. Brown—Yes, but as I was going on to say, the inclemency of the weather prevented me from attending the last meeting, and I lost—
Later, Mrs. Degusha (to Miss Smith)—Mr. Brown is quite taken with you, my dear. He paid you a lovely compliment today. He said you were the most intellectual and beautiful girl he had ever met.—New York Tribune.

London Shopkeeper's Announcement.

A London shopkeeper coolly announces that he is cleaning some frocks for the Duchess of Teck and one of the princesses. Fancy what would happen to a New York or Boston dyer who told a secret like that, unless indeed he spoke of somebody belonging to the classes understood to like advertising.—Boston Transcript.

Doesn't Like to Be Bored.

She (at a garden party)—Isn't that young Professor Brainfog coming this way, Mr. De Sappy?
He—Ya-as, Miss Maude. Shall I present him?
She—Oh, dear, no. I think young mep with brains, Mr. De Sappy, are such a bore.

TORNADO POLICIES.

The present year bids fair to be a disastrous one from tornadoes and wind storms. This is fore-shadowed by the number of storms we have already had—the most destructive one so far this year having occurred at Mt. Vernon, Ill., where a large number of buildings were destroyed or damaged. The exemption from tornadoes last year renders their occurrence more probable in 1888.
