When to Call Him. A joyous inebriate finds his way home, and after infinite trouble, is safely stowed away in bed by his valet. "Any more orders, sir?" says the faithful servant, preparing to retire. "No—that is to say, let me sleep until I am thirsty, and be sure you call me then."—La Lanterne.

Satisfactory. Magistrate (to small witness)—Do you know the names of people who swear to what is not true? Small Witness—Yes, sir; dey skips for Canada. Magistrate—Swear the witness.—Texas Sittings.

By the Sad Sea Waves. Idlyr—Better take my advice and enjoy a sail in my boat. Dollyr—Believe I will. I yacht to. Idlyr (sadly)—They yawl do.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

London Exhibitions. "Excursions" is a new term for exhibitions in London, since they are all more or less excuses for the gardens and music.

Weight of Women's Dresses. A London paper recently made some extravagant statements as to the weight of women's dresses. The fact is that the ordinary costume worn by a woman of medium stature is remarkably light. Very few weigh over nine pounds, dresses of silk and jet averages about six pounds, a long velvet dress for evening, wear about five, a cloth winter dress five, a tailor made dress about six pounds and a wrap of solid jet, three pounds, while a dress of surah silk weighs somewhere in the neighborhood of three and one-half pounds only. Summer dresses weigh from half a pound to two pounds.—Chicago News.

Bravery of Big Men. In an article on courage in The Fortnightly Review Lord Wolsley contradicts the idea that little men are braver than big men. One of the very bravest he ever knew was 6 feet 4 inches. Among the nations he singles out Turkey with special praise for her fighting qualities: "Among all the great armies of the world, none is composed of a finer or braver fighting material than that of Turkey. The early life, the training, laws, manners, customs and, above all, the religion of the Turk combine to make him the most formidable of soldiers."—New York Sun.

Novel Form of Lifeboat. A certain line has furnished each of its steamers with two folding canvas lifeboats of the pattern invented by an English clergyman. The boat is twenty-five feet long, is double pointed, and is made of oiled canvas fastened to longitudinal elm wood ribs which are secured to posts at either end. An air space between the canvas coverings renders the boat unsinkable. There is a folding bottom hinged in the center. The seats fold up when not in use. The boat weighs 1800 pounds and will hold 100 persons.—Boston Transcript.

Beginning of Iron Making. The first iron made in New Jersey was at a place just south of Trenton, from the limonite or bog ore that abounds in that section, and the first forgemaster was Governor Lewis Morris, who came to Monmouth from Barbadoes before the year 1683. When the revolution came on the iron men had grown skillful enough to make cannon and shells for the Continentals; also big shallow pans in which to evaporate sea water and supply salt when the foreign article was cut off.—Chicago Herald.

The Story Not True. A French journal published for the purpose of giving curious information has been investigating the story that during the Reign of Terror, the French were made to drink a glass of human blood as the price of her life, and asserts that this honored legend is untrue. All the foundation there could be for it, the paper says, is that she probably was asked to drink a glass of wine to the health of the republic, and the hand of the man who gave it to her might have been dripping with blood.—New York Sun.

Magistrate (to small witness)—Do you know the names of people who swear to what is not true? Small Witness—Yes, sir; dey skips for Canada. Magistrate—Swear the witness.—Texas Sittings.

Admission of Territories. The government by congress of the territories is based upon necessity only to the end that they may become states in the union; therefore, whenever the conditions of population, material resources, public intelligence and morality are such as to insure stable local government therein the people of such territories should be permitted a right inherent in them, to form for themselves constitutions and state governments and be admitted into the union. Pending preparation for statehood all officers thereof should be selected from bona fide residents and citizens of the territory wherein they are to serve. South Dakota should be immediately admitted as a state and the union under the constitution framed and adopted by her people and we heartily endorse the action of the republican senate in twice passing bills for her admission. The refusal of the democratic house of representatives, or partial purposes, to favorably consider these bills is a willful violation of the sacred American principle of local self-government.

Public Land Legislation. We reaffirm the policy of appropriating the public lands of the United States to be homesteads for American citizens and settlers not alien to the United States. The persistent opposition of the democrats in congress, which has brought the public lands under the control of the administration of President Arthur should be continued. We deny that the democratic party has ever rested its case on the people, but declare that by the joint action of republicans and democrats about fifty million acres of unappropriated public lands for the construction of railroads, have been restored to the public domain in pursuance of conditions of the original grants. We charge the democratic administration with failure to execute laws securing to settlers title to their homesteads and with using appropriations made for that purpose to harass innocent settlers with spies and prosecutions under the false pretense of exposing frauds and vindicating the law.

Political Power of the Monarch in the Territories as exercised in the past is a menace to free institutions too dangerous to be long suffered. Therefore we pledge the republican party to appropriate legislation, asserting the sovereignty of the nation in all the territories where the same is questioned, and in furtherance of that end to place upon the statute book legislation stringent enough to divorce political from ecclesiastical power and thus stamp out the attendant wickedness of polygamy.

A Warning. The modes of death's approach are various, and statistics show conclusively that more persons die from disease of the throat and lungs than any other. It is probable that everyone, without exception, receives vast numbers of Tubercle Germs into the system and where these germs fall upon suitable soil they start into life and develop, at first slowly and is shown by a slight tickling sensation in the throat and if allowed to continue their ravages they extend to the lungs producing Consumption and to the head, causing Catarrh. Now all this is dangerous and if allowed to continue will in time cause death. At the onset you must act with promptness; allowing a cold to go without attention is dangerous and may lose you your life. As soon as you feel that something is wrong with your throat, lungs or nostrils, obtain a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. It will give you immediate relief.
