CITY CORDIALS.

—J. F. Johnson is on the sick list.

—Elder McCrea, of Liverpool, Eng., will preach at the Christian church, tomorrow, Sept. 2nd, at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

—A boat by the name of "White Wings," which skims over the great Manawa pond, near Council Bluffs, captured one day last week.

—Mr. J. A. Connor and wife are spending the day at Omaha. Mr. Connor is negotiating for an $18,000 residence in that city and signifies his intention of removing there if he can purchase the desired residence.

—We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of the Denver Republican through the kindness of Mr. Frank Carruth who is a delegate from this city attending the deep water convention, being held at Denver.

—A popular colored republican known as "Ned" in this city made the following assertion to some hard-skinned democrats who are in the habit of talking him with an eye to next November: "If dar was nobody in dis har world to vote de 'publcan ticket but me, you democats will see me vote dat way all de time."

—The "Twelve Temptations," an extensive exhibition which has been given at Omaha for the past week, has proved a temptation to many of Plattsmouth's citizens. All who have seen the great show pronounce it beyond any imagination and were more than pleased with the sights.

—The "Little World Company" is having its lithographs posted up conspicuously on the different bill boards. This company has an extensive reputation, having traveled over the entire country. Those who have seen the play speak very highly of the drama, and we feel confident that their visit to this city will prove to be a profitable one.

—The B. & M. will sell round trip tickets to Omaha, during the great fair, which is to be held there from the 3rd to the 8th of September, at a half-fare for the round trip from all stations in Nebraska, good to return until Sept. 10th.

—Only a few days since, we published a list of names of the old veterans who voted for Harrison in 1840, but as the names printed were secured by advertising, a few of as prominent ones have been received within the last few days, of which we are pleased to make special mention.

—The seven year old daughter of Mr. Chas. Spangler, who resides about two miles south of the city, met with what proved to be a very painful and serious accident yesterday afternoon.

—Our thanks are due Mr. Elias Sage, for the largest as well as the most delicious watermelon of the season.

—A Mr. Bothwell, of Topeka, Kansas, has accepted an invitation to act as general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for this city.

—Mr. J. A. Archibald, who represents the Wrought Iron Range Company in this state, is in the city today.

—The train (No. 5) which now arrives here at 7:30 a. m., from the east, will, in the future, arrive fifteen minutes sooner, at 7:15, leaving Pacific Junction at 7 o'clock.

—Several complaints have been heard from some of the firemen since the report of the Nebraska City celebration which was printed in yesterday's issue.

—A free minstrel show company held down a platform on the corner of Fourth and Main streets last night.

—The dramatic season will open with "The World" at the opera house on next Saturday night, September 8th.

—The stirring and ever-popular melodrama, "The World," was given last night, with Mr. J. Z. Little in the chief role.

—The B. & M. will sell round trip tickets to Omaha, during the great fair, which is to be held there from the 3rd to the 8th of September, at a half-fare for the round trip from all stations in Nebraska, good to return until Sept. 10th.

From the air of mountains and that of the seashore. Now let us see what those differences are. In the first place, the air of the mountains is less dense than that of the seashore. It contains a less amount of oxygen in any given quantity, and hence, in order that the blood may be duly oxygenized, the respiration must be more active. A person living in mountainous regions, breathing, as he does, more actively than one living on a lower plane, has more fully developed lungs and a larger chest. It would seem proper, therefore, that those who have narrow chests and a tendency to lung diseases will do well to spend a month or two in the mountain in high altitudes and in climbing mountains. I have frequently witnessed the good results of such a course of life. The greater part of New Mexico, for instance, is from 5,000 to 7,000 feet above the level of the sea. I have seen many weak, puny, narrow chested men and women who, at their homes on the seaboard, panted violently from the slightest exertion, become after a few months' residence in Santa Fe strong and ruddy, with their breathing capacity greatly increased, and able to walk briskly two or three miles, or climb up to the top of a steep mesa without losing their wind.

Again, the air of mountains possesses a greater amount of ozone than that of the seashore. What particular effect ozone may have upon the health of man has not yet been clearly made out. In some directions it seems to be absolutely injurious. There is good evidence to show that it is often productive of bronchial affections and especially influenza. During an epidemic of this disease an increased amount of ozone has been found in the atmosphere. On the other hand, there is no doubt that ozone is a great purifier of the atmosphere, and it is doubtless owing to the increased amount of this agent in the air of mountain regions that its salubrity is in a great measure due. I have subjected putrescent meat and vegetables to the action of ozone, and invariably the bad smell was at once corrected. It may, therefore, be regarded as the destroyer of certain germs which are capable of producing disease.—Dr. William A. Hammond.

Precautions in Bathing. We have already called attention to the danger of injury to the ear in bathing as described by Dr. Samuel Sexton. The London Lancet, in the following language, directs attention to still another danger. The bathing season, though not yet advanced, has already been marked by the levy of that fatal tribute which year by year is exacted of the ignorant and the indiscreet. The recent death by drowning of a young man in the public baths at Poplar suggests one cause of accident which is too apt to be overlooked. The deceased had entered the water soon after partaking of a hearty meal, and the fatal result was attributed to cerebral congestion due to sudden immersion at such a time.

What may have been the particular appearance observed after death in this case we have no means of judging, but it may be well to consider shortly some reasons why the practice of bathing soon after meals is justly condemned. Effusion of blood in or upon the brain, when it occurs in such cases as that already referred to, is probably not a primary cause of mischief, but rather a consequence founded on other circulatory and nervous disturbances. It is an evidence of eclampsia, and the physiological basis upon which this is founded consists in that inward diversion of blood toward the alimentary tract which characterizes normal digestion; the other tissues, notably the brain, being at the same time proportionally anemic, and the action of heart and lungs impeded by a distended stomach. A natural result of cold immersion at this stage is to encourage or induce a tendency to syncope, to concentrate surface blood still more about the central organs, including the heart, which, especially if at all unequal to its duties, labors ineffectually to readjust the blood pressure, and finally succumbs with lungs and venous system engorged by passive congestion. It is as if an enemy occupied the outworks of a fortress left for a time unguarded, and forthwith paralyzed the resistance of the citadel. It is best, therefore, to wait for at least an hour and a half or two hours after a good meal before bathing.—Science.
