

Evening Herald. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY. Dr. Higgins, Dentist, Rockwood Building, Telephone No. 25.

CITY CORDIALS.

The handsomest suits of ready made clothes can be found at Elson's. The flyer, which was due here at 5:10 this morning, was about four hours and a half late.

The entire paint force of the shops took a "lay off" this afternoon for the purpose of seeing the base ball match between the Plattsmouth and Beatrice teams.

Yesterday the Jewish New Year was celebrated in this city and several of the business houses were closed all day.

Any one having houses to rent should advertise them in the HERALD, for the way the city is improving we predict there will not be a vacant house in the city after October 1.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor have selected for the subject of their meeting, on Monday, Sept. 10th, "Seek," John 18-4. Their meetings are being well attended.

There is a demand for houses of five and six rooms to rent. To a person with means it would be a profitable investment to build fifteen or twenty cottages.

The following ball players who registered at the Riddle House this morning, compose the Beatrice base ball club, which plays the Plattsmouth team this afternoon on their grounds west of the city.

Messrs. A. G. Arnold and S. P. Newcomb, of Mumeston, Ia., arrived in the city this morning. Mr. Newcomb, we are pleased to learn, is in the city making arrangements to open up business in the corner store room of the Anheuser-Busch building, about the handsomest room for a business in the city.

Arrangements for the special train have been made, so that those who wish to witness the siege of Sebastopol at Omaha, and who are unable to go and remain over night for that purpose, will have an opportunity to go and return the same night.

PERSONALS. Mr. O. H. Ballou was in Omaha on business.

Mr. John Bauer was an Omaha passenger this morning.

Mr. John A. Davies is in Omaha today attending the fair.

Mrs. Oliver Dovey and Miss Edna Adams went up to Omaha this morning.

Mr. Vanderford and Mr. Chas. Whitney are attending the races at Wahoo.

Mr. W. Wise returned from St. Joe last night where he had been for a few days on business.

Judge A. N. Sullivan left for Springfield, Neb., this morning where he was called on legal business.

Miss Kate Stadelmann returned home from Kearney last night where she has been visiting for some time.

Mrs. Frank H. Wilson, daughter of Capt. L. D. Bennett, accompanied by her son Lloyd, are in Omaha today.

Mr. Frank Smith, of Beatrice, brother of Mr. O. P. Smith, of this city, accompanied the Beatrice team here today.

Mrs. N. Y. Lane, of Phillips, Neb., returned home last night after a few days' visit with Mrs. Vanderford, of this city.

Misses Julia and Carrie Oliver went to Omaha this morning. They were accompanied by Mr. Sam Goff, of Colorado, who is the guest of the family at present.

Mrs. Dean and son, Edward, of South Bend, were in the city yesterday visiting at the home of Mr. H. J. Streight.

Ed. left this morning for Amhurst, N. H., where he goes to attend college.

Mr. Robt. O. Simmons, of Cedar Rapids, brother of Mr. Charley Simmons who met with such an untimely death within the last few days, arrived this morning to take charge of the remains.

Mrs. Barrell and the Misses Carrie and Susie Merritt, daughters of Mr. E. L. Merritt, of Springfield, Ill., are the guests of Dr. Siggins and wife. Mr. Merritt is well known in this vicinity, having been prominently connected with the Omaha Herald for some time.

The World. This great play will be produced at the Waterman opera house tomorrow (Saturday) night. The reserved seats tickets are now selling rapidly at J. P. Young's. The following is a commendation clipped from a prominent eastern paper:

"From the rise to the fall of the curtain, at the Lee Avenue Theatre last evening, was one of the most animated scenes ever witnessed in that place of amusement. To say the audience was wild with excitement was no figure of speech, for never before had such a demonstrative audience assembled inside a theatre. The occasion was the production of the 'World' by J. Z. Little and an intelligent company of actors. The 'World' is to well known to need comment, suffice it to say that all the original scenes were produced and nothing omitted, something remarkable for an attraction as old as the 'World.' Mr. Morris, the manager, informs us that his stage machinist has just perfected patents, so that all the scenery used here can be carried and produced through the provinces, and on a scale of magnificence equal to its production here. Heretofore this 'World' has been solely a metropolitan production, and we may safely say it might live here forever, but manager Morris is determined to spread his popularity and guarantee to produce all the scenes the same as at the Lee Avenue Theatre; wherever his company appears, to do this it necessitates the carrying of two sets of scenery, each set made to telescope, so that after viewing the models which were kindly shown us by the theatrical magnate, we are impressed with the fact that Mr. Morris can produce every scene of this beautiful and wonderful play on a piano box as clearly as he does on our large stage. We have no doubt but that the raft and sinking ship, and other mechanical scenes will find as many admirers in the provinces as it has in New York and Brooklyn."

Reserved seats are now on sale at J. P. Young's for 75 cents, and they are going fast. It is thought the opera house will be crowded.

Piano and Organ Tuning, Etc. NOTICE TO THE MUSICAL PUBLIC.—G. B. Kempster begs to remind the residents of Plattsmouth and vicinity that having made his home here, he is here to stay, and is confident that, having proved himself a trained and competent tuner, the residents will support a fellow citizen, and they can rely upon the lowest charges consistent with good workmanship, and being resident can always be held responsible for same. References can be made to most of the leading residents and musicians by those who are not already my clients. Orders can be left either at my office at Mr. Boeck's, or with Mr. J. P. Young, who receives orders for me alone, having no connections with any other tuner.

Card of Thanks. We, the undersigned, take great pleasure in thanking our many patrons who have so kindly extended to us their trade during our long business term in this city, and it is with feelings of regret that we bid our Plattsmouth friends adieu. We have ever found our Plattsmouth customers courteous and easy to deal with, and we are sorry to leave so many valuable friends.

SOLOMON & NATHAN. The finest bedroom sets can be found at H. Boeck's.

An Invitation. The following letter was received by John A. Davies, president of the Young Men's Republican Club, of this city, as an invitation to the club to attend a grand rally which will be held at Cedar Creek. He also has received an invitation to speak, which we learn, he has accepted. Judge Vanatta of this city will also be one of the speakers of the evening:

Very truly yours, GEO. E. SAYLES. By order of Committee.

The U. O. T. B., a German society of this city will hold a picnic next Sunday at West Park, about one-half mile west of the city. Several lodges from Omaha are expected to arrive Sunday morning. They will march from the B. & M. depot to the grounds. The usual amusements will be indulged in.

Mr. C. R. Simmons, who was shot at his shooting gallery last Wednesday evening, died last night about 11 o'clock. Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the I. O. O. F. halls. The remains will be removed to Cedar Rapids, tomorrow morning, where they will be buried. An obituary notice will appear tomorrow.

Mr. O. P. Smith has returned from Nehawka, where he has located a branch drug store for the firm of Smith & Co. Mr. Rudolf Rawans, who was formerly in the employ of F. G. Fricke & Co., will take charge of the business there.

A large stock of Gents furnishings of the latest styles can now be seen at Elson's, the One Price Clothier.

A full report of today's base ball game will appear tomorrow.

Asleep on the Railroad Track. A little child, tired of play, had pilloved his head on a rail and fallen asleep. The train was almost upon him when a passing stranger rushed forward and saved him from a horrible death.

There is not one thing that puts a man or woman at such disadvantage before the world as a vitiated state of the blood. Your ambition is gone. Your courage has failed. Your vitality has left you. Your languid step and listless actions show that you need a powerful invigorator, one bottle of Beggs' Blood Purifier and Blood Maker will put new life in a worn out system, and if it does not it will cost you nothing. O. P. Smith & Co., Druggists.

Our Suit Department is complete in all lines, Men's, Youth's and Children's suits. You miss it if you don't buy your clothing of Elson, The One-Price Clothier.

Having just returned from New York and Chicago with a stock of clothing, hats and caps, shirts and drawers, and everything in the gents furnishing line. Call and see Elson The One-Price Clothier.

FLEECED IN PARIS. SOME OF THE TRICKS FRENCHMEN PLAY ON VISITORS.

Americans Most Mercilessly Swindled. What It Costs to Eat at a First Class Paris Restaurant—Tricks of Guides and Waiters—The Charges.

"Making a precarious living by taking in each other's washing." This was one of Grenville Murray's jokes, which he applied to any village or town, the inhabitants of which had not any visible means of subsistence. Something of the same kind of sentiment was echoed in a remark made by an American on the boulevard here a day or two ago. "Everybody in Paris seems to live by making a commission out of somebody else." The man had been some weeks in Paris, and had been treated right for left, spending a lot of money and seeing very little and getting less for it. "Paris is a regular fraud," he said. "You want us Americans to come over here and teach you what civilization really is." The speaker was a practical business man, as acute as a razor, a self made man and an inventor. Yet, in spite of all his smartness and his most business like habits, he had "got left" in Paris.

The fact is that Americans who come to Paris and don't know the ropes do get most mercilessly swindled. Fully 50 per cent. of the large sums spent by Americans in this city bring no return in value of any sort or kind. Many leave Paris indignantly and vow never to set foot in it again. Like the gentleman quoted, they set Paris down as a "regular fraud." The city, however, is not so hard on a man who comes to a city for a change and a holiday to be sent away with his temper spoiled, and all the more so that with a little precaution he could easily avoid the harpies who infest Paris perhaps more than any other continental city, including Naples.

Much good money is wasted on guides and couriers. The regulation fee for the services of these is $2 a day and a meal. Very few, however, content themselves with such a salary. It is to the extras that they look for their profits. Thus it is very usual at meal times for the courier to take his client to an expensive restaurant. His client can't speak French, wants to sample French cookery and bids his guide order. The guide orders everything that he likes and what is most expensive. If his client has not the same tastes as he, so much the worse for him. When the bill has been paid the courier pockets the document and will call in the evening to get 20 per cent. commission.

The American I have referred to had in this way been taken to all the best restaurants in Paris and he himself, on his own account, had paid $107 for a breakfast which he had been unable to eat. Elsewhere he had spent $40 on a dinner which he valued at seventy cents. To convince him that one can dine well and cheaply in Paris, I took him to a restaurant I frequent, consulted his tastes, and gave him a dinner which cost me for the two of us just $1.40. He said he had not dined so well since he had been in Paris.

There is absolutely no necessity to take one's guide to lunch or dinner, and if visitors would remember this they would save much money and fare very much better. In every good restaurant in Paris there are waiters who can speak English to translate the items on the bill of fare.

Much annoyance would also be saved to visitors who dine at the restaurants if they would avoid visiting houses where the prices of dishes are not marked on the bills of fare. At such houses the amount of the bill depends on the appearance of the customer, or otherwise of the waiter. The very celebrated houses should be strictly avoided by the American visitor, unless he is accompanied by a habitue. Barring the pleasure of a tickled vanity, there is scant profit in paying $50 for a dinner barely worth $5.

It should also be remembered that prices of dishes are for quantities sufficient for two persons at all the better restaurants. Items not marked on the bill of fare which may be offered by the waiters should be left untouched. Two or three prawns on a plate, a few olives on another, and such kickshaws, will, if touched, bring the bill up 25 per cent. Waiters are in the habit of putting these on the table without being ordered to do so.

In the matter of change visitors should be very careful. Certain moneys which have no legal currency in France are invariably at certain establishments offered to foreigners in change for good money. It should be noted that the only moneys current in France besides French coins are those of Italy, Greece, Switzerland and Belgium. Russian and Austrian gold is also current. Roumanian, Spanish and South American coins should invariably be refused. They can only be disposed of at a loss of 50 per cent. The coins of the late Papal states can be passed at nominal value, but should be avoided, if possible.

In ordering goods made to measure such as ladies' or gentlemen's clothes, a written contract should be made, otherwise the amount charged will very probably be doubled on the bill. The tradesman, if payment is refused, has the right to have the visitor's trunk seized and to prevent him from leaving Paris. Tickets for theatres should never be bought at any of the theatrical agencies in the city. These charge about double the right prices. Visitors can always procure tickets at the booking office of the theatre in advance.

These are a few indications of how to avoid being swindled in Paris, and if people would observe them one would hear less complaints from visitors. There is no city, perhaps, in the world where so much pleasure can be got for so little money as in Paris, but in no city either is the systematic swindling of foreigners, and especially of Americans, more extensively carried out.—R. H. Sherard in New York World.

A Good and Pretty House. In the business, bustle and brick of a city we need to gather all the ideas of structure within reach and pluck from our minds the dreary wooden box conception of a habitation and make that one spot we call our home just as beautiful as artistic training and the length of our purse can make it. We have but one earth life to live, and the quality of the home settles the quality of that life. A shower of brown cottages fell upon a breezy greenward and under the shadows of spreading trees may each contain more happiness and contentment than are within the reach of the dwellers in as many lovely palaces frescoed by immortal names. Nor is it necessary that the man who has a house built shall have all the technical skill of an architect or a builder. He may know instinctively when he has a good and pretty house, just as he may tell a good painting without having an expert artist's incisive knowledge of the chemistry of colors.—Pioneer Press.

A CARD.

Having this day sold my stock of Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, etc., to Messrs. Brekenfeld & Weidman, I would respectfully and earnestly ask that all those in my debt come forward promptly and settle their accounts; as it will be necessary for me to close up my business as speedily as possible before engaging in other pursuits. I also take this occasion to thank the public, both in the city and county, for the very liberal patronage given me during the time I have been engaged in business here, and hope the same will be extended to my successors.
