

THE THIRD DAY A SUCCESS.

The Fine Stock Exhibit the Best Ever Witnessed in the County.
—Every Stall Occupied.

Excellent Display By Plattsmouth and Foreign Business Houses.

A Large Crowd To-day.

This, the Twenty-second annual fair of Cass county, is said to be, by many of the oldest settlers of the county who have been members of the agricultural society since its organization, the most successful of their expositions. The new grounds, which can be reached conveniently from every quarter, are now in first-class condition in every respect. The city has been crowded with visitors each day, so, from all appearances, the management deserve great credit for bringing it into such prominence and making it an attraction which will aid the city in many ways.

The work in preparing the race course for the accommodation of fast drivers has absorbed much of the finances of the driving park association, but the track is now equal to any in the state. All horsemen report favorably of it, and from all appearances it could not be much improved. The grand stand, which is substantially built at the west side of the course, is sufficiently large enough to seat from four to five hundred people, and is built in such a way that a satisfactory view can be had of all the races.

A large agricultural hall has been erected on the grounds, and within the last two weeks an art hall has also been built which adds much to the appearance of things. The building is octagonal in shape, with a winding stair in the center reaching the top where a platform is built for the band. The building is about sixty feet in height and a delightful view of the grounds and surrounding country can be had from the top.

A sufficient number of stalls and pens have been erected on the grounds for the accommodation of all stock which will be exhibited at any time. Ten additional stalls have been erected since the opening of the fair to supply the demand.

The art hall, which all thought would be sufficiently large to accommodate the business men and others, here, has found ready applicants for every vacant stand and everything is filled. The following firms of this city, and others are represented there:

In the centre of the building, facing the south door, is a fine display of ladies' dresses, neatly arranged, from the store of F. Herrmann. The stand has attracted the attention and won the admiration of all the ladies.

Adjoining that, to the left, the enterprising firm of O. P. Smith & Co. have made a fine selection from their immense stock of wall paper, drugs, perfume, and fancy goods. Misses Nellie Simpson and Rose McCauley are waiting upon the customers who make selections from the stock of fancy goods.

The display of boots and shoes by Peter Merges added much to the appearance of things in that vicinity, and that gentleman shows good taste in his arrangement of the goods he has on exhibition.

Messrs. E. G. Dovey & Sons have dressed up the stand occupied by their selection of carpets, rugs and lace curtains which gives the place every appearance of a neat parlor. The different patterns of carpets are good.

M. B. Murphy & Co. have a stand among the many others there, in which there is a display of crockery and glassware which eclipses anything in that line we have ever seen in the city. The display is mostly imported goods from Germany.

Mr. Jas. M. Muir, who recently arrived in the city to take charge of the "New Home" sewing machine business here for that company, has showed up the many advantages of their machines to perfection. Mr. Muir assisted by his wife, are showing all kinds of fancy work to the public.

With the aid of the attachments, all kinds of embroidery work is finished up to perfection with the machines, and buttonholes and hat crowns can be worked as neatly as by hand.

Mr. G. B. Kempster has charge of the musical instruments exhibited. He is agent for the best piano company in the east, and has on exhibition several fine instruments.

Mr. H. M. Gault, who is the only jeweler represented there, has made an attractive selection from his fine stock.

The firm of Richey Bros., lumber dealers, is also represented there and they have several finished doors, windows and shutters on exhibition.

Mr. J. V. Weckbach has made a fine showing and has his stock well represented. Carpets and ladies' wear are nicely arranged and attracted the attention of many.

Mr. W. A. Boeck has a complete display of boots and shoes. Every style of the many in his stock is represented and the goods neatly arranged.

One of the most attractive features in the building is the tower built of canned goods from the Plattsmouth Canning factory.

The furniture house of I. Pearlman is creditably represented.

The fancy work on exhibition in one stand is owned by Miss Annie Gorder, Mrs. C. H. Smith, Miss Mary Goos, Mrs. Mahoney and Mrs. Wolfarth. The display speaks well for their good taste.

A crazy quilt made by a little girl 11 years old attracted the attention of many admirers.

Miss Birdie Irish has a display of fine oil paintings which exhibit a rare ability in that style of work.

Miss Lelia Thomas has specimens of her painting on exhibition. The work, for the kind, is superior to any we have seen in the city, and we congratulate her on her excellent talent. Mr. Chas. Whitney has several paintings in the same stand which show a talent for such work which cannot be much excelled. He has never had any instructions, and the work looks perfect.

Last but not least, we noticed work from the needle of Grandma Todd, mother of A. B. Todd. Among several other articles which we much admired were crazy quilts which she must have worked on for months to complete. They were the handsomest we have seen.

In the agricultural hall, the fruit display excelled all others, and was a credit to the exhibitors.

The stock on the grounds far surpassed that on any exhibition of any previous fair.

The following races occurred yesterday:

3 MINUTE TROT.

Alma Boy, owned by Arthur Perry, 1st. Time 2:49½. Teddy Morse, owned by O. S. Lehman and S. P. Morse, 2nd. Time, 2:49½. Clara E., owned by C. F. Whitney, 3rd. Time, 2:50. Best three in five. Purses $50, $30 and $20.

A CONVALESCENT PATIENT

Tells the Story of His Experience with the Yellow Fever.

A convalescent patient, a newspaper man, furnishes the following as his experience: "It was one week ago yesterday when the festive merriment knocked at the door of our liver and said, 'Now is the accepted time.' I only asked for an hour in which to finish an editorial on the doctors, and by vigorous work succeeded in saving about half as much as I had intended. I then gave the 'devil' a few directions about how to manage things in my absence, when I quietly hid down the back street home, there to lie down to pleasant dreams for a few days, but with a resolve to never close both eyes at the same time. I made some other resolves, too; one was not to have a doctor, another not to yield to the torture of a sweat. Wednesday afternoon I stood firm, and so did the fever, which, by night, had reached, at a galloping rate, the apex of heat.

"Gradually I relented, and at first consented to take moderate foot wash, but my wife had the mustard in the water before I knew it. Presently I felt little drops of perspiration oozing out here and there. I again yielded a little and drank a cup of orange leaf tea, and in a few minutes was unconsciously floating in a sea of moisture. My head was bursting and my back breaking. What could I do? Nothing but lie there and submit to frequent orange leaf tea. For about five hours I suffered the torture of a miniature shower. I called lustily for ice water, but there was none to give. I asked for lemonade, but it was refused unless it was hot. Twenty-four hours was enough for thorough medication. It had a softening effect upon my feelings even toward the doctors. I knew that the crisis had been passed, but I wanted somebody to take the temperature then.

"It was thought that in the dim, misty future a certificate of acclimation might come handy in dealing with quarantines, etc., and at the earnest entreaty of my wife I consented to let a doctor come in and feel my pulse. He came, he saw and declared that the fever was conquered. I only asked him for a prescription of ice and lemonade, and out of the hardness of his heart he said it could not be had. This was the evening of the second day. My appetite had returned, but on being informed that nothing but chicken broth could be had for at least forty-eight hours I concluded to go back to bed for a few days. After being reduced in strength by the heroic 'sweat,' I was powerless to resist any edict that the kind nurses saw fit to promulgate. I took the broth and let the well folks have the chicken, but it will be but a few days before I eat the chicken and give them the broth. Some people say I had only a mild case. That may be, but I know when I have had enough. I have filled the spirit if not the letter of the law. Now let this thing stop."—New York World.

MIDSUMMER NIGHT.

Mother of balms and soothing manfolds. Quiet breathed night, whose brooding hours are seven. To whom the voices of all rest are given, And those few stars whose scattered names are told.

Far off beyond the westward hills outrolled. Darker than thou, more still, more dreamy even.

The golden moon leans in the dusky heaven, And under her one star, a point of gold;

And all go slowly lingering toward the west, As we go down forgetfully to our rest.

Wary of daytime, tired of noise and light, Ah it was time that thou shouldst come, for we were sore athirst and had great need of thee.

Thou sweet physician, balmy bosomed night.

—A. Lamplman in Scribner's.

A CARD.

Having this day sold my stock of Hardware, Stoves, Tinware, etc., to Messrs. Brekenthal & Weidmann, I would respectfully and earnestly ask that all those in my debt come forward promptly and settle their accounts; as it will be necessary for me to close up my business as speedily as possible before engaging in other pursuits. I also take this occasion to thank the public, both in the city and county, for the very liberal patronage given me during the time I have been engaged in business here, and hope the same will be extended to my successors.

When Lawrence Was Larry.

Away back in the ante-bellum days, when every city of any pretension had its own stock company which supported the few stars who traveled in those days, J. H. McVicker visited Cleveland, Ohio, in order to fill an engagement for an eminent actor who was under his management.

With the aid of the local manager he cast the piece for the opening night from the regular stock company, but found that there was one small part for which there was no actor left.

"Larry can play that part all right," said the local manager; "I'll send over for him. Here, you Jim! run across the street and tell Larry to come right over here as quick as can be."

"Vick's Larry?" inquired Mr. McVicker. "Oh! he's a young fellow who works in a printing office here and occasionally plays small parts for me. He'll do it all right."

In a few moments Larry arrived. He was short of stature and of cadaverous features. He was in his shirt sleeves and his hands bore traces of the composing room, which he had just left. Small men are apt to carry themselves very erect in order to atone, if possible, for their lack of height, but "Larry" carried himself so straight, that, to use a nautical term, he "raked aft."

"Do you think you can get yourself up in this role by to-morrow night?" inquired Mr. McVicker, handing him a part of about two lengths.

"Larry" cast a glance of ineffable scorn at the manager, threw his head a little further back and exclaimed: "Learn it? I should hope I could."

The part was handed to him and he made a dignified exit.

"What name shall I put down on the bill?" inquired Mr. McVicker.

"Lawrence Barrett," said the local manager.—New York Telegram.

Drugs wanted at the opera house

Go and see "Uncle Josh" at the opera house tonight.

Willie Gorder, son of Fred Gorder, a lad about 14 years of age, is very sick with pneumonia.

Many of the business buildings are decorated in a profuse way today in honor of the democratic rally.

The crowd at the fair today was exceeding large. With another favorable day the success will be complete.

Frank and Florence Richardson, of Eight Mile Grove, left last week for Lincoln to attend the university.

The base ball game between Plattsmouth and Wahoo promise to be very interesting, we wish our boys success.

The Andrews Dramatic company will hold forth at the Waterman opera house tonight. "Uncle Josh" is selected.

The colored church will give a festival tonight in Dovey's block, to which everybody is invited. Admission 10cts. Ned Baker will address the audience.

The Wahoo base ball club, accompanied by the Silver Cornet band, of that city, and about seventy-five citizens came in this morning on the Schuyler train and were given a cordial welcome by the democrats. There will be an additional 200 arrive this afternoon from Wahoo.

The Andrews Dramatic company in the production of Rip Van Winkle last night was well received by those present. The cast of characters was excellent, and the scenery exceptionally fine. Although the play has been long before the people, it will never grow old, but as Uncle Tom's Cabin, it will be "cherished in the hearts of the people."

While the compositors of THE HERALD were busily and quietly engaged, this morning, in the daily routine of work necessary to all daily printing offices, the door opened and in stepped Mr. Chas. Sherman, of the Journal, having a jolly countenance, and with two good sized and suspicious looking packages under his arm. He cast one of them upon the "stone" with the remark, "Here's some cake for the boys," and was gone, before we could say "thank-you," to make some other "prints" or "parties" a call. We knew what it meant—THE HERALD "prints" had been kindly remembered from the Sherman—Belville wedding, of yesterday—and the fine assortment of rich wedding cakes was soon released from the wrappings and appropriately dispensed with. THE HERALD force are united in their appreciation and good wishes for the newly married couple.

PERSONALS.

Post Master Patterson, of South Bend, was at the fair today.

Resolutions of Respect.

Resolutions adopted by Plattsmouth Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F.

WHEREAS, it has pleased the Almighty Ruler to remove from our midst our worthy brother, Chas. R. Simmons; and WHEREAS that we recognize in him a faithful brother, an honorable citizen and a good and true patriot, therefore be it Resolved by Platts. Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F., that we shall long cherish a lively recollection and esteem of our departed brother.

Resolved, that we sympathize with his relatives and friends in the loss of a devoted brother, as he stood here a citizen without blemish and a brother without reproach. Thus it leaves a vacancy in our midst and our beloved order seldom filled.

Resolved, that we extend our thanks to the brothers who so kindly and willingly attended him during his sickness and death.

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be entered on the records of Plattsmouth Encampment No. 3, I. O. O. F., a copy furnished the relatives of the deceased and a copy be furnished each of the city papers for publication.
