Mr. C. W. Warfel and wife, of Lincoln, are visiting his cousin, Mr. Frank Morgan and wife, of this city. Mr. Warfel is head clerk in the store of S. & C. Mayer, at Lincoln.

The Float Convention.
The float convention met at Weeping Water last evening at 7 o'clock. There was considerable dissatisfaction expressed by a number of the leaders of the republican party from the western part of the county, on the grounds that there was no emergency that made it necessary for the central committee to select delegates to the float convention from among their own members. Mr. John Watson, a candidate for float representative from Otoe county, was present and with the delegates from Otoe, were unanimously in favor of postponing the nomination until the regular convention that holds on Oct. 6th, at Louisville, and on motion of McKee, of Elmwood, the matter was so laid over.

Mr. Newcomb, an Iowa merchant who had made arrangements to open up a clothing store in the Anheuser-Busch building, has abandoned the idea of coming on account of the death of his son, a young man about 21 years of age. We are sorry to receive the sad intelligence, and we extend our sympathies to the bereaved father.

The carpenters and painters are driving away at the New Tea House—the branch is to be one of Plattsmouth's permanent institutions, and there is hardly a doubt of a grand success. No wideawake citizen can help but welcome the new firm.

Judge Russell issued a marriage license today to Mr. Thos. Jones and Miss Amelia Beckstod.

This large company will hold forth in this city on Wednesday evening, the 3rd of October. This is the introduction of the play in this section of the country, and it is only put upon the boards by this company. They are about forty in number and unless it had been a great success in the east, that many artists could not possibly be supported. Geo. H. Adams, the comedian, is highly spoken of by the eastern press.

GALENA, May 15, 1885.
Prof. A. Strassman—Dear Sir: I have used the equalized glasses prepared by you for my eyes and am delighted with them. I must say that on account of the inequality in my eyes, I did not suppose it to have been within the range of possibility to have remedied the defect so perfectly as you have done. Many thanks. Yours Truly.

Caution of the Country Banker.
Country bankers are a very important class of people. The checks and drafts they issue are so hedged about with forms and characters that they cannot be raised with a derelict or forged by a blacksmith. There is in Chicago a man who probably handles more of this rural negotiable paper than any one else. He deals in a class of literature which is sent "securely sealed" on receipt of price. When his advertising bluffs in the columns of the country press are called, he shows down a pair of literary deuces, but he rakes in the pot all the same, smiling to himself the while at the gullibility of the bucolic public. They seek something for nothing; he gives them nothing for something.

The other day he showed a check he had received in payment for a book which he termed in his pastoral advertisement "rich, rare and racy." The check was drawn on a bank in a small western town of the mushroom era, and it was drawn by the president of the bank. It was for $1. The signature was evidently in imitation of that of the man who signs passes in a railroad office which are "not good unless countersigned by," and across the signature, at an angle of forty-five degrees, was written the legend, "One dollar." No one could have raised it or altered it unless he had been a Herrmann or a Keller. It was collateral for a dollar that would have baffled even an Oberkämpf. It was "schibit A" of the cantion of a country banker.—Chicago Herald.

A Couple of Clever Tricks.
A healthy looking man horrified our people a year ago by munching glass apparently as the average American eats peanuts. He did not eat glass, however; he swallowed a skillfully prepared composition that resembled glass, but his punishment is recorded nevertheless. The glass eater is under the physician's care. The exposure of the trick will lessen the consumption of the diet that has brought a trisester to grief and a gruul diet. This imposture is not as bad as Annie Brown's imposture. About eighteen years ago a woman living in Wayne county, N.Y., named Annie Brown, puzzled the doctors. She professed to be the victim of a snake. The snake owned her. It was seen in her mouth, but when the doctors tried to get it returned to her stomach. Annie made some money exhibiting the head of the snake, until she was taken to the infirmary, and there one day a shrewd physician suddenly choked her and compelled her to disgorge the snake, which proved to be a large piece of black India rubber that she slipped down her throat, and then, with her convulsive movements, raised up and down. Of the two, Annie Brown's is much the cleverest trick. The managers of museums might revive it now that glass eating is one of the new arts.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

One of the saws in a North Carolina mill was knocked gaily west by a lot of grape shot imbedded in a log that had evidently grown on some field of battle.

I also take this occasion to thank the public, both in the city and county, for the very liberal patronage given me during the time I have been engaged in business here, and hope the same will be extended to my successors.
