CITY CORDIALS.

Miss Rosa Harris, of Ashland, is the guest of Mrs. Sarah McElwain of this city.

—Today is pay day at the B. & M. shops. "The two old Cronies" will rejoice.

—The Plattsmouth team won the Plattsmouth-Wahoo game last Saturday by a score of 6 to 4.

—The "Two Old Cronies" will be the best production we have had in the city this season. The play is full of fun and good singing.

—We learn that the Iowan living at Bethlehem, who is guilty of being father of twenty-five children, bears the name of Russell. We believe he is a russler.

—Remember, the "Two Old Cronies" will be at the opera house tonight. The company is an expensive one, and unless it is greeted by a full house, they cannot afford to show.

—If you wish to reap the benefit now and restore your eyesight, with the most brilliant glasses in existence, call without delay at Riddle house before Prof. Strassman's departure.

Miss Maud Barnes, of York, sister of Mrs. D. A. Campbell, arrived in the city this morning. She has lately returned from Oberlin, O., where she has been attending the conservatory of music.

—We only faintly express the sentiments of every republican and respectable citizen who was confined at the opera house Saturday night and listened to the speech of W. J. Connell of Omaha, when we say that the man was too fresh. Such a speech as the one delivered by him there would better correspond with the ideas of a crowd of toughs than those of his respectable audience. The republicans here recede from endorsing many of his rank statements, and we are of the opinion that he would have returned for himself one hundred votes or more which he will now lose since so many foul expressions escaped his lips, had he remained at home.

The Two Old Cronies.

The Willis, Henshaw and TenBroeck company presented the musical comedy, Two Old Cronies, at Dohany's last night. The production, as a rib-tickler, is simply immense and kept the audience in an almost continuous uproar from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Council Bluffs will greet the Two Old Cronies with packed houses as often as they can make it convenient to stop off a night and have some fun with us.—Council Bluffs, Nonpareil.

IT WAS THE GRANDEST.

The Republican Rally Saturday Night Was a Grand Success.

THE YOUNG LADIES ALL RIGHT.

A Procession Which Extended Over a Mile.

ROUSING SPEECHES ROAST THE DEMOCRATS.

The City Profusely Illuminated

Saturday was all that could be desired in the way of a favorable day on which to hold a rally. The republicans became enthusiastic during the day when preparations were being made for the event, and all turned in and assisted in numerous ways, giving tone and life to the efforts. As though working for a rich reward, which they have strong reason to believe will come next November, every republican has so far done his or her duty.

Business men also turned in early in the morning and decorated their stores, and from all appearances the city was entirely republican. Flags were hoisted over nearly every business house and many private residences, and the strong opposition of which we hear so much of now seemed a thing of the past, and nothing but victory apparently gleamed on the faces of all republicans. An immense banner, bearing the portraits of Harrison and Morton, raised and lowered in the breeze with an air of supremacy, from the dome of the opera house.

Large crowds had arrived from the surrounding country during the day all prepared to participate in the grand rally or to contribute to its success in whatever way they might be called upon, and vehicles and teams bore decorations, and we give the farmers credit for being as proud of their efforts.

The urchins who prattled around the streets the whole day carried the great emblem of the republicans above their heads, and all were apparently as enthusiastic as their seniors.

About 2 o'clock a large crowd gathered at the depot to welcome the clubs which were to arrive a few minutes later. The train did not appear until about 2:40, and it brought crowds of from 100 to 200 from each of the towns along the line—Wahoo, Ashland, Louisville, Cedar Creek and South Bend. A young ladies' club, composed of about fifty of the belles of Ashland, accompanied the young men's clubs. They deservedly won the hearts of all the young republicans.

Clubs from Lincoln and intermediate points did not arrive until about 7 o'clock in the evening. When their train pulled in a rousing cheer was raised—and a warm welcome extended to the visitors. The Flambeau club, of Lincoln, did credit to that city and the great rally here. Headed by a drum corps, consisting of members of their own club, they formed in line and marched up Main street until opposite the Riddle House. In their uniform of red white and blue, they presented a most charming appearance. They were over one hundred strong.

While all clubs which had arrived were awaiting the arrival of trains from Omaha and Glenwood, the young ladies' club of Ashland entertained the immense crowd by a drill. Each lady carried a cane, and no idea could have reached the admiration of the spectators more than their performance. They looked very fascinating in their uniforms of navy blue, with gold stars. We congratulate them on their fine appearance and perfect drill.

Information was received during the day that the republican club here could expect a club of one hundred or more from Omaha, but word was received later that no one would come, much to the dissatisfaction of all.

After the clubs had remained at the depot for an hour or more, they learned that the Glenwood train would not start out for some time. Not thinking it advisable to hold the ladies clubs in the cold longer, the marshals Messrs. J. C. Eikenbary, J. W. Johnson and A. B. Todd, proceeded to form the clubs in line, heading on Main and Fourth streets. The B. & M. band, of seventeen pieces, with Mr. J. H. Young as drum major, led the procession, followed by the Lincoln Flambeau club, which specially attracted the attention of spectators and received loud applause on account of good marching. Then came the young ladies republican club of Ashland. They were captained by Mr. J. N. Moon. The young men's club of Ashland were preceded by the Ashland band. Each member of the club carried a red white and blue umbrella. The young ladies club of this city was prominent among the handsomest features of the procession. They looked charming in their costumes of blue, with blue caps of the same material with a white star on one side. Their dresses were also marked with white stars. Each young lady carried a Japanese lantern, and a transparency was carried about the center of the line bearing the legend: "We cannot the Wahoo band and Wahoo republican club. Their band deserves special mention; it comprised fifteen pieces. The club wore a very attractive uniform and each man carried an eagle torch. Wahoo can be proud of her turnout, as was the republican club of this city; the Cedar Creek club, which deserves great credit for its good turnout and fine appearance; the Young Men's Republican club of Plattsmouth, headed by the G. A. R. Drum corps, and captained by their president, Mr. John A. Davies. They made a good showing.

The transparencies were numerous, the work of the legends thereon cannot be excelled. Among the many were:

A log cabin with "the same old coon." Grover Cleveland's campaign check of $10,000.

"Free Trade" John Bull milking a cow in England, while its fore feet were in America and Uncle Sam was feeding it.

"Levi P. Morton—Irish famine $15,000, yellow fever sufferers, $12,000."

Mills Bill—Duty on nails, 4 cents per pound; on cotton, 00.

"Cleveland's coat of many colors."

"Free traders are students of maxims and not of markets."—Ben. Harrison.

"I believe in free trade as I believe in the Protestant religion."—Grover Cleveland.

"Ben Harrison was his own substitute."

The democrats who stood in prominence on the corners chuckled when they took in the procession. "It was no procession at all," and various such whoppers were thrown out when it was first formed. We believe it did not extend as far as the democratic procession of their rally some weeks ago; but they shed tears of anguish upon the arrival of the Glenwood special. The Young Men's Republican club of Glenwood and the two ladies' clubs of Glenwood and Plattsville counted up over seven hundred. The Glenwood ladies' club alone numbered about one hundred and fifty while there were about fifty ladies in the Plattsville club. Their arrival poured out so much enthusiasm, as it proved to be such an agreeable surprise, that the large crowds which met them on the street, gave vent to their feelings by rousing cheers, and the cries "Glenwood's all right," "Hurrah for Glenwood," and "What's the matter with the Glenwood girls? They're all right," rent the air as they marched up street. The Glenwood ladies club, preceded by the Glenwood band, headed the procession which was formed of the clubs which arrived by the special with them, marched up Main street to join the procession which had gone before. They made the finest appearance as they marched. The two hundred ladies, attired in blue dresses marked with white stars, looked charming in the full sense of the term. The Plattsville ladies wore white sashes around their shoulders, on which was printed "Harrison and Morton Club."

When this procession reached Sixth street they turned south to Pearl, then on Pearl to Eighth, south on Eighth to Granite where they turned east and joined the first procession at the corner of Granite and Washington avenue. The cheering of the meeting processions could be heard in every part of the city, and the scene created more enthusiasm than could have been realized in any other way.

When the two large processions joined, the line reached over a mile, and the march was then continued to Granite, thence to Sixth and Main to the opera house.

It is estimated that there were from 1,500 to 2,000 torches carried in the procession and many marched without them.

The democrats boasted that the crowd which attended their rally far surpassed anything of the past and that they could not even duplicate it.

The crowd Saturday night was the largest ever seen in this city on any occasion.

The crowd of spectators was simply immense, and the lowest estimate is 15,000.

The Flambeau club of Lincoln made the finest display of fire works seen in the city since many a day. All along their line sky rockets shot out and beautifully illuminated the streets through which they passed.

The citizens who decorated their private residences along the line of march are worthy of a thousand congratulations. Windows were trimmed in a thousand different styles, with red, white and blue material.

Great credit is certainly due to all who participated in this memorable event. There will never again be a more enthusiastic assemblage in Plattsmouth, and the many visitors who came to our city, each and all, expressed themselves in a most satisfactory manner.

The speaking was conducted in the opera house and Rockwood hall. The opera house was crowded, the doorways packed and hundreds were turned away. The stage of the opera house was artistically draped with bunting, flags and streamers, with a large Union flag at the back which extended from one side of the stage to the other.

D. F. Cole, A. G. Hatt, Thomas Mitchell, B. Windham, H. B. Hadsall, J. R. Thompson, Sam Hempill, J. W. Neal, Amos Left, John Philpot, J. H. Beal, Samuel Caultley, J. J. Hayslit, J. S. Rouse and J. G. Hayes.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. John A. Davies. Mr. Shirley Gilliland, of Glenwood, Ia., was first speaker introduced. He made a short, spicy speech. Although he only occupied a few minutes, it was laden with many rich points, and many favorable comments have since been heard from many of his hearers.

The Hon. W. J. Connell, of Omaha, our candidate for congress, upon being introduced, paid tribute to the names of Harrison and Morton and also to the 1840 voters who occupied prominent positions on the stage. Mr. Connell stated positively that the republican ticket would be elected in November, giving among other reasons for his statements the fact that many were fast becoming republicans because the democracy have been recreant to their promises of four years ago. In America every man is a king, every woman a queen. James G. Blaine has been said to be one of those uncrowned kings as every other American citizen should be. While we cannot hope to see him president, we do hope to see him secretary of state, which means protection to American industries and American wage laborers on land and on sea. The republican party is the party ever in the lead in patriotism and reform; which has had for its leaders such men as Lincoln, Garfield and Sheridan; which has done far more for the interests of the country and its people than any other party.

After speaking of Governor Thayer and his manner of conducting the campaign as opposed to the nefarious practices of the boodle candidate on the opposite side, he gave way, and Governor Thayer took the floor amid cheers and cries of "He's all right."

The governor began his speech by alluding in a very touching manner to the death of his comrade and companion, Gen. Robt. R. Livingston, through four years of war. Tuning to the events of the evening, he said nothing which he had been permitted to witness this year could in any manner compare to this demonstration in numbers and enthusiasm. It is only a continuation of the work already begun which will place General Harrison—a man—in the chair now occupied by two hundred and twenty-five pounds of raw material. He spoke of the grand record of the party for the past twenty-five years, stating that since the republican party had assumed control of the affairs of the nation, our country's progress has ever been onward and upward. The republican party has made this nation a FREE nation, exclaiming in paraphrase of the beautiful anthem, "Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates and let the Goddess of American Liberty come in." We have come from being a divided nation to a united nation, stretching from sea to sea, such a nation that two of the greatest statesmen of Europe—Lord Bacon and W. E. Gladstone—have endorsed our system of government as being the best in the world.

The governor spoke of civil service reform, raking the democratic administration fore and aft. Also of the tariff, saying that it is better to pay a little more for goods if by so doing we can sell our labor for much more.

In speaking of his own re-election the governor said he had been looking for Mr. McShane, but as yet he had been unable to find him, but hoped to do so in order to say to him that the very men who voted for a democratic senator, in the legislature last winter, voted also for the extension of prison contract labor. Furthermore, only three-eighths of one per cent of convict labor comes in contact with the labor of the state. Saying further that he would withdraw from the canvass if any one could point to a single clause in the constitution or the statutes of the state giving him any authority whereby he could have had the least excuse for evicting the Pinkerton men from the state. He cannot violate the law for any demagogue.

RALLY NOTES.

"Wasn't it a snorter."

All ye clubs should come again. They all shouted Wahoo! Wahoo!! Didn't we all rally 'round the flags? Connell should spell his name Cow-nell.

Every republican can now say, I O A debt to I O A.

Republicans are jolly people, and there are lots of them.

An Omaha paper Heralds the lie of a Plattsmouth nincompoop.

The Flambeau club made fire fly, and there was not a fly on that club.

All republicans yesterday returned thanks that the rain held off until after the rally.

The drum corps were too numerous to mention, and created enthusiasm all along the line.

We will all attend the republican rally at Ashland. The president of the young men's club can go.

GIVE 'EM A CALL

Blow. Blow your horns! They all blew their horns, but not one republican imbibed a democratic horn.

Our committee on transparencies headed by D. B. Smith deserves especial mention. They left nothing undone and Dan excelled himself.

Some of the speeches were long and tiresome and some were short and pointed, but combined they make the foundation for a republican victory.

Bully for the Wahoo band. They are good boys and always ready to play first-class music, and are a credit to the city from whence they came.

What's the difference between a republican and a democratic procession? The republicans do not stumble over as many beer kegs in their line of march.

Ashland done herself proud. Her handsome lady club was the envy of all the ladies on account of the great praise bestowed on them by many of our boys.

pressed by the smiles of the Ashland belles that he is agitating a rally for that town.

Glenwood outdone Plattsmouth and repaid the boys for their excursion to that place two-fold. Two hundred ladies in line for Harrison and Morton. Think of it, ye democrats!

Since a bandana was used at the last democratic rally for an emblem, they should saw off a bull's neck and carry it at the head of their next procession—if they now have courage to rally.

The Omaha Herald correspondent in yesterday's paper said there were 178 ladies and 150 men and boys in line. We leave it to our citizens and visitors from twenty towns to say how big a liar he is.

The crowd was immense—almost too big for Plattsmouth to handle—but we got away with it all the same, and every one from a distance seemed pleased. If any were overlooked please charge it to the great crush.

Our Plattsmouth lady club entertained their lady friends with a fine report which was set in the west.
