

Woman's Rights in Polynesia.

A paper which delays seems to have enjoyed listening to a good deal was on the marriage customs of New Britain, New Caledonia and the Polynesian Isles. In the first place, the girls do not seem to have a very happy time in their maiden days, sometimes passing as many as four or five years of their existence in a wicker cage about seven or eight feet high and ten or twelve feet in circumference, where there is only room to sit or lie down in a crouching position. When, however, these girls are taken out of their cages great marriage feasts are provided for them, so that their only consolation during their incarceration must be the unsatisfactory one of the prospect of the good things to come.

On the Duke of York Island a most objectionable practice prevails. The bride is presented with numberless and costly gifts, which are given to her in public, and all of which she is in honor bound to return in private. Just fancy how exasperating, and how much more difficult for couples to furnish! A custom nearly as reprehensible as that of breaking a coconut over the happy pair and sprinkling them as much as is possible with the milk. It is hardly pleasant for the bridegroom from World's As, or the wedding coat from Poole's! As to widowers, it must be an expensive process out there for them to marry again, for the female relatives of the first wife are allowed to assemble, and to do as much damage to the husband's property as they can accomplish. A man may have as many wives as he likes, provided he can pay for them; but this would not seem a serious drawback to some people, as they are mostly paid for in shells.—London Figaro.

Robert Houdin's Curious Contrivances.

Houdin acquired a comfortable competence by the exercise of his art; and he built a handsome villa at Saint Germain, near Blois. When he had retired from business, he amused himself by introducing various curious inventions into his place and the grounds attached to it. The garden gate was situated some 400 yards from the house. A visitor had only to raise a diminutive brass knocker, and let it fall upon the forehead of a fantastic face—making but a faint sound—when a large bell was set in motion in the villa. At the same time the gate swung open automatically, the plate bearing the name "Robert Houdin" disappeared, and another took its place, on which was engraved the word "Entrez." When the postman delivered the letters he had brought he was instructed to drop them through a slit in the gate into the receptacle provided for this purpose. The box, directly this was done, started of its own accord on its journey to the front door of the house by means of a miniature elevated railway.

Houdin invented, too, an ingenious contrivance by which, while lying in bed, he could feed his horse in a stable fifty yards from the villa, or on touching a small button, there was put in motion an apparatus that caused the exact portion of oats required for the animal's meal to fall into the manger from the granary above. By another curious piece of mechanism a little bench that stood beside a ravine in a remote part of the grounds was so constructed that immediately any person sat down upon it the machine automatically traversed a narrow bridge that spanned the gorge, and, having deposited its occupant on the other side, the bench returned to its original position.—Chambers' Journal.

What Self Binders Have Done.

The self binder was first successfully attached to the reaper in 1876; from 1876 to 1878 inclusive our average crop of wheat, varying more with the season than with the planted area, had been 298,000, 000 bushels. In 1877, when the self binder first began to be used, the crop mounted to nearly 384,000,000 bushels. Again, in 1878, it mounted up, and from that date to 1887 inclusive, in which period the use of the self binder had become general, the average crop, varying more with the season than with the planted area, was 440,000,000 bushels. Could the crops of the last ten years have been saved without the self binder? When we consider that the total number of self binding reapers now made and sold is more than 100,000 a year, requiring over 30,000 tons of twine to bind a single wheat crop, do we not find in the tying of that knot on the self binding harvester a main factor in the export of grain with the returning import of gold on which we resume specie payment? By that single improvement the cost of wheat was reduced not less than 6 percent, and in some places 10 percent.—Forum.

Afraid of a White Cat.

As for himself, the old engineer says that he is not at all superstitious, but he knows men who are handling the throttle on the Bee Line who regard it as a bad omen to see a white cat cross the track in front of an engine in the night time. "You may think it is extremely foolish," said he, "but there is a man in charge of a passenger engine on this line that can never be induced to make time after having seen a white cat cross the track at night. Such a thing does not happen very often, but he claims that it never fails to be the forerunner of some bad luck, not necessarily to his train, but somewhere along the line. After seeing the white cat he always feels his way along, as it were, and gives as an excuse for his failure to work up to the schedule that his engine would not make steam rapidly enough. The other engineers are so to him, but they never joke him about it, as he is extremely sensitive."—Globe Democrat.

A French Clothier's Advertisement.

The latest device for attracting the attention of possible purchasers which has been adopted by several Paris shopkeepers is an "immovable boy." Outside a clothier's, for instance, the "boy" stands without moving a muscle, and bears on his carcass the newest fashion in blouses or corsets. Passers by are easily attracted by the remarkable figure, which they take to be an effigy in wax work or a tableau vivant. The boy has been well drilled and lives up to his work. He smiles not, neither does he wink, nor does he betray by the slightest sign, token or movement that he has anything in common with the ordinary palpitating and effervescent specimen of humanity, the "boulevard boy." The device draws, for spectators are usually lost in amazement at the impressive features of the breathing simulacrum of a dummy figure.—London Telegraph.

At the First Reception.

Mr. Quickrich—I say, Maria—! Mrs. Quickrich—Don't interrupt me when I am receiving the guests. Mr. Q.—But I say—we hired that band by the hour, and it's mighty mean of them to play so slow.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

The republicans of the United States, assembled by their delegates in national convention, on the threshold of their proceedings to honor the memory of their first great leader and immortal champion of liberty and the rights of the people, Abraham Lincoln, and to cover also with stars and stripes of remembrance and gratitude the heroic names of our later leaders who have been more recently called away from our country, Grant, Garfield, Arthur, Logan and Conkling. May their memories be faithfully cherished. We also recall with our greetings and prayer for his recovery the name of one of our living heroes whose memory will be treasured in the history both of republicans and of the republic.

In the spirit of those great leaders and of our devotion to human liberty and with just hostility to all forms of despotism and oppression which is the fundamental idea of the republic, we solemnly and gratefully acknowledge to our fellow Americans of Brazil upon their great act of emancipation which completed the abolition of slavery throughout the two American continents. We earnestly hope we may soon congratulate our fellow citizens of Irish birth upon the peaceful recovery of home rule for Ireland.

country, promote trade, open new and direct markets for our products and cheapen the cost of transportation. We affirm this to be far better for our country than the democratic policy of allowing the government's money without interest to "pet banks."

FOREIGN RELATIONS. The conduct of foreign affairs by the present administration has been distinguished by inefficiency and cowardice. Having withdrawn from the senate all pending treaties effected by republican administrations for the removal of foreign burdens and restrictions upon our commerce and for its extension into a better market, it has neither affected nor proposed any others in their stead. Professing adherence to the Monroe doctrine, it has seen with idle complacency the extension of foreign influence in Central America and of foreign trade everywhere among our neighbors. It has refused to charter sanction or encourage any American organization for constructing the Nicaragua canal, a work of vital importance to the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine and the national honor, and for the development of trade with our Pacific territory, with South America, and with the further coasts of the Pacific Ocean.

FISHERIES QUESTION. We arrange the present democratic administration for its weak and unprofitable treatment of the fisheries question, and its pusillanimous surrender of all privileges to which our fishery vessels are entitled in Canadian ports under the treaty of 1818, the retrograde maritime legislation of 1879 and comity of nations, and which Canadian fishery vessels receive in the ports of the United States. We condemn the policy of the present administration and the administration of Cleveland for their unpatriotic and as tending to destroy a valuable national resource and an indispensible resource of defense against foreign enemies.

The name of American applies alike to all citizens of the republic, and not upon men alike the same degree of obedience to the laws. At the same time citizenship is and must be the property and safeguard of him who wears it, and should protect him whether he be rich or poor, in all his civil rights. It should and must afford him protection at home and abroad, and he should be protected in whatever land he may be on a lawful errand.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM. The men who abandoned the republican party in 1864 and continued to adhere to the democratic party have deserted not only the cause of honest government, but of sound finance, of freedom and purity of the ballot, but especially have deserted the cause of reform in the civil service. We will not fail to keep our eyes fixed upon these men, and we will not because their candidate has broken his. We therefore repeat our declaration of 1864, to wit: The reform of the civil service by the removal of the present administration should be completed by a further extension of the reform to the civil service of the republic.

The gratitude of the nation to the defenders of the republic cannot be expressed in words. The legislation of congress should conform to the pledges made by a loyal people, and be so adjusted that the duties of the republicans should be adjusted and maintained so as to furnish full and adequate protection to that industry.
