THE SURPRISE.

Joy met sorrow in a place
Where the branches interlace,
Very secret, still and sweet,
Safe from all profaning feet.
"Why art here?" Joy, startled, cried:
"Why art here?" Gray Sorrow sighed
"I came here to weep," said Joy,
"Tears are ever my employ."
Murmured Sorrow: "Yet I see
Tears as grateful tears to thee.
Come, young novice, and be taught:
How to ease thy heart o'erfraught."
Joy sat down at Sorrow's feet,
And was taught a lesson sweet.
Fain would he make kind return:
"Sorrow, art too old to learn?"
Sorrow: "Then get up a while,
Till I have taught thee how to smile!"
Since that hour the two have been
Bound as by mysterious kin,
Since that hour they so exchange
Tears and smiles, 'tis nothing strange
If sometimes a puzzled heart
Scarcely can tell the main apart.
—Edith Thomas in Boston Transcript.

Next Fourth of July.

A man who was making great efforts not to betray the fact that he was a great deal the worse for liquor baited a peddler on Monroe avenue and asked:
"Shay, can I ask you a few questions?"
"Yes, sir."
"Shay anything wrong wiz me, eh?"
"You? You appear to have imbibed too freely."
"Do I? Wouz you notice it if I was walkin' long?"
"I think I would."
"Do I talk like it?"
"Yes."
"Much bleeged. Wouz you try an' talk politics, few were me?"
"I would not."
"Get candidates all mixed up, wouldn't it?"
"You probably would."
"Might holler fr' Clezeland an' Harrison, eh?"
"You might."
"Much bleeged. You'r true friend of mine. Do jess you say 'bout it. Doan want to give myself 'way, you know. Made up my mind I'd shoo how zhrunk I was. I'm too zhrunk to talk politics, to go home or to shay on 'er street. Zhorefore I'll sit down on 'er stairs. Goo'-by, ole fel—shoo you Fo'th Zhuly!"

Lie of the Loco Weed.

No other plant in the flora of Texas has enjoyed a greater notoriety than the famous "loco" or "crazy weed." Popular superstition has accredited it with a most remarkable property, and that is, the power of producing insanity in man and beast. Botanically, the plant is known as Astragalus mollissimus. The extravagant stories that have been told about it recently led Mr. James Kennedy to investigate its properties and determine what physiological phenomena result from its action.

As the result of his investigations and his experiments upon animals feeding in pastures, Mr. Kennedy finds conclusively that the plant is non-toxic and innocuous and possesses none of the properties long ascribed to it by popular superstition. He thinks that the immense destruction of stock with which it has been charged may have been caused by some poisonous plant heretofore unsuspected, or if the "loco" really has produced death, it has done so by reason of the tough, fibrous and indigestible character of the plant acting as an irritant, and not as a poison.—Scientific American.

Making Fine Grade Candies.

The process of making the "cream" is identical in both wholesale and retail establishments. Confectioners' sugar is first boiled until it becomes a thick and waxy syrup. It is then turned out on slabs and allowed to partially cool. In the retail establishments it is then worked with wooden paddles until the grain is so stretched that the mass is resolved into a soft, snowy compound, ready for the flavors or to be mixed with fruit or nuts. In the wholesale factories 160 pounds of clear syrup is turned out on a slab at one time. When it has cooled enough to work a candymaker stations himself at either end. He holds a common garden spade. Together the two workers turn and turn the hardened sugar until it is white. Then it is packed away in big iron receptacles and covered with heavy wet cloths to keep it from hardening.

This cream is the basis of all the finest grade candies in the market. It is in the manufacture of this cream that dealers have revolutionized methods and brought that of America to the highest standard in the world. Candy is not made in such vast quantities in any other land. The famous confections of the Orient are not to be compared, either in quality or quantity, with those of the United States. Eastern compounds are largely of the nougat order and made in small quantities. Armenian Greeks offer Turkish paste along State street every day for sale. It is turned out in a big cone exactly as it is cooled in the pot. It is sold in slices. It is after this same fashion that the confections of the east are all made. French bonbons do not suit the American palate. They are not distinct flavors as a rule. Instead, they are a conglomeration of flavors so mixed as to make subtle but intangible flavor that can be attributed neither to fruit nor flower.—Chicago Herald.

Improvement of the Race.

A writer in Nineteenth Century, taking the cue of the new impulse to discuss human culture, makes some suggestions under the heading "Homiculture." He believes a good deal could be done by directing public attention to the laws that underlie the improvement of stock. He also urges that before a marriage permit is allowed parties should be compelled to submit to a medical examination, to show that they are not laboring under hereditary diseases. Beyond this he would have the absolute prohibition of habitual criminals from propagating their kind. These suggestions have been to some degree urged before by Darwin, but they are timely. No question is of more importance than the improvement of humanity. We have traced our ills to heredity. Our remedies must correspond. Probably all suggestions at present will be crude and premature; but it is nonsense to suppose an evil exists without a possible cure.—Globe-Democrat.

What Am I To Do?

The symptoms of biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and diarrhea or constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this it not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

The Gatling Gun in 1870-71.

Up to this time we had not seen any Prussians beyond few skirmishers in the plain, though our battery of Gatlings had kept blazing away at nothing in particular all the while; but now an opportunity of its being in use occurred. A column of troops appeared in the valley below us, coming from the right—a mere dark streak upon the white snow, but no one in the battery could tell whether they were friends or foes, and the commander hesitated about opening fire. But now an a-de-camp came dashing down the hill with orders to pound them at once—a French journal, it seems, having discovered them to be enemies, when the general and all his staff were as puzzled as ourselves. Br-r-r-a-g our Gatlings, the deadly hail of bullets crushes into the thick of them, and slowly back into the woods the dark mass retires, leaving, however, a trace of black dots upon the white snow behind it. This, their famous and 4 o'clock effort, and its failure, has decided the day. That one discharge was enough.—London Journal.

Work of a Story Writer.

In beginning to write a story, it is well to have a basis resting upon fact, either in circumstance or personality. For this reason the author should be able to dissect human nature with keen analysis. No trait, no eccentricity, no expression in the broad volume which mankind constantly opens before him should escape his attention, but everything he sees should be stored up as valuable material in his literary laboratory. A fitting combination of individual traits in different persons can be assimilated in one mental creation, although a just consistency must be observed. It is often amusing to an author to find his stories read and discussed by the very persons whom he has embodied in his hero, with never a suspicion, on their part, that their own characteristics have formed a ground work for the interesting fiction.—Virginia G. Elard in The Writer.

Beggars, but No Soap.

Beggary is an epidemic of fearful extent in Spain, but is most noticeable in Castile, where the soil, once so fertile, yields a bare subsistence and where there are no commercial enterprises to employ the idle.

We had heard so much of castile soap that an ardent desire possessed us to invest in a large supply upon its native spot, but the most persistent demands for castile soap failed to produce any, nor could we hear of a factory in Burgos.—Cor. Home Journal.

Departure in Horse Trading.

What is termed "a startling departure in the line of horse trading" is reported from Fall River, where a citizen who has a mare for sale states frankly that her disposition is so sour that she bites herself, and that he would recommend the creature to nobody unaccustomed to horses.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Word to Republicans.

The importance of the results of the present political campaign can not be overestimated by those who desire the success of the Republican party. The Democrats, besides the "Solid South," are, in the North entrenched behind breastworks of public patronage. It will take steady, earnest, and united work to dislodge them. No thing will so surely bring about that steady, earnest, and united work as the circulation of sound political literature, and OF THIS CLASS NO OTHER IS AS EFFICIENT AS THE DAILY AND WEEKLY NEWSPAPER. Speeches and documents are read by the few, and when read are laid aside; the newspaper is the friends friend, the trusted family companion. Its influence is continuous, constant. The Republicans can not aid their party better than by circulating

—The Daily Inter Ocean—
It is a live Republican newspaper, and has been faithful among the faithless in Chicago. No man has ever questioned its soundness on the platform, because the principles of the platform have been advocated by THE INTER OCEAN many years. PROTECTION TO AMERICAN INDUSTRIES AND AMERICAN MARKETS FOR AMERICAN PRODUCERS have been its battle cries from the beginning. It did not take it six weeks to ascertain whether it could stand on the platform or not.

Republicans have done much to aid in the inculcation of false political doctrines by patronizing papers that advocate them. Why should they do so when they can avoid it by subscribing for THE INTER OCEAN, which is acknowledged to be
