A BAD, BAD MAN.

It was in a little hamlet on the Clinch river, Tennessee. There was a general store, in which dry goods, groceries, and dlery, hardware, crockery, meats and whisky were sold in about equal proportions; a blacksmith shop, two houses, a THOS, POLLOCK bridge—and that was an. there are the second the second that was an end the second th bridge-and that was all. When I got up JOHN M LEVDA zling day. Jeffers would not hear of my Joan M LEVDA Berg of District Court, Surveyor. Surveyor. J. C. ELECENDARY ALLEY BERSON ALLEY BERSON ALLEY BERSON

One man had a mule with three shoes off and the fourth one clattering. As he dis-mounted at the blacksmith shop he said to the smith "Bill, I want yer to look at that 'ere mewl."

"I'm a-lookin', Tom," was the complacent reply.

"Do you reckon she'll pull through the winter?"

Bill picked up each foot, squinted at it like a judge sizing up a witness, and pulling off the loose shoe with a twist he spat three times in the direction of his anvil. cocked his hat anew, and gravely remarked:

"Tom, she can't possibly do it-no how can't."

"Shoo! Bill!"

"Can't do it, for shore. Mewls is mewls. If she was a elephant she might, but she's a mewl, an' afore spring them feet will wear off cl'ar up to the jints. Got to hev shoes on, Tom.

"Shool That's what I reckoned. Is shoes cheaper"

"Skeercely." "Shoo! I heard they was. Kin ye make it fo' bits, Bill?"

"Wuth that for iron, Tom. Six bits ar' the lowest.'

"Wall, dod rot her ole yaller hide, I'll see about it afore night! If ye hev a nigger, he wants clothes, an' if ye hev a mewl, he wants shoes, an' he'll take 'ticu lar pains to kick agin every rock he comes It's all wrong, boys, an' sometimes I feel like lettin' myself loose and lickin'

Now. I am going to frankly admit that, as I crossed the street I wanted to take leg bail up or down the street. I'd have given an arm to be cut of it. I didn't run because women and children were watching me, and because to have "liunked" would have been to cover myself with ontempt forever after. But I want to make another statement even more strange. I had no sooner reached shelter than I was seized with a ferocious desire to kill Old Dick. It was as if he had murdered my family and I had trailed him down. I didn't take cover at all, owing to this feeling, but stood at the corner and blazed away and took his bullets in return. But for the whisky in him he would have dropped me. As it was he planted four bullets within a foot of my head, while I put four into the salt bar-rel and the fifth into his right shoulder. We had scarcely finished breakfast | He went down and began to shout, and a strange exultation came to meas I thought I had killed him. The wound, aided by the whisky in his stomach, made the bad old man a baby and he actually cried. We sent off for a doctor and got him fixed up, and when he got his mind back he shook hands with me in the heartiest manner and laughingly said: "Yank, I wouldn't hev believed it. It's the first time in twenty years I've bin downed, an' I feel shuckless about it." "But you drove me to it."

"Reckon I did. Lor', but what nerve ye hev got! Never saw a feller so steady under fire. Shake again, and I want ye to cum up and stay a week with me."

I did put in three days with him, and during that time I was the one who dressed his wound. Quite a number of people called to hear about it, and in each case Mrs. Trasker introduced me with: "Stranger from the no'th, an' he'un is the one who downed my old Dick in a fair fout."-M. Quad in Detroit Free Press.

Use of Concentrated Foods.

Concentrated foods, which contain an excess of starch with too little of the other ingredients found in wheat, lead to torpor and atrophy of the bowels, and sooner or later there is actual disease. Constipation and rectal disorders are fast becoming national infirmities; and wherever these prevail (especially the first named), you may look for what are called nervous diseases and brain affectionsthese, later, verging toward insanity; and following this class of maladies, or in connection with them, we shall find paralytic diseases. Now there is really no need of all this train of physical ills; we bring these troubles upon ourselves. Nature has given us healthful food products, and in great abundance; but if we convert these blessings into just the opposite, we have only ourselves to blame.

Another foolish idea that many main-who guided a party of refugees over the mountains into Kentucky, when a great clatter was heard out doors, and somebody said that old Dick Trasker had "arriv." Next moment he came in. He was a man 58 years old six feet high. weighed 200 pounds, and was the specimen had man of the four counties. didn't look it. He had a smile on his face, large blue eyes, and a child would have gone to him in preference to any other man in the store. But, if he didn't look it, he acted It. His first movement was to drink a common tumbler even full of moonshine whisky. As he sat the glass down he wiped his mouth on the back of his hand, surveyed each one of us in turn. and finally growled:

"A cursed mean day." One or two replied, but all others were silent. Old Dick was in ugly mood, armed with knife and revolver, and was evidently looking for a victim. Not another man was armed, and there was the display of nerve which those mountain men are celebrated for. Not a man attempted to flatter or conciliate. Not a man attempted to sneak out doors. They were helpless, to a certain extent, but were as cool as icicles.

Old Dick called for and put down two more drinks, and each one of them large mough to befuddle a weak man in five minutes. While he had his back to the crowd Jeffers whispered to me: "Look out for him. Ar' ye heeled?"

"Yes. I have my revolver." "Then git the drop on him! Plug him right through the head or heart!" "But, heavens man, I can't shoot a person down that way. He hasn't even spoken to me vet. "Wall keep your eye on him, and if he makes a move let him have it." I began to figure. I began to add up the wealth of the Asters, Vanderbilts, Goulds and Knickerboekers, and feel that I would give every dollar of it to be ten miles away I had just added the wealth of California, and reduced the ten miles to five, when old Dick pulled his gun and fired six shots around the store at various objects, at the same time uttering six blood curdling war whoops. Not a man moved. He slowly reloaded the revolver, and singled me out and came forward with extended paw. "Howdy?" he growled. "I'm cribbins, thank you."

"I'm Old Dick-bad man."

"Yes." "Bad, very bad."

"Yes." "Kin ye fout?"

"No

"That's bad. Bad kentry fur a Quaker. I'll learn ye." "Say. Dick," remarked one of the men, "he'un hain't one of us. He'un's a stranger from the no'th." "Jim, you shet!" replied the bad man. "I'm going to learn he'un how to fout. He bain't no good if he can't."

Three or four men winked at me to humor the old man, and when he asked if I

"Nuthin but a squibl" he grunted in contempt. "That there couldn't send a brain was still fairly clear. "Now then," he said to me, "you go tain is that there is more actual nutrition in meat (the flesh of animals) than there is in grains. Never was there a greater mistake. Turn to any reliable table giving the analysis of foods and you will see that the figures stand the other way; there being three or four times the amount of nutritive substance in wheat, rye, oats, corn and barley than there is in the best beef or mutton. Dried beans and peas are far more nutritious than any of the meats. (See Payen and other standard authorities.) Were illustrations needed, we have all the peasantry of the Old World to refer to. Who does not know that the hard workers the world over live upon a diet from which meat is practically excluded? It is true in Asia, it is true in Europe. More hard, muscular labor can be gotten out of a piece of oat cake, a bit of unleavened wheat meal bread, or even the southern hoe cake, than out of twice that amount of beef, pork or mutton .- Susanna W. Dodds, M. D.; in Demorest's Monthly.

Religion of the Roumanians.

The religion of the Roumanians is a mass of superstitions, which under the name of Christianity dominates their entire existence. Indeed, one author has said: "The whole life of a Wallach is taken up in devising talamans against the devil." A Boumanian uncovers his head on passing a wayaido cross, but he makes an equally deep salutation to the rising sun: he goes to church on Sunday, but it is doubtful whether he does not regard Friday, which is dedicated to Venus. as the holier day of the two. The orthodox Roumanian regards any one whe buries a corpse without placing a coin in the hand as a pagan. The Roumanian churches in contrast with the cold, bace looking churches of the Saxons, present a most attractive appearance, for they are covered with artistic decorations, and are | ing goods. a mass of soft, warm coloring. "Not a corner," says Mrs. Gerard, "but from which starts up some grinning devil, not a nook but reveals some choleric looking saint, till we feel ourselves to be surrounded by a whole pageant of celes-tial and diabolical beings, only distinguishable from one another by the respective fashions of their headgear, horns or halo, as the case may be. These horned devils play a very important part in every Roumanian church, where usually a large portion of the walls is given up to repre-sentations of the place of eternal punishment. The poor Roumanian peasant, whose life is often so wretched and struggling as hardly to deserve that name, seems to derive considerable consolation from anticipation of the day when the tables are to be turned and the hitherto despised poor shall receive an eternal crown."-New York Sun Book

The handwriting of English literary men being under consideration, it is said that Andrew Lang writes a peculiar, but not illegible, hand; Swinburne's was curiously schoolboyish, but perfectly legi ble. Matthew Arnold's was lucidity itself; Mr. Ruskin's is pretty and plain; Sir Edward Arnold's is also very plain; John Morley's is difficult at first, but easily got acquainted with; Labouchere's is pretty bad; T. P. O'Connor's is rather rough, but easy to read; Frederick Greenwood's is
