CITY CORDIALS.

Go and see Monte Cristo at the opera house tonight.

Dr. T. P. Livingston, who was confined to his bed for several days, from an attack of tonsillitis, is convalescent at present and able to attend to business once more, we are pleased to report.

W. J. McGarigle, formerly chief of police of Chicago, but now a fugitive from American justice, attended the opening of the Legislative Assembly at Regina last week.—Petrolia, Ont., Topic.

Mr. Mart Cushing, who went to Wymore to accept a run from there to Concord, has returned to this city. The position was not as satisfactory as the one awaiting him here, so he has returned to reside in Plattsmouth permanently.

Keough, who was arrested several weeks ago with Charles Ellis and been confined in the jail ever since, for highway robbery, is standing his trial today at the district court, before Judge Chapman.

This week new rules regarding working hours at the shops came into effect. The employees are only to work nine hours during the winter months. Work is suspended every evening at 5 o'clock.

Plattsmouth was awake while Nebraska City slept, and scored a sensation. A dead eagle is an evidence of the imaginative thrift of the residents. From eerie heights they tip a beaker to their southern neighbor.—Omaha Herald.

Mrs. Celia Smith and Mrs. Anderson, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. Jas. Patterson, Jr., for a few days, went to Omaha last night by the K. C., where Mrs. Smith resides. Mrs. Anderson will return to this city after a few days, visit with relatives at the metropolis.

The following hint to wives who have brutes for husbands appeared in the Salem (Mass.) Observer of April 24, 1887: "A woman in New York who had been beaten by her husband finding him fast asleep sewed him up in the bedclothes, and in that situation thrashed him soundly."

Since Cleveland's defeat and the Mills bill has been thrown out, Mr. W. J. Warrick, an enterprising druggist and bookseller of the city, has concluded that to purchase wool is a paying investment, and purchased two large sheep from the Chicago market, which he has on exhibition at his store. They will produce a good crop of wool.

An erroneous item appeared in the Omaha Herald this morning as a production from their Plattsmouth correspondent. We must certainly say it has done a great injustice to the school teachers whose names are brought forth, and only over a trivial matter which all right thinking people will consider their duty. Miss Safford, a teacher in the high school has a boy under her charge, known as Baby Woodson, son of Mr. Fred Woodson, proprietor of the Cottage House. It is said that the boy has been unruly for some time, and Tuesday afternoon, he was requested to write a few words on his slate after school hours, as a penalty for misconduct during school hours. After school he refused to write, as the teacher requested, and showed signs of contrariness, when Miss Safford called Prof. Chaburn to her aid. He also asked the boy to do the work, but the answer came: "I won't." Every means were used to persuade the boy to obey before he was whipped. When the principal whipped him only leniently, he then asked him if he would mind, but the boy exhibited as much stubbornness as at first. Mr. Chaburn then told him he would whip him until he would obey, but he still continued to act contrary and boldly told him he would not. He was then whipped until he was willing to do his work. If the child had been sent home as some people think he should have been, for punishment, the father would no doubt have gone to the teacher and informed her, as he did once before, that he sent his boy to school and left him for her to manage. We learned that he went to the school room shortly after the boy had been dismissed, finding Miss Safford there, but the principal absent. After he had questioned her concerning the matter, he endorsed her actions. Since then he has changed his mind and is bent on prosecuting the teachers, and from all appearances he has been urged into this procedure by some professional men who are short of funds and are endeavoring to secure a few dollars in this way. Prof. Chaburn was summoned to appear for trial yesterday afternoon, which he did, but the case has been continued until December 8. As for the boy being seriously hurt, as has been reported, it is untrue, for he has been on the streets as usual since.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[Correspondence of a mild nature we are pleased to receive at this office, but the following shows a warlike face, and we trust the two parties may settle the matter without making this paper an instrument in their affairs.]

A Much Meaner Man.

Readers of the HERALD no doubt noticed the article headed "A Mighty Mean man." I think I can bring forward a meaner. What do people think of a man who will move into a house that has been leased by another, after he has been told by the owner of the house that she does not want him for a tenant? About a week ago in coming home I noticed a paper lying in front of my door, and thinking it was an advertisement, such as is often thrown around, I picked it up and after I got into the house I found it was the HERALD and supposed it belonged to a certain man who has in past time done the dirty work for the sheriff and thinks he can bulldoze everyone, and as he had done a dirty underhanded trick to me in moving into a house legally leased by me, I did not think it necessary to put myself about to fire the paper out as I found it on my property. My hired girl also picked the paper up one evening as she was a stranger and supposed it belonged to me. If the party I have spoken of says it was taken often by either myself or any of my people, he is a "liar". This occurred, as I have said, about a week ago, and yesterday he had to appear in court and give bonds for rent to get a postponement of the case, as I have sued for possession of the house. Seeing that he can't bulldoze me into allowing him to remain in the house, he makes a scurrilous attack on me in the columns of the HERALD, but I think he has fired wide of the mark, as anyone acquainted with the facts of the case can easily see that it is all done through spite. Jas. M. Mum.

Monte Cristo in Omaha.

At the Grand opera house last night Aiden Benedict opened in "Monte Cristo" in a big house. Mr. Benedict plays a dramatization of his own which is in many respects superior to that of James O'Neil, who has made the play familiar to Omaha theatre-goers. Especially is this true in the climax of the third act, in which Mr. Benedict makes a lightning change from the priest to the old Jew. This is one of his disguises assumed for the purpose of throwing Messier De Villeport off his track. Then he discards the disguise of the ancient Hebrew and stands as the Edmond Dantes of the first act, which makes De Villeport's recognition of him more reasonable. The actor was called before the curtain at the end of this act, also at the end of the second. As a melodramatic actor Mr. Benedict has few superiors on the American stage. His readings showed power and intelligence. He was well supported by Miss Francis Field, who in the fourth act, astonished those of her friends who had known her long in this city and had predicted great things of her. She is unquestionably one of the coming leading women of this country. The remainder of the cast was good, and the scenic and mechanical effects were splendid. The play will be given again this evening for the last time.—Omaha Herald.

Adien Benedict will appear at the Waterman opera house tonight as Monte Cristo. He makes a guarantee that all will be satisfied with the performance in every particular, so that all should feel safe in attending. Seats on sale at the usual place.

A petition is in circulation today, already numerously signed, to be presented to the city fathers at their next meeting, praying them to pass an ordinance compelling property owners to fill the creek now running along Pearl street, as the stagnant water with which the ditch is filled would soon produce a stench such as would terminate in a contagion.

The person who furnishes items to the newspaper is always a valuable friend to the editor. Many friends hesitate about sending personal notes to the newspaper regarding the movements of friends, lest the newspaper man should think them too anxious to see their names in print. He will think nothing of the kind, but, on the contrary, he is glad to get such notes. Many seemingly unimportant items, when printed are news to a large number of readers.

The pavers succeeded last evening in making the connecting link, as it were, between the two portions of pavement meeting at Fifth street. This has been the desire of many for some time, as the street has been in an impassable condition for a long time. It is hoped that the work of paving Sixth street will soon be commenced and pushed through before the first lights upon the work and prevents its progress.

Warren Wheeler, five year old son of traveling engineer Wheeler, of the B. & M., swallowed a buckshot last night, and has been very sick ever since from the effects. He was playing with some boys when one of his playmates gave him the shot, when he immediately put it in his mouth and accidentally swallowed it.
