CITY CORDIALS.

Hot Tea Free tomorrow. "You" are a thousand times welcome—at The Tea Store.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Turner, yesterday morning, a girl, of the usual weight.

No business worthy of special mention was transacted at the county court session this morning.

Grandma Todd, of Plattsmouth, is spending a few weeks in this vicinity visiting relatives.—Louisville Observer.

Mr. G. W. Turner's passing around the cigars to his friends, celebrating the arrival of a daughter at his house yesterday.

All a man needs to do is to "stand in" with the gang at Plattsmouth when he wants a public office.—Louisville, chronic, Observer.

The case of Buzz II vs. John Kennedy, which was continued until this term of court, has again been continued until the next term of court.

Mr. Wiley Black, a prominent stock dealer of this city, after buying a car load of hogs, shipped them to South Omaha yesterday. The hogs out-weighed any car load sold there this fall.

The trial of Patrick Moore, of Weeping Water, who was arrested for robbery some time ago, was set for today, but as the prisoner is sick, the case has been continued until Wednesday next.

Tax jury which was sent out yesterday on the case of Charles Ellis, who was on trial for highway robbery, has not yet returned a verdict. County attorney prosecuting and J. B. Strode defending.

The Nebraska City school teachers are following the example shown them by the Plattsmouth teachers, and we believe some of them are now laboring under as many difficulties. We sympathize with them.

Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F. held their regular meeting on Wednesday night last. Several new members were admitted to the order. It was decided by the members to give an open concert at Fitzgerald hall on Thursday evening next, Thanksgiving night.

Coon, of Weeping Water, who was arrested a short time ago for selling liquor without license, and who has been residing at the "Bird Palace" here ever since, was before Judge Chapman yesterday and sentenced to thirty days imprisonment in the county jail.

Oswald Gutman of this city, seems to have a warm spot in his breast for his first love—Plattsmouth. He said that he would rather lose the president of the United States than to have Weeping Water secure the county seat.—Louisville Observer. Why don't he come and live with his friends?

The Y. M. C. A. bible study class will meet next Tuesday evening. The meeting for next week is changed to Tuesday on account of Thanksgiving day being Thursday. Every Christian young man in Plattsmouth should join and meet with this class, for the meetings are interesting and profitable.

The marriage storm of a couple of weeks ago has entirely subsided, and a perfect calm rests upon the young people of this city at present. The most perfect calm often occur just before a storm, and we are under the impression that another one is brewing. "God help the men who are at sea this year."

One of the witnesses who appeared yesterday before Judge Chapman, became somewhat anxious over the recompense he was to receive for the time he spent in court. The poor fellow was so overcome with anxiety that he broke forth at the judge: "Look-a-hear, judge, do you reckon we'll get the fees when the county 'missionaries' meet?" The commissioners may have something to do in the matter, but they should stop his pay.

S. & C. Mayer have completed the work of removing their stock to the new store room in the Carruth block. Every convenience for a clothing store has been designed by Mr. Mayer, who is thoroughly posted in that line of business. Although an extension has been made and the storeroom is the largest in the city, it only affords them room for the immense stock of clothing and gents' furnishings.

Daniel O'Neil, of Weeping Water, was brought to the city yesterday and lodged in jail here, as a lunatic. The man evidently became as crazy as he is, from excessive drinking, and the main affliction is "jim jams." Sheriff Eikenberry while conversing with him yesterday afternoon, asked him what was the matter with him. He answered that he could see a mob of Weeping Water men following him and that they were about to compel him to vote. The Weeping Water men were about to go to the polls.

The Sons of Veterans are making preparations for a grand masquerade ball which they intend to give on the 13th of next month at Fitzgerald hall.

Mr. Mart Noble, an employe at the round house of the B. & M. shops, lost the index finger of his left hand while at work on Wednesday. While trying to wrench a nut on some machinery, the wrench slipped, and his hand struck a sharp piece of iron, severing the finger as slick as though cut by a knife.

The democratic office holders are bound to enjoy their few remaining months as servants of the government just as much as they can. The postmaster at Plattsmouth is keeping up with the procession bravely. He has moved his office to the Anheuser-Busch beer emporium.—Lincoln Journal. We believe he is wise for so doing.

The funeral of the late Jerry Daniler will occur tomorrow (Saturday) morning, at 9 o'clock, at the residence of his parents. Services will be held at the Catholic church, before the burial. The corpse is expected to arrive this evening, and it will be placed in charge of the A. O. H., of which he was a member during his residence here.

A much degraded character who has been popular here for years as "Jack" Murray, died last night in jail while standing upright with his hands firmly gripped on the iron bars of the cage in which he was confined, and while conversing with his fellow prisoners. He had been on a spree for several weeks, the first time in a year, as he had reformed and resolved to keep straight. The excessive drinking which he had indulged in for the past two weeks brought on delirium tremens, and his constitution could not endure the attack. He slept in the doorways some of the coldest nights and it is thought that hastened his death. Coroner Boeck has embalmed the body which will be kept until Sunday. The burial ceremonies will be under the direction of the K. of L. His father is said to be wealthy, and lives in Canada.

One of the best companies which have visited the city this season played to the smallest house yet seen in the opera house this fall. Aiden Benedict, an Edmund Dantes, won the admiration of all, and can be termed a rival of O'Neil, who has been recognized as the star among stars in the play, "Monte Cristo." We fail to see how any person could leave the opera house disappointed after witnessing as grand a production. Considering the disadvantage the company labored under, playing to a very small house, we must say that the performance much surpassed our expectations, and we think they are safe in making the guarantee they do. No one called at the office and demanded their money that we have yet heard of, and we do not think they could do so with a clear conscience. The costumes were elegant, and the entire performance the most classical. The stars were called out several times. Should they return to Plattsmouth we can safely say that they will be better patronized, as many who attended last evening have stated that they would surely attend tonight had they remained a second night.

At the district court yesterday the authorities found the jury short, and the deputy sheriff started out in search of victims. The door opposite Rockwood hall was opened by the deputy, and the first man he met was a reporter. He invited him to the hallway, and upon the reporter's arrival there, the door of the court room was opened and he was hustled inside, without any ceremony, and the door barred on him. A highway robber was on trial at the time and a witness who was on the stand was questioned as follows: "Did you read the articles in the newspapers concerning the robbery?" Witness—"Yes." "Did you form any reliable opinion from what you read?" Witness—"No, the papers were not reliable during the campaign." The reporter looked on that speech as a providential act, knowing that they would not accept an unreliable man to act as jurymen. The thought that he would not be obliged to listen to the parley of lawyers for a whole day and then be locked in a room for three nights without any nourishment, as a penalty, was as good as a feast. He then pursued his work with a light heart.

A new and peculiar disease has made its appearance here. Our local physicians say nothing like it is mentioned in any of the medical works. Its only victim, one Howard, calls it "exaggeration of the brain". It is superinduced by a local external application of a billiard cue and does not appear to be contagious.
