CITY CORDIALS.

—Mrs. T. Kempster presented her husband with a young son last Thursday.

—Men are but the whiskers on the chestnut known as life.—Lincoln Journal.

—A newly established paper in N. W. Jersey is called the Tongue. It is probably edited by a woman.—Lincoln Journal.

—Judge Russell issued a marriage license yesterday to Mr. John Buckingham and Mrs. Clara Kruger, both of Weeping Water.

—Wonder what the manager of the orchestra has against the Herald, the city, the manager of the opera house, himself and everybody?

—Richley Bros. have moved a boiler and engine into their lumber yard, and from all appearances they intend to do their work by steam in the future.

—Manager Young telephoned to F. B. Rhodes, manager of "Andrews Opera Co.," at Nebraska City last night, and was informed by him that they had to put out a sign, "Standing Room Only," before 8 o'clock, and all the seats sold for Saturday (tonight) and he hoped he could say as much for Plattsmouth when they arrived here next Thursday.

—The authorities should have a word to say to the large crowds of young men who assemble in the post office every evening while the mails are being distributed, and spit tobacco juice on the floor by the gallon as ladies pass by, and fill the room with smoke. They should be compelled to desist, as no lady desires to pass such a crowd and listen to their foul mouthed expressions, which they take no caution to hush up in the presence of any lady. The postmaster is doing what he can to put a stop to these unmanly actions, and the sooner the matter is followed up, the better.

—It is reported that No. 5 going west this morning, was being switched at Malvern. A locomotive and an empty car were standing on the track, and the train was coming so rapidly that the engineer on the first engine, fearing a collision, opened the throttle and jumper off. The coach was struck and knocked out of place, being turned half way on the tracks. The front engine was under a full head of steam started forward. As the coach passed all posts, standing near the track were broken off. When the bridge between Malvern and Glenwood was reached, the car came in contact with the trestle work, and smashed things up so badly that trains were delayed for several hours today.

—The remains of the late Jerry Danher arrived here last night from Carlin, Nevada. They were accompanied by his wife and brother, Patrick. The body was conveyed to his parents' residence, Granite street, to await the obsequies. This morning a large number of friends gathered at the home to take a look at their deceased friend, but as nearly week has passed since his death, the casket was not opened. Every face in the sad home was moistened with tears and the assemblage on a whole presented a very affecting scene. The parents and other relatives were about overcome with grief, and his wife, who clung to the casket which contained her whole affection, apparently had lost all hope of any future brightness, and moaned as though her heart would break. A sadder scene could not be pictured—his relatives here, who have not seen him for years, could not look upon his face then, and the thought was a very severe blow to all. A large number of the A. O. H., of which he was a member, gathered at his home to pay him the last tributes of respect, and they followed the hearse in the procession. The remains were conveyed to the Catholic church about 9:30, where high requiem mass was held, after which the procession moved to Oak Hill cemetery, west of the city, where internment took place. He was not shot, as was first reported, but he came to his death by inflammation of the bowels, and he

THE ANDREWS OPERA COMPANY

On Wheels—This Standard Company With its Old Excellencies. Reinforced by a Superb Chorus, to Visit the Leading Cities in the West in Their Beautiful and Homelike Buffet Sleeping Car, the "Florence."

On one of the side tracks in the Milwaukee yards stands the queenly palace sleeper, "Florence," beautifully illuminated along its sides with landscapes and flower pieces, and bearing on either side in heavy embossed letters of gilt, the legend, "The Andrews Opera Company." Within this moving home of one of the oldest and most popular musical organizations in the country is found every convenience known to modern car building. The "Florence" is the property in fee simple of the company, and the latest evidence of its merited prosperity. At one end is the office of the business manager; the centre of the car is occupied by state rooms, and a spacious drawing room elegantly fitted, while the farther end is fitted with a complete kitchen where a white aproned Ethiopian presides over range and butchery. Thus all the chances of annoyances experienced by theatrical people among hotels are avoided, and a social and domestic life made possible not otherwise enjoyed.

The Andrews Opera company is a historical organization. It was born, and has grown and prospered with that young giantess, "The New Northwest." The Andrews Concert company took the road in 1874. In 1876 the well known Andrews Family bellringers were organized and made several successful tours. It was from these beginnings that the Andrews Opera company was evolved, the idea of that gifted musical family having all along been to advance to the higher plane of opera which they now occupy. Their aim has been legitimate opera, and in the splendid company including over thirty people now with them, this dream is realized. As public educators of refined musical taste the Andrews Opera company have rendered a valuable service. "Excellence" has been their motto, and today the name "Andrews" is the most valuable musical trade mark in the west.

There is nothing labored about their efforts, however. Light opera meets the popular demand, and surely there's enough life, love and laughter in their repertoire to satisfy all reasonable demands.

This company will appear in the "Mascott" at the Waterman Thursday (Thanksgiving) night Nov. 29.

"The Plattsmouth Orchestra."

Since the worthy leader of "our orchestra," has opened fire upon us in our local contemporary, when no direct reference has been made to the would-be musicians in the columns of this paper, it behooves us to take advantage of such an excellent opportunity to express our opinion concerning the opera house orchestra. As the father of the article which appeared, stated, when the orchestra was organized, the HERALD lent them an assisting hand several times, and nothing has been thrown out in any shape resembling a slur until the day following the Murray and Murphy performance. The only statement then made was while making reference to their orchestra we said: "We were enabled to hear a little music between acts, which is seldom our privilege." If theatre-goers were afforded the pleasure of hearing one harmonious strain among one continued blast of discords and breaks, that one little strain would be recognized with as much appreciation as would an oasis in a desert to a thirsty and fatigued traveler who had about succumbed. If the leader would select music for his orchestra such as could be touched by them, the public would appreciate it, but their past efforts remind one of a poodle dog trying to carry an elephant, as a comparison. Our advice to them would be for them to play such pieces of music as would be within their reach, and during their idle moments this season, practice the music they are now practicing on for the benefit of the public, for the coming season. The leader guaranteed the manager to fill his opera house and inform him that their influence upon the public would draw a full house every time, but we have as yet failed to see the crowds enlarge, but on the contrary, they have been falling short for some time. If the leader would give his orchestra the same piece of music to play each time until they master it, it certainly would be much more appreciated than half a dozen or so and no music at all, and get the instruments in tune once to see what a good, solid chord sounds like. Our advice to them is: Play something you can handle and the people will not stuff cotton battin in their ears as some of them do now when you play.

The Gospel Meetings held every Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. rooms are growing in interest, last Sunday there being the largest attendance since moving into the new rooms, which proves our young men know a good thing when they see it. Mr. D. A. Campbell, Prof. Chastown, John A. Davies, and Mr. H. F. Chapin, are organizing a Literary Society to meet at the parlors one night in the week. This will be quite an attraction this winter for the young men. All young men who are interested in such an enterprise should call on the above named gentlemen or the secretary at the rooms. The young men are trying to have a larger attendance tomorrow than last Sunday, although that was the largest yet. Full orchestra tomorrow; at 3:45, commences a fifteen minute song service, preceeding the regular meeting.
