CITY CORDIALS.

The mother of the Peterson brothers, who fell down a cellar stairs several weeks ago, is able to move around on crutches.

Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F., will serve meals tomorrow in the store-room formerly occupied by S. & C. Mayer, opera house building.

Mr. Ed Streight of the county treasurer's office, has been confined to his home for the past few days. He is threatened with an attack of fever.

The Herald will not be published tomorrow. We will join our patrons in giving thanks. Let the Journal do the same, and many will rejoice.

A new play is billed in the city for Saturday evening next, at Fitzgerald hall. "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is the name of the play. This new play draws crowded houses wherever presented.

As tomorrow will be a holiday, and Mr. Sherman will have a day off, we consider it a splendid opportunity for him to fulfill his contract made on the result of the election. There is a block on Main street already for him.

Rebekah Lodge, I. O. O. F., will give a dinner and supper tomorrow (Thanks giving day) in the opera house building, in the vacant store-room formerly occupied by S. & C. Mayer. Oysters will also be served. Twenty-five cents will be charged for each meal and the same for oysters.

The Journal predicted a short life for the Herald when it came to the front as a daily—the time allotted being three weeks. At the end of that time, when we were still flourishing, Mr. Sherman gave us a prolonged life of one year, but we are still surviving. We are now awaiting his pleasure to receive another sentence.

Riggins Bros., who have recently opened up a butcher shop on Main street in the stand formerly occupied by Mr. Fickler, made the Herald a present of a very fine turkey yesterday. It was one of the largest brought to the city this fall, and should they happen along tomorrow noon they will find the recipients giving thanks for their fine present.

Prof. F. Beflach, the noted Bohemian mimic and ventriloquist, gave a grand ball and entertainment at Fitzgerald hall last night. The professor owns a very fine instrument of foreign manufacture, which imitates a brass band, and makes the most desirable dance music. The entertainment given before the dance was of miniature character and very amusing.

Tomorrow will be a day of thanksgiving, and the publication of the Herald will be suspended. The printers and editors are anxious to give thanks for their lives during the year past, and for the small number of cursings from the enraged men who were struck in the eye by disagreeable items. We could relate many hair breadth adventures and narrow escapes from an untimely death, but we will be more contented to give thanks.

An entertainment for the benefit of the Sunday school library will be given in the Presbyterian church on Friday evening of this week. A very good program has been prepared, consisting of solos, duets, quartets, recitations, select readings &c. The small sum of 10 cents will be charged at the door, and it is hoped the house will be filled, as it is an object worthy of patronage. The program will appear Friday. Everybody is welcome.

Wm. E. Paul, who acted as agent for the Metropolitan Manufacturing company here a few months, selling household goods on installments, and who rented the room now occupied by Mr. Ed Threlkeld, as a storeroom, was arrested at Seward for embezzling $75 of the company's money. He was brought to the city this morning by constable Beach, of Lincoln, and placed in charge of Sheriff Eikenbary. He is now confined in the county jail here awaiting trial.

Remember the Andrews Opera Company which will be at the opera house tomorrow night. This opera company has received the most favorable press commendations from all cities of this vicinity where they have appeared. This being the first opera of the season and the first benefit yet tendered. Mr. J. P. Young, manager of the opera house, there should be a bumper house. Tickets are going rapidly and before tomorrow evening it is expected that every reserved seat will be sold, so secure your seats early. The popular opera "La Mascotte" will be presented.

Under the Hat, or the Terrors of Wild Life.

It was on a calm bright morning at the close of November 1888, that a peaceful farmer on the banks of the romantic Platte, that miniature river, which irrigates one of the loveliest parts of Cass county, became the scene of an excitement unusual to the locality in which it occurred, and quite foreign to the homely and unwarlike dispositions of the dwellers in that secluded and hitherto undisturbed region. The time had been, when the lowing of cattle, the quacking of ducks, or the sound of the busy flail, thrashing the grain, were the only noises which occurred to break the calm repose which brooded o'er its banks; but a sudden change came over that region when Capt. W. D. Jones, Col. Ammi Todd, Lieut. Jessie Bieley and private in the rear rank O. P. Smith, entered that lonely spot called Cedar Island after a hard tussle with a tug boat which they dragged for a full half mile hunting for water to reach that lonely spot which is inhabited only with bears, wild cats and deer. At the sound of our iron nerve Capt. Jones' voice, the order was given to fall in line like rows of corn, and to shoot nothing but the pure and innocent deer, and to let wild cats, bears and all other game pass us all unharmed, and when the sound of our trusty guns was heard we could distinguish what game had been the victim of our well tried guns. One would think to see us as we crept through the bush and bramble, that Spotted Tail or Sitting Bull was in our civilized country. After wearing out the knees of our pants and scratching our eyes almost out, we reached the end of that lonely spot. Not a shot was fired, not a life was lost; but our company was somewhat disfigured. As we emerged from the brush we heard our captain's voice which told us of a discovery he had made. It was the last resting place of a deer or Barnum's home; horse. As we tracked the animal across the rippling stream, we could almost smell venison frying. Our captain who was leading the van came to a stop in the middle of the stream—his eye caught sight of the supposed deer. As it was a long range shot he called his high private from the rear rank who carried one of those good old Winchester, the bullets of which was soaked in salt water in order that the game might not spoil before we reached the fatal spot; but, before the deadly shot was fired, our captain made out the supposed deer to be the frame work of a well developed cow, whose life was spared on account of its docility. To give a full history of our hunt and the hardships we encountered would be impossible to imagine, suffice to say it was a blood-curdling experience. We at last reached home with a solemn vow to place our guns in a second hand store for sale. Parties who wish to make up a deer hunt can gain some very valuable information of Col. Todd, providing they will keep it under their hat. To be continued in the next annual hunt. Yours under the hat. ADAM HORS.

Thanksgiving Day.

Tomorrow will be a day of thanksgiving and praise, and the people of this state and this great nation, have abundant reason to be thankful for the cause to feel grateful on this sacred day. No season has been more profitable to the toilers of Nebraska than this, and all recognize the fact that it is their duty to give thanks to Him, who hath given us our health, daily bread, peace and a prosperous harvest to the husbandmen. Every business house in the city should be closed tomorrow, if for the first time in the year, and the day held sacred as one for thanksgiving. Churches of the city will be open in the morning to those who wish to assemble and offer up prayer to the Almighty. Let the day not be broken into by a few, but let the general public recognize it.
