SECOND YEAR

PLATTSMOUTH, NEBRASKA, MONDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 3, 1888.

NUMBER 69.

A Wife Beater.

A woman, accompanied by two small children, was seen upon the streets last Saturday night with a shawl over her head and apparently freezing, as she was very thinly clad. The reporter noticing that the woman was in distress, asked her to explain her trouble. She informed him that her husband's name was Henry Jones, and that he works on the streets here as a teamster. She also said that for the past twenty years he has treated her shamefully, beating her severely at times, and she only left the house at that time because he had pulled off his coat and was about to beat her again. She has endeavored, to the best of her ability, to support her children and clothe them. She has worked like a slave for years, and endured the abuse as long as possible. She was requested to interview the police, which she did. She then asked them to go to her home and talk with her husband. They urged her to file a complaint, promising her that they would arrest the man as soon as possible. She refused to do so, for the reason, she said, that she had respect for the children and did not want the trouble brought into court. This same man is said to have lived in the city for years, and at the last election voted for the removal of the county seat to Weeping Water. If the woman's statement be true, the man should be treated accordingly.

Out of a Job.

Quibley—"Sav, Pat, what's the best thing for us fellers to do now? We're both out of a job now since the sewer work's done.

Pat—"Be jappers, Quibley, I dunna. The situation's a devil of a tough wan. The only thing for us to do now is to get a petition and join the crowd of aspirants for the postoffice.

—Three empty freight cars were thrown from the track over the river bank into a dilapidated heap immediately north of the B. & M. depot, late Saturday night. A fly switch was being made and the cars were running rapidly when a brake beam of one of them dropped to one side of one of the cars. The beam worked as a pry and hoisted the car from the trucks, leaving them stand on the track and sending the car plunging over the bank. Two other cars which were coupled to that were pulled with it.

—W. D. Hubbard, state master workman and Geo. H. Powers, state statistician will deliver lectures to assemblies 8,532 and 9,495, K. of L. at their hall tonight at 7:30. The same gentlemen will hold a public meeting tomorrow evening at the same place. Everybody is invited.

—Don't forget the rehearsal for the District School entertainment, this evening, at the G. A. R. Hall. All persons expecting to take part are urged to be present.

We breakfasted on a bit of chocolate cake and a sip of wine and a rank and rough cigar, and after a toilsome march, broken by the chance that the telegraph wagons happened to be going our way a few miles, we reached Gorze some minutes after 10 o'clock, and saw a Frenchman hanging by the neck beside a well, his breast torn by rifle shots—a ghastly spectacle, to warn the people that they must not pollute the water to prevent the German soldiers from drinking it. We pushed on, a shade sickened by an object so repulsive. A beautiful bronze figure of an angel, the signal of the establishment of a benevolent sisterhood, appeared above low trees on the right. There was a remote rattle of musketry in the same direction, and occasionally the grumbling, beyond wooded hills, of cannon.—Murat Halstead
