CITY CORDIALS.

The district school will open tonight if all others are closed until after holidays.
—See Mrs. Hawthorn at the opera house this evening in a costume of fifty years ago.
—Two keys attached to a key ring were left at this office. The owner can have same by calling at this office.
—Two weeks in the future will land us near a Christmas turkey. A death sentence has already been passed on many.
—Renew your youth, by attending the Old Fashioned District School this evening and tomorrow evening at the opera house.
—"Snow" is used as a substitute for "Rats," "Chestnuts," "In the Soup," and such expressions, by the street paraders today.
—The cold wave flag was hoisted today impromptu. If this snow would suddenly turn to a mild rain, the flag would no doubt drop.
—The regular meeting of the council was not held last night, as a quorum could not be secured owing to sickness of several of the members.
—The following cases are occupying the courts today: Buster vs. Missouri Pacific for killing a mule; Sharp vs. Mo. Pacific for wages; Street Railroad vs. W. H. Pickens.
—The Sons of Veterans will give a masquerade ball on the evening of the 13th, in Fitzgerald's hall. They are making great preparations and a lively time is expected.
—The school board has not yet decided on the date for reopening the schools. Diphtheria is as prevalent as at any time yet, and it is supposed that all schools will remain closed till after the holidays.
—A confectionary and fruit store has been opened up in the building owned by Capt. Palmer, on lower Main street. It will be known as the "Christmas Fair," and will be under the management of Mr. Philip Kraus. Mr. S. P. Kersch, of St. Louis, will act as clerk.
—Mr. F. Corsey, formerly foreman in the canning factory of Mr. P. Carruth, is now successor to Mr. Busch at the city water works pump house and in the city. Although the position is a responsible one and a trying one, yet we believe Mr. Corsey will, to the best of his ability, fill the bill. We are sorry to lose Mr. Busch as he proved himself during his stay here, a valuable citizen.
—Yesterday the report was circulated that the wife of Mr. W. J. Warrick was sick with diphtheria and not expected to live. We are glad to know that the rumor was false and that she has entirely recovered from her siege of sickness. She and two younger children who were afflicted with diphtheria a short time ago, were all convalescent at the time of the death of the little girl.
—A partially powdered face in the post-office which the reporter was obliged to gaze upon this morning nearly startled him at first thought. It reminded him of a lively Egyptian mummy's head floating around in the air, and the second time he looked he thought of a wall partially whitewashed, where the whitewash was distributed unevenly. One would judge that the young lady had just recently discovered the beautifier for years made use of by our young ladies, for she was far from being up to the average one in decorating her face.
—Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock a fracas of a serious nature was about to be indulged in by a crowd of Bethlehemites near the watch house on the Iowa terminus of the B. & M. bridge, when a justice of the peace there suddenly put an end to the parley. As is generally the case where guns are pulled, a woman is at the bottom of it, so it was then. A man named Kenison tried to persuade his son to thump a couple of young fellows three who had insulted his daughter, and effective work was about to be commenced when Justice of the Peace Ellege appeared upon the scene. He commanded Kenison to consider himself under arrest, but the man resisted him and was about to pummel him as the others, when the officer pulled his revolver and ordered him to surrender. He immediately wilted. The men had their trial yesterday at Pacific Junction, but the result has not been reported to us.

The School Case.

The school case which was brought up for trial several times and was finally continued until yesterday morning, occupied nearly the whole day and was very interesting. It was tried before Judge Clifford and a jury of six business men of the city. The suit was brought about by Mr. J. Woodson, proprietor of the Cottage House, against Prof. Geo. Chaburn, principal of the high school, on account of a whipping he had given his son Tommy for disobedience. Although the boy was badly marked up, as was shown in the evidence, yet he was not seriously injured in any way as was testified by two physicians who were employed to examine the boy. There were many witnesses on the case, among whom were several of the lady teachers of the high school who testified that the boy had been under their instruction and that they had, as a rule, found him to be very unruly and hard to manage. Miss Safford, who is his present teacher, called the principal to her assistance only when the boy would not submit to her, peacefully. When Mr. Chaburn arrived and took him in charge, he was allowed ten chances, as the boy testified, to do the work set before him, which was to write three hundred words, as a punishment for misconduct. Mr. Chaburn swore that after he had struck the boy over the limbs but five times when he flatly refused to obey, that he did not strike him more than three or four times after that without allowing him an opportunity to do his work. Mr. Chaburn was accused of striking the boy on the back and ear, cutting it so that it bled profusely, but he swore that he did not strike the boy on either place, and had been very particular to only whip him on the legs. Several of the lady teachers testified that they saw the boy about an hour after the whipping, riding around the streets on horseback, which statement the boy admitted, which goes to show that the bruises he bore were not of a very serious nature. After the jury had been addressed by the defense, no one present doubted but that the verdict would be as it was, "Not Guilty." The jury were unanimous in their verdict and agreed in a very few minutes. If the case had gone in favor of the prosecution, and if the boy would again attend school, the best teacher in the country would be obliged to resign, as the whole school would consider themselves unpunishable and graduate as a band of outlaws; but as it is, such trouble will not probably occur again with the same pupil. All right thinking people will say that the case was justly treated and that the jury acted wisely. Although the plaintiff cannot understand how the jury returned the verdict it did, there are many who can.
