CITY CORDIALS.

Sons of Veterans ball tonight at the Fitzgerald hall. As the management failed to come to time, the twins have abandoned the company. Mrs. Thos. Kempster is now lying in a critical condition, suffering from blood poisoning. Two handsome coaches were received this morning at the shops here from the east. They are to be used on the B. & M. Miss M. E. Martin will arrive from the east in about ten days for the purpose of organizing a class in vocal and instrumental music. The jury in the District court returned a verdict this morning in the case of Parmele vs. Vallery. Parmele sued for a note and got a verdict for the whole amount and costs, which will be $444.90. Prof. Schmidt, of Omaha, has a large number of costumes which he will rent for the masquerade ball tonight, on exhibition, in the rooms above the post-office at the rear of the Andeuser-Busch building. Mr. W. A. Boeck has made a fine display in his show window. On a large boat which stands on a sleigh is perched a beautiful doll which he will raffle on the first of January. Any person purchasing goods amounting to over twenty-five cents will be entitled to a chance. The Sons of Veterans masquerade ball will be held in Fitzgerald's hall this evening. Prof. Schmidt, of Omaha, has furnished a fine lot of costumes for the occasion. A large number of tickets have been sold, and the event will no doubt be a very successful one, both socially and financially. Mr. Jas. R. Reynolds and Miss Carrie Threlkeld were united in the holy bonds of matrimony last evening about 8 o'clock. The marriage ceremony was performed at the home of the groom's brother on Winterstein hill, by Rev. W. B. Alexander, of the M. E. church. Both bride and groom are residents of this city. A case of sympathy occurred in the District court yesterday. Sharp vs. M. P. Ry. was on trial. Sharp's eloquent attorneys worked on the sympathy of the jury and by that means got a verdict for $56. In a moment afterwards the eloquent attorneys filed a lien on the verdict for $50. They were done with sympathy in that case, or rather it was meant for the jury and not for the attorneys. Miss Clara B. Paul, who has been very prominent in this city for the past year, as a music teacher, and who has won many warm friends during her stay here, returned to her home at Hopedale, O., by the flyer yesterday afternoon. She will remain there for several months, after which, we learn that it is her intention to return to Plattsmouth. We may as well inform music students who have been laboring under her instructions for the past year, that they need not wait for her to return intending to resume their studies under her tuition, as a more interesting and advanced scholar will then occupy her attention. Both entertainments given at the opera house the last two evenings were a grand success in every way. The young ladies of the Y. L. R. R. A., under whose auspices the entertainments were given, have cleared about $70 in all, which is considered a very fair recompense for their labors. The receipts at the opera house last night amounted to about $55, and the evening before, about $75. The audience apparently appreciated the performance last night even more than the evening before, if such a thing were possible. The style of the entertainment was considered the most complete of any ever given in this city by home talent. Every person who attended was favorably impressed, and when such is the case in this critical city, the entertainment can only be first-class. Yesterday being Mr. John Minor's thirty-fourth birthday, his wife arranged a very pleasant surprise for his benefit. Ten of his most intimate friends were invited to be present at his home, South Park, shortly before six o'clock last evening, the time for his arrival. All were present, as was intended, and Mr. Minor was completely taken by surprise. Mrs. Minor prepared an inviting repast for the party and a most enjoyable time was spent, the guests remaining until about 8:30. Mr. M. was presented with a gold-headed cane as a reminder of the pleasant event and his thirty-fourth time around. Regrets were received from several who were unable to be present. The following gentlemen were present: Messrs. Byron Clark, O. M. Wead, Matt Gering, Capt. Lennox, Butler, H. C. ... and P. C. Minor.

Patriot, Harrisburg, Pa. Newton Beers' excellent company of comedians and singers produced the popular play of "Lost in London" magnificent spectacular attractions and scenic effects at the opera house last night. The audience gradually warmed up to a hearty applause and approval. The perfect ensemble was carried out in every particular as promised by Mr. Beers in his advertisements, a rare thing - now-a-days to the amusement line. The scenery was really magnificent from the brush of the famous New York artist, Lafayette W. Seavey. The principal pictures were: "The Heart o' Bleakmoore" with swarthy miners at work, cage with miners ascending and descending the shaft. In this scene "Job Armroyd" caught the heart of his entire audience when he is told of his wife's desertion and flight to London with young "Featherstone," his employer. The snow sensation in the heart of London was a wonderful piece of perspective work. The conservatory scene was very beautiful. In this act a very pleasant diversion is introduced, in which appear the Pan Pipe Singers, a quartette of remarkably clever vocalists; Benjamin Blinker created a considerable amount of laughter with his funny songs and sayings, the whole ending with songs and marches by the entire company. The last act was the finest of all in a scenic way, at first disclosing a ruinous cottage near London, where "Nellie" is carried by "Job", and on her death the scene changes into a splendid view of the Celestial City, visible in the distance, while in the foreground are angels guarding the golden gates of paradise. This scene is beautiful beyond words, and was encored time and again, before the thoroughly delighted audience left the theatre. At the Waterman opera house on Saturday evening next.

Paul, who was tried on Saturday last before Judge Pottenger for embezzlement of $75 of the Metropolitan Manufacturing Company's money, was not bound over as was stated in our local contemporary, but was acquitted. He was accused of appropriating about $75 of the company's money, but it was shown in the evidence that he was not guilty of fraud in any way, as he had made a statement to the company showing the amount he had retained. He was acquitted, the defense paying all costs. Mr. Byron Clark acted as attorney for the defense. —There were three new cases of diphtheria reported in the city register yesterday. The ages of the patients are three, nine and eighteen. Fortunately adults have not as yet fallen victims to this dread epidemic but should such be the case dread results are feared, for great difficulty will no doubt be experienced in checking its spread. —On or two of the stars who appeared in the "District School" performance last night, have been laid away with the sick today. Since this is the case, what must have become of a great portion of their audience? —The funeral of John H. Geom, who died Tuesday evening, of diphtheria, took place this afternoon from the home of his parents. There was a large attendance. "Why freeze or starve?" is the pointed question asked by the manufacturers of "Garland Sovers," and we would add: Why buy a poor imitation when for the same price you can get the genuine "Garland." Sold exclusively by Johnson Brothers.

ALL NOTES OF FLATS. There are flats and flats in New York; big flats and small flats, good flats and bad flats, cheap flats and dear flats. Just how many flats there are in New York it would be hard to say, owing to a tendency on the part of some owners of buildings to call every form of dwelling a flat that accommodates more than one family. Appleton's Directory, however, gives a list of more than 300 select apartment houses, each having a distinct and more or less fashionable name. As these flats range in value from $200,000 to $1,000,000, a fair idea may be gained of the enormous amount of money invested in this style of dwelling house which is now going out of fashion. Of course most flats are worth more than $200,000. It was for this price the Marlborough sold some time ago. But the Saratoga sold for $320,000; the Osborne sold for $1,009,252, and the famous Navarro flats sold under foreclosure for $3,973,641. They originally cost $6,000,000. Of course the latter flat could scarcely be called a single building, since they were made up of great piles under one architectural plan, all connected and all opening into an interior court. They are in their way the finest buildings of their kind in the world. Each structure is nine stories high. The front is broken up with recessed and arched spaces, forming balconies and oriel windows with turrets on opposite sides of the buildings. —New York Mail and Express. A clothing house in Minneapolis took a novel method of advertising Tuesday by throwing out of a fourth story window overcoats, pants and other ready made clothing. An immense crowd collected in the street below, and so great was the eagerness to get possession of the garments that many in the crowd were seriously injured and the garments themselves were torn to shreds. —Northwestern Congressional.
