An Agreement Finally Reached. The Strike at an End.

THE STRIKE SETTLED.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 4.-In accordance with the arrangement made yesterday the grievance committee of the brothernood of locomotive engineers appeared at the general office of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company at 11:30 4th. I P MCCALLEN, PRES Board Pub. Works J W JOHNS IN, CHAIRMAN FRED GORDER D H HAWKSWORTH the proposed settlement of the stille The officials of the road were in consultation until about 11 o'clock, when they entered the room where the engineers were awaiting them.

The conference adjourned shortly before 1 o'clock until 3. Neither Mr. Stone of the Burlington road nor Chairman Cavener of the committee would give any intimation as to the probable result.

The members of the conference met again at 3 o'clock and remained in session until 5:30. Then the doors of the conference room were opened, and the representatives of the Associated press ence of Chairman Cavener and the other members of the conference, read the following statement:

TRIO LODGE NO. 84. A. O. U. W.-Meets Tevery atternat-Friday evening at K. of P. hall. Transient brothers are respectfully in-vited to attend. F.J. Morgan, Master Workman; F. P. Brown. Foreman; G. B. The Burlington strike has been set-tied. By the terms of the resolution un-der which the brotherhood committee was appointed at the Richmond conven-tion, they were instructed to report to Chief Arthur any settlement which they might reach as soon as made, and the "The Burlington strike has been setmight reach as soon as made, and the committee requested us not to make the terms of the settlement public until they should have an opportunity to acquaint Mr. Arthur with them, because they thought it only proper and courteous for him to hear them first through the committee instead of through the public press. We have told them we would scrupulously respect their wishes and they have in turn promised me that Mr. Arthur will advise me as soon as he receives it so that I can acquaint our people and the general public with them."

THE SORTER MAN JIM IS.

Never word a linen collar Ner a pair of shiny boots; Never owned a fancy trotter Ner went out on champagne toots; Never wore a pair of trousers But his mother wove an' spun; Never liked to lie to wimmen As the other fellers done; Never used an ounce of black'nin' On his boota to make 'em shine, But he quite preferred that taller, Well rubbed in, was somethin' fine; Never took to novel readin'. But would set all night to hark To some old school politicians Blow the Andrew Jackson spark; Never seemed to care for frolics Ner the fun that youngsters found In the cheese house where the rafters Used to ring with merry sound; Never noticed of the capers That his brothers used to bring; Never took to silly nonse Sich as boys an' girls'll fling; Led a life as nice an' modest As a boy could ever lead; Never made his fatter trouble Ner his mother's heart to bleed. That's the sorter boy that Jimmy Was a dozen years ago, But he found a nut an' cracked it-An' he's no more counted slow, For he broke up the old meader An' he made the gravel whizz, An' he found a TAL of yaller-That's the sorter man Jim is. -Arkansaw Traveler.

THE BURIED BUNGALOW.

"What can this mean?" askep I, reining up my horse close to the dense milkthorn hedge that shut in Mr. Warren's pretty house and its garden, gay with flowers, from the tea plantations, the green valley, the upland pastures and the dazzling peaks of the Himalayas soaring overhead. There, on a fragment of rock, stood the well known, tall form of the planter himself, angrily confronting a motley mob of natives-some tawny, some yellow skinned, and a few nearly black. These, although they had flung aside hoe and spade, I knew to be the coolies employed at the prosperous hill station, where such a scene of confusion had been hitherto unknown.

"The scoundrels are going to leave me -that's all!" said Mr. Warren, curtly. And at that instant there stepped forward in advance of the rest a gaunt Tibetan, clad in sheepskins, who, ceremoniously, with perfect gravity, placed on the ground a fragment of wheaten cake, a handful of salt and a lota, or and the general public with them." When Stone had finished reading this statement Mr. Cavener said there was nothing to add to it and both these gentlemen decline to enter into further with bent head and downcast mien stood motionless, as though waiting to be questioned.

mountain at the foot of which we live; but I have been a planter here too long to care for the tattle of coolies. They are like children who tell of the nursery ghost until they see it in every dark corner. A delightful life I should have led here had I been credulous."

And with that he dismissed the subject, and the evening passed genially enough. Later on, however, after the whispered farewell to my sweet Edith in the porch, draped with the glistening leaves and big white blossoms of the Indian creeper, after the ride home to my own dwelling among the hills, and when my head rested on its pillow, a vague sense of insecurity be it me afresh; and even when I fell asl ep my dreams were troubled and sad, not such as should visit the slumbers of one on whom the world smiled as it did on me, George Musgrave. The dawning of the new day-my wedding dayhowever, chased away the clouds from my mind, and when I mounted my horse to ride to Yirmi Sou, attired as a bridegroom should be, my heart was light and full of happy hope. Edith loved me better than I deserved-I knew that; that it was her father's Intention to establish the young couple on his own fine plantation, while he and Mrs. Warren returned to England to enjoy their well earned competency.

The day was fine-no rarity in the east-but a sort of silver haze hung over the peaks northward, and there were frequent gusts of ice cold winds rushing down from gap and pass in the rocky range that forms the boundary of India. I rode on, and presently, from an angle in the mountain road, I caught a glimpse of the "Twenty Springs," as Mr. War-ren's thriving station was called, with its gardens and meadows, and the now deserted plantations, and the empty huts of the coolies. Then I turned the corner and saw it no more; but even as it vanished from my eyes I heard a strange, deep sound like that of distant thunder, the nature of which I could not divine. My horse suddenly snorted and reared, and then stood trembling and could scarcely be urged forward. While I was in the act of stooping forward to pat the Arab's glossy neck, speaking soothingly to him the while, there broke upon my ear a sullen roar-louder, nearer, at each instant, and culminating in a crash so dreadful that the simultaneous discharge of a thousand cannons would have seemed puny when compared with it. Deafened, dizzy and confused, I disbearened, dizzy and confused, 1 dis-mounted from my frightened horse, now wholly unmanagoable, and hurried on foot to a spot whence, as I remembered, Edith's home was in sight. The air was thick with dust and withered leaves; but as the prospect grew clearer I could see no trace of the bungalow, of its homestead and gardens, or of the thriving tea

Aldermen Warned to be Careful.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 .- The White Caps have begun business in Chicago. They have not yet had time to carry out their threats, but the following letter has been received by every alderman who has cast his vote for the elevated road :

SIR - Beware ! You remember the boodlers' punishment! The doors of foliet are not yet closed. You are spotted ! Your course in the council has been closely watched. "What mummery is this?" asked I, in an undertone. My intended father-in-law, who knew the people and the coun-try better than I did, shook his nead. "It means mischief," he whispered. "Something has terrified the superstitious curs; and see! They renounce my bread and salt, return the advance of wages, and break the wand, in token that they are my men no more. You mean," he added, harshly, in the Ben-gali dialect, "to desert me, then, Han Gorain!"

"The Sahib Warren is a good master," Yellow Fever on the Yantic WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The navey de partment has been informed that yellow fever has appeared on the Yantic and The Sanis Warren is a good master," replied the Tibetan, in the same lan-guage. "If we go, it is because the evil eye has looked upon this threshold, and the voice that never lies has laid a curse on Yirmi Sou and all that dwell there."

The man spoke slowly and with some difficulty, such as besets those who use a foreign tongue imperfectly mastered; but he had uttered his brief speech with emphasis, and with a certain dignity of bearing. Behind him stood the Tibetans and hill men-sturdy fellows on whom and hill men-sturdy fellows on whom devolved the rough work of trenching and dyke building, while a little way off clustered the dusky coolies from India proper, their lips tightened over their shining teeth, and in attitudes expressive of the most abject servility. Clearly there was no stimulus short of physical fear which would have nerved these fear which would have nerved these crouching creatures to disobey the Burra Sahib, or owner of the plantation, whose lightest word had been law to his meek subordinates. "If the Sahib will harken to the counsel of the poor," said the spokesman, after a pause, "he and his will hasten away before"_____

But here Mr. Warren lost patience, and interrupted the orator, roundly rebuking the whole gang as a pack of craven hounds, frightened at their own shad-A specialty. The planter recovered his temper as soon as the recusants had departed, and laid his broad hand on my shoulder, saying, with a jolly laugh, "A lesson, George, my boy, as to the thorns that will lie in your path when you and Edith live here in my stead, as I hope you'll do, after the gathering in of the next tea crop, and set to to feather your pest, as her mother and I have done. I thought better things, too, of the overseer-that Han Gorain, who, Lefore some heathen Logie scared him, was a shrewd and reliable servant. But never mind! Come in, Musgrave. come in! erdant meadows around it. Vainly did I strain my eyes to catch one well known feature of the familiar scene. Nothing was visible save a dreary waste of stones, mud and rocks filling up half the valley, and above which hung a cloud of tawny dust that was slowly subsiding.

As I stood stupidly gazing on the scene of ruin, I caught sight of a man, bareheaded, and with a white scared face. 1 knew him. It was the young clergyman who had come from Nynee Tal to perform the marriage ceremony between Edith and me. "Mr. Edwards?" I said, inquiringly, as I neared him. He caught my hand, covered his face

Mr. Warren's hospitable house-I alone am spared," answered the clergyman in broken accents. "Death, the grim mower, has garnered in his harvest there." The cause of the disaster was but too evident. A stone avalanche, or moraine, as it is called in Switzerland, had rushed down from the unscaled heights of the huge mountain towering above Yirmi Sou, and had overwhelmed all beneath it. "I caught a glimpse of Miss Warren in the garden, as the stony flood burst on us with its deafening roar," said the clergyman, as he grew calmer; "it may be that God's mercy has spared her life, too.'

And indeed I have rauch to be thankful for, since my dear Edith was found, fainting, but unhurt, at the foot of a tall cedar, the only tree left standing, wedged in between fallen rocks. But the other inmates of the house had perished, nor were even their bodies ever extricated from the mighty mausoleum which nature's own hand had piled above them. Edith and I have been married these five years, but our home is in England, not in India; and contationes, when I see a hadow come acreas my wife's fair face, I know that she is thinking of those who leep below the crul stones at Yirrai iou. - Albany Journal.
