—The Easter entertainment at the M. E. church last evening was a pleasant affair. The church was decorated in the front and on the windows at the sides with evergreen and roses, beautifully arranged. Tables of flowers and Easter symbols occupied the center of the room. The social opened with beautiful songs and anthems and recitations.

—A representative of the HERALD was today called into the clothing house of C. E. Will be a Jeweler Himself.

A man stood in front of the postoffice last evening, and if the jewelers of the city had been there to hear him talk they would doubtless have turned the key in their doors and closed up today because of competition. From his accent would one would have sized him up as a combination of all European nationalities. "I'll start a jewelry store meself," he said, "It's robbery! I wint and had a crystal put in me watch and he charged me fifty cents. The villians! its a scheme of theirs to keep the poor, poor. It could be done in the old country for three cents. And for a spring the price was a dollar and a half, and they make 'em here and send 'em over there and put 'em in for ten cents! And for clean in a watch the price was a dollar and a half. I'll do it meself for a dotter, and I'll show 'em. Yessir, I've sent for a dozen dozen springs and crystals, and me wife 'll bring 'em when she comes over, and I'll get rich meself." The tritiated, but not intoxicated foreigner, here seemed to realize he was wasting his eloquence, for the small crowd which gathered failed to respond with regular rings of applause, and having struck a convenient stopping place, left the stump.

L'Eclair.
 Mr. Robt. Bensberg, the manager of the Kate Bensberg opera company, who are to appear here on Thursday next in a conversation with our reporter, said: "Miss Bensberg has probably made herself a greater favorite with the public in the space of one short season than any other star traveling, and that without the excessive advertising and puffing usually resorted to. She has a soprano voice of the most exquisite quality, rich, flexible and of great compass, her execution is pure and clear, reminding one forcibly of Patti; and, added to all this, she is, what you so seldom find in a singer, a really fine actress.
 The company is composed of the best English speaking artists on the stage. We have taken great care in the costumeing and mounting of the operas, and the public can rely on having an absolutely correct production.
 'L'Eclair,' the opera we will present here, is by Halevy, and the book is translated and adapted for English production by Lawrence Marston. The opera was first produced at the Theatre Comique, Paris, and subsequently in the principal cities of Germany and England. We give it for the first time in this country. The book is exquisite light comedy, while the score abounds in musical gems, and the costumes are simply immense.

In short we claim we have the finest musical attraction in this country, and wherever we have appeared the press and public sustain our claim."
 They will appear at the opera house Thursday night April 25. This being just after the Lenten season they should be greeted by a large house.
