AN AWFUL CALAMITY.

The Old Presbyterian Church Building Caves In.

ONE MAN INSTANTLY KILLED.

Without Warning the East Wall comes down with an Awful Crash.

John Madraba Injured.

This afternoon at 2:10 a great crash of falling timbers and bricks startled the whole city and for blocks there could be heard the frightened cry of "Look out" as the crash came, and immediately there rose a great cloud of dust from the Riley corner where the men are excavating for the new hotel. Hundreds of people rushed to the scene and as the clouds of dust, that rested only for a second on the ruins of the old Presbyterian church which had been dug around, rose up, the body of Peter Mattous, was visible in the ruins at the southeast corner of the building, and near by was John Madraba, pained in by the body and legs by timbers and brick. The men immediately rushed to Madraba's rescue and drew him from the ruins and took him to Dr. Livingston's office. His injuries were not serious. His upper lip had been bruised by a flying missile and he complained of aches and pains in his shoulders and body and his legs were badly bruised also, but he was able to sit up and talked freely.

The other poor victim, Peter Mattous, was taken from the ruins unconscious, and bareheaded. His skull was laid bare across the top of the head also the right side of his head, he was crushed internally which caused fatal results, he was carried from the ruins to the sidewalk by the U.ion block, and then to Beck's undertaking rooms where his face was washed and the departing life watched by Drs. Shipman, Schilcknecht, Cook and Withers. He was pronounced dead at 3:25. An inquest was held over the body shortly after 3 o'clock. Mattous was a man about fifty years old, was a native of Bohemia. He had been married in the old country but emigrated to America on the death of his wife. His Nephew Andrew Mattous is a carpenter employed in the B. & M. coach department under Wash Smith.

John Madraba, who was only injured is a married man and lives north west of the high school on Vine street. He is about 35 years old and has three children two boys and a girl, for whom it is very fortunate that he was not killed.

THE FALL.
 The east and north walls of the building gave way and left the south and west walls standing in a very dangerous position. A gang of six or eight men were working east of the building shoveling dirt into a wagon of contractor Jim Fitzgerald. The men stood between the building and the wagon. The dirt had been excavated down to the bottom of the foundation and from there, with a very little slope it had been dug down several feet farther.

The wall did not fall out but the foundation gave way and it came down with a sudden crash. The foreman yelled "look out" and the men ran with or without their shovels, and it seems wonderful that only one was killed, but one was enough to make it awful.

Shovels left behind were completely broken up. The suddenness of the fall is shown in the fact that Jim Fitzgerald's team hitched to the wagon being loaded dashed away as soon as the crash was heard, but not so quick but that the falling wall caught the wagon and completely mashed it.

After the excitement cooled down the men were gathered together and roll call had to see if more than two were injured and all answered to their numbers but 11—Peter Mattous. The rubbish was cleared away enough to see that no more men were crushed and then hooks and ropes were secured and the standing walls pulled down.

The wagon that was being loaded stood at the southeast corner of the building and here where the wall first caved.

Bean Bag Parody.

A small boy having returned from a bean bag party where sides were chosen and the bean bags passed rapidly from hand to hand, gave the following account of it:
 "You see, Jim, in this kind of a bean bag you play for your side, and you've just got to win. First of all, when you stand up, don't get rattled. Keep cool.
 "Then take the bean bag from the feller that passes it to you and hold on to it. If you drop it, you lose. After you get your grip, pass it like lightning to the next one and leggo! It's jes' ez necessary to know when to leggo as it is to get a good bolt.
 "If a gal stan's next to you an' keeps a sayin' 'Not so fast!' an' draps the bags every second, you can't say much, cos she's a gal; but if it's a boy that's spilin' all the chances jes' ease him an' make him play right or else quit the business.
 "Of course, if you're lucky enough to drap a prize, you air barred out from drorin' ag'in; but you ought to work jes' ez hard after you git a prize as you do afore. Don't cheat, but jes' hustle them bags to win."
 Youth's Companion.

Bad Manners in Society.
 How ruthlessly rude some people are in the matter of interrupting, one may see by the following account of a very interesting talk, when one of these will rush in with, "Oh, I want to introduce Mr. So-and-So" or "I am dying to hear what the true story is about the Thingamies." Once on a time there was an understanding, that a happy moment was to be waited for before interruptions of this kind; but now every one seems so eager, so hurried, so unreflexive, that they pounce upon the very moment that it occurs to them to do so.—London Truth.

The Good in Hot Milk.
 Few know the value of hot milk—not scalding, but boiling hot. It is wonderfully reviving if a little fatigued or chilly from a long drive. Taken at bed time it often secures to a restless, nervous person immediate and comfortable sleep, and for an early walker, if taken before too long awake, will secure another restful nap. It is, too, most nourishing and more easily digested by the weak stomach of an invalid than if given cold, and is good alike for young and old.—Lewiston Journal.

The Egg in Hairdressing.
 A correspondent writes in regard to taking care of the hair: "Experience has taught me that it is best to keep all oils or grease from the hair. Don't let barbers oil it. I find wetting with water best. At least once a week rub the yolk of an egg, or half of it, well into the hair and scalp, and rinse off thoroughly with tepid water. It will promote growth and color, probably largely due to the sulphur in the egg. This course has started a new growth of hair with me, not very thick, but better than none at all."

Tickets for the grand ball to be given by the A. O. U. W. on May 13th in Fitzgerald's hall, are for sale at J. P. Young's and W. H. Baker's. The committee are sparing no pains in their preparations to make it one of the leading attractions of the season.

C. E. Wescott is agent for Mungler's Laundry, Chicago. Washing sent and received every Wednesday evening. Bring in your washing and have it done right, it costs no more than inferior work.
