MAKING PEACE WITH THEMSELVES FOR CHEATING UNCLE SAM.

Persons Who Make Last to the Government for Some It's in the Past-The Remittances so Made as to Conceal the Sender-Newspaper Receipts.

A remittance of $20 was received at the treasury from Cleveland as a contribution to the "conscience fund." I had a talk with the chief clerk of the division of public moneys in the treasury department about it. The money so received is not kept in a separate fund, but is turned into the treasury the same as money that comes in from other sources friend of the victim. This young man of revenue. The amount received each is the personification of modesty, or bashyear appears in the annual reports. It varies a good deal. One year it may be efforts managed to lead a young lady of $500 and the next $5,000. It is usually made up of small sums, though not infrequently single remittances run up into he has gone to her hour contrance of the thousands.

HOW THEY ARE KNOWN.

It will be understood that these amounts are sent by persons who have, purposely or otherwise, defrauded the government, and are induced by the smitings of conscience to make restitution. In forty-nine cases out of fifty the money is sent in such a way as not to afford the slightest possible clew to the identity of the sender. The fact that Uncle Sam has the money seems to be a sufficient sedative to the perturbed conscience, without that "open confession" which is said to be "good for the soul." Sometimes brief explanatory notes are sent, stating for what the money is due the government, but a signature of any kind is extremely rare. Some merely say, "This money belongs to the United States," or words of similar purport. In many cases there is not a scratch of pen or pencil, the money being simply inclosed in an envelope, perhaps folded in a sheet of blank paper. All such are presumed to be cases of "conscience" and are so treated. It is, of course, impossible to give any receipts for the money. Now and then one will write, "Please acknowledge receipt in the newspapers." This is the reason why care is usually taken to have the receipt of "conscience money" mentioned in the Associated Press dispatches. The senders

The Lover's Coat.

A tale of disaster to a young business man's pride and spring overcoat was told at the Midland the other night by a fulness, but he has by diligent and heroic Troost avenue to the understanding that she is to be his. Twice a week or more he has gone to her home to impress upon contract. Sunday evening the young man went to the home of the young woman to have a reiteration of the whole matter, and the session was not completed until 10:30 p. m. by pa's watch. As young ladies will sometimes do, this one followed the receding form of the senior partner of the "steady company" organization to the front door, and after a series of dilatory motions an adjournment was agreed upon. He stood on the threshold to fasten his gloves, and she swung the front door shut.

As the spring lock snapped the door nipped the skirt of his coat and held it against his greatest strength. He was a prisoner, and she who was to be his had floated up the stairway unmindful that he who was to be hers was impaled by his coat tail on the veranda. This bashful young man had no inclination to ring the bell, for pa would answer it and he and the old gentleman were not on particularly sociable terms. He knew the only recourse, and he slid from the coat and left it fanning in the wind like a scarecrow in a corn field. Then came the family's favorite young dog and had a few rounds with the garment.

In a very strong and healthy person the ill effects of cating when the system is much fatigued would not be so marked as in one below the standard of health. Very nervous individuals invariably suffer from the habit, and if debilitated they are quite sure to grow more so if it is persisted in. When very "tired and hungry" it is always best to rest for a time before eating, or to take some such simple "pick up" as hot milk, which should be slowly sipped. That is very refreshing, indeed, and usually meets the requirements quite as well as an alcoholic stimulant.-Boston Herahl.

It is not worth a dollar. The queer thing about it is the manner in which it was collected. Every bit of it. came from the dead letter office of the postofiice department. Some portion of it is counterfeit, but the most of it was genuine money many years ago. The banks which issued it and the officers who signed it are gone and forgotten. It was all sent over to the treasury department several years ago, and Assistant Treasurer Whelpley undertook to trace up the various banks and get as much as possible of it redeemed. Occasionally he found descendants of some of these old bank officials, themselves bankers, who were willing to redeem some of the notes for the sake of the signatures of their fathers, and in this way he succeeded in getting several hundred dollars' worth of it redeemed. A little of it is Confederate money, but most of it is of banks, state and private, that went out of existence many years age. The oldest notes are dated back as far as 1812,-American Banker,

A Considerate Governor.

The Coconnut Crab, On the Agala Islands, in the Indian ocean, there is a very strange crab. He s known to science as the Birgus lutro. or thief erab, and his depredacions are carried on in the coconnut groves which abound on these islands. This crab grows to be twenty-two inches long, measuring from the tip of the tail to the end of the long claw, and resembles in general appearance the hermit crab. The abdomer is fleshy and not powered with a shell of the thief crab to take forcible posses sion of a shell of the Trochas family, in which it lives. It is notturnal in its operations, and has the faculty of scleeting the trees having the finest cocoanuts upon them. Climbing up the tranks frequently for twenty-five feet, it reaches the limbs and severs the atoms which attach the nuts to the branches. These are frequently as thick as your three fingers, and would require a strong knife. Having brought down the nut, the crab now descends to the ground, digs a hole and rolls the cocoanut into it. He then commences to tear off the husk, fiber by fiber, until the nut is completely exposed, and then breaking in what is known as the eye he cats the meat complately out. The fibers stripped off the cocoanut by this orn's will frequently fill into ropes. Cocoanut groves are cultivated by those who make a business of extracting the cil from the nuts to be used for illuminating purposes, and the depredations of this crab are of a very serious character, in many cases the ef-

Photographers' Cats.

Doubtless the most interesting cats, those which present the best opportunities for study, are the property of photographers. Ray D. Chapman, of this city, had two cats which he taught to lie in bed and be covered like the human being. Rockwood, of Union square, in this city, posed a kitten in a shoe, a picture which has attracted the attention of the whole civilized world, and he has posed others successfully.

Alman, at No. 172 Fifth avenue, has posed many cats. One posed for him while he painted its portrait, and a noble pose it gave, with serious, pathetic eyes, in which is the look of genius.

The many pictures of the cat belonging to Mrs. J. B. Lewis, No. 1,216 Broadway, and which adorn a panel at the entrance of her studio, have attracted universal attention Of these I think "Puss in Clover" is the most artistic. She lies in a bed of clover in a bas ket adorned with ribbons and roses, and the expression of her face is beautiful. I have also a pose by a Catholic priest entitled "Indisposed," which is a marvel of ennui, laziness and luxury .- New York Star.

Gallery Criticism.

During Mr. Inving's performance the other evening one of the gallery gods called out "That's not in 'Macbeth'!" The rally would have upset the house but for the spiendor of the acting. It reminds one of that utterance from the same celestial place on the first night of the only dramatic piece that Mis-Brandon has ever written, which did upset the house and spoil the piece. A scene was introduced in which a child was kidnaped from its mother, and at the end, when all were made happy, the restoration of the child was taken for granted. It was the fault of a novelist and passed unnoticed for quite a minute after the fall of the curtain. Then a "god" leaned over from the balcony and solemnly inquired: "What about that kid?" The piece was swamped in an inextinguishable burst of laughter.-London Letter.

A dog down in Pennsylvania swallowed the baby's rattle the other day. It hasn't affected the dog seriously, but it's awful wearing on the people of the house. Every time the dog moves it sounds as though a rattlesnake was after you, and the result is that about two-thirds of the time everybody in the house is either climbing up on a chair or jumping down from one .- Burdette in
