LINCOLN'S FOURTH OF JULY.

Something About King Tartarax who will be Chief Magistrate.

The capital city of Nebraska has a celebration to come off the Fourth that is likely to take, for several reasons. King Tartarax, who will be chief magistrate of the day will head the trades' procession with his body guard, and many of his loyal subjects will also take part. The King's splendor to be manifest on that day is typical of life in Lincoln, and her boom enterprise. In regard to the traditions of this great personage, the Call speaks as follows, (variations being inserted):

ANOTHER TRADITION.

There are many traditions [interesting stories] concerning King Tartarax who is to be in Lincoln on July Fourth, [like a great many other people] and who will be the guest of Col. Robert McReynolds, of Oklahoma [a lucky hit on the part of the king]. One of the prettiest stories we have read, however, [a pen picture by Tim Sedgwick, of the York Times] is as follows: "Lincoln is preparing for a great celebration, [a move to be appreciated] and King Tartarax has issued invitations to the rural roosters to come in and smell his feet. [something that will draw like magic.] We are not acquainted with Tartarax, [in the same box with the rest of us] though it is generally believed by the bucolic editors that this was Walt Mason's maiden name [a question not disputed by that nobleman]. When he first knocked at Judge Mason's door, it is said, the benign old gentleman adjusted his spectacles with one hand and his teeth with the other, [a practice still kept up] and asked the wayward and dusty wail his name. "Tartarax Pars," says the boy. "Tartarax Pars! [a favorite word with the judge] By my troth you are a precocious kid: a most precocious kid. What will you have? Speak out Tartar and ax [the Judge loves a joke at all times] what you will, it shall be granted. "I want to marry you," [a request acceptable from any source] quoth Tartarax Pars. "By the life," replied the Judge, "this is a strange request, a most extraordinary thing to ask—but it shall be so, you shall be my bride." It is said, but not proven, that poor, tired Tartarax laid his aching head on the kind Judge's manly bosom, and wept for very joy, that he was soon to become the bride of a secretary of the board of transportation of the state of Nebraska [free rides on all roads]. So the nuptials were speedily celebrated and Tartarax Pars, became Walt Mason. This is the legend of King "Tartarax," and whether true or whether false, it is a very pretty story." Those who admire Col. Walt Mason should come to Lincoln on the great independence day and see the king, and draw their own conclusions [from his feet]. The celebration will be the grandest and most magnificent ever held in the state, and all loyal people should make arrangements to come.

SIX YEARS OLD.

Six years old—"a great big boy!" How his heart swells with pride and joy! "I'm grown up now," he shouts in glee—"No more curls nor kilt for me!"

The "barber man" has shorn the locks of brown and gold in a way that shocks The mother's heart!—yet it had to be. To make him the manly boy we see.

The kilt "must go"—in trousers fine The "little man" doth long to shine. So brave he's grown, I've naught to fear— He will let no harm reach "mamma dear."

God bless the boy! with his heart so true And his wonderful plans of "work" to do Long may he be our pride and joy, Comfort and hope—this darling boy!

—Mary Hewitt Sturdevant.

Appearances Often Deceive.

One day last week a Boston business man, who was at work dictating letters to his stenographer, was interrupted by a business call from two well dressed men, who remained in conversation for some little time, and then went out. When they had gone the business man turned to his stenographer and said: "Did you notice the personal appearance of those two gentlemen?"

"Oh, yes,"

"Well, one of them was a well known publisher of this city, and the other was a prize fighter. Now, which was the prize fighter and which was the publisher?"

The girl described one of the two—a young man of agreeable appearance and pleasing manners.

"That," she said, "was the publisher, of course."

"You are mistaken," said her employer. "The man you took for the publisher was the prize fighter, and the man you took for the prize fighter was the publisher."

"And this was not a case where 'the boy lied,' either," Boston Transcript.

A Wonderful Lake.

One of the most picturesque and remarkable bodies of water in the world is Henry's lake in Idaho. It is situated on the dome of the continent in a depression in the Rocky mountains called Targoe's pass. It has an area of forty square miles, and all around it rise snow capped peaks, some of them being the highest of the continent's backbone. In the lake is a floating island about 300 feet in diameter. It has for its base a mat of roots so dense that it supports large trees and a heavy growth of underbrush. These roots are covered with several feet of rich soil. The surface is solid enough to support the weight of a horse anywhere, and there are places where a house could be built. The wind blows the island about the lake, and it seldom remains twenty-four hours in the same place.—San Francisco Post.

The Difference.

Willie M., an Ayrshire farmer, was somewhat remiss in attending divine service, and his parish minister, on one of his pastoral visits, took occasion to refer to it in rather a pointed manner. Willie excused himself on the score of advancing years, but his spiritual guide would not condone the offense on that ground.

"That will scarcely do, William, for I observe you are very regular in your attendance at mass every Friday."

"Oh, ay," said Willie, "but that's easy explained. You see when we gang to the town we can get what we like, but when we gang to the kirk we have just to take what thou likes to give us."—Scottish American.

Shouldn't Talk About Her.

"Mollie Bawn's to be married next week, Jennie, and I am to be her first bridesmaid."

"You don't say so, Clara. You take my breath away. Who will marry that big mouthed thing?"

"Oh, you shan't talk that way about her. It is just too lovely for anything. She is to marry George Blissful, don't you know; that superb fellow, I expect. I expect Cape May last July. And think of it, I'm to be first bridesmaid. Ha, ha, ha!"

"Oh, how lovely. Ha, ha, ha!"

IN A FAIR GARDEN.

A breeze, a brightness, branches overhead, One near (else, sweet, what would the garden be? A troop of poppies, sunflower, lemon, And motley phloxes to the sunshine spiced:

Beneath her window wallflower lifts his head, The goodly wallflower Eron flid to own, Its bright fires burning soft and smoky, Its breath condensed richness, richly fed.

By earth, by sunshine, and by summer show, Here lilies fall not, nor the glowing rose, Here foxglove tall rings out the sunlit hours

Here sweetly, like the thought of one most dear The breath of violet comes, and peony goes, And comes again, and savors all the air

—S. W. Weizel in Overland Monthly.

Mosquitoes.

The bill of a mosquito is a complex in stitution. It has a blunt fork at the head, and is apparently grooved. Working through the groove, and projecting from the angle of the fork, is a lance of perfect form sharpened with a fine bevel. Beside it the most perfect lance looks like a hand saw. On either side of the lance two saws are arranged, with the points fine and sharp and the teeth well refined and keen. The backs of these saws play against the lance. When the mosquito alights with his peculiar hum, it thrusts its keen lance, and then enlarges the aperture with the two saws, which play beside the lance until the forked bill with its capillary arrangement for pumping blood can be inserted. The sawing process is what grates upon the nerves of the victim and causes him to strike wildly at the sawyer.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Whence Come the Flies?

From where do all the flies come? The question is often asked, and seldom receives as satisfactory an answer as has been given by a contemporary. The common fly lays more than 100 eggs, and the time from egg laying to maturity is only about two weeks. Most of us have studied geometrical progression. Here we see it illustrated. Suppose one fly commences "to multiply and replenish the earth" about June 1. June 15, if all lived, would give 150. Suppose seventy-five of these are females, July 1 would give us; supposing no cruel war or other untoward circumstances to interfere, 11,250 flies. Suppose 5,625 of these are females, we might have July 15, 837,730 flies. For fear of bad dreams I will not calculate what might be by Sept. 15. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

Fifteen Thousand Dollars Bonus! SOUTH PARK AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

The owners of South Park hereby stipulate and agree that in the event of the sale of 200 lots between June the 20th and Dec. 31st, 1889, they will appropriate $10,000 and land in South Park valued at $5,000 as a bonus and inducement for the location of some institution or industry in that part of the city.

2d. Lots will be sold at present prices, viz: $150 for inside and $175 for corner lots, and on monthly payments when desired.

3d. All sales where requested will be made conditional that the $15,000 will be appropriated as stated, otherwise the contracts of purchase be rescinded and money refunded.

The proprietors of South Park believe, that with a bonus of $15,000 an important addition of outside capital can be induced to invest in Plattsmouth, and with that end in view, are opening up an extensive correspondence. After selling 200 lots they will still have over 200 left, to be enhanced in value by the investment, and the general prosperity of Plattsmouth.

Every purchaser of a lot now, gets it at the same price that lots have sold for from the start and before the Park was settled, with the advantages: That it is now well populated, having church and school house privileges; the city water mains extending to its limits, which assures water supply at no distant date; the location of the Fair grounds at a distance of only one-half mile; the extending of the corporate limits south of the Park three-fourths of a mile, leaving the centre of the new Fifth ward with able representatives in the city council; the permanent and rapid growth of the additions immediately surrounding the Park, which is constantly enhancing the value of its lots; and with the unparalleled proposition that unless a large sum of actual cash is invested in some industry for the increasing in value of the lots purchased, by Dec. 31st, your money will be refunded.

Remember, when you buy a lot in South Park for $150 it is now worth as much as lots sold in some other portions of the city for $250. Our policy is, low prices and easy terms, and the interesting of many persons in the Park by liberal means, to enhance the value of our reserve lots.

OTHER REASONS FOR PURCHASING LOTS IN SOUTH PARK.

As a whole they are the finest lying lots in the city. They are shaded with beautiful forest trees. They are located between Chicago and Lincoln Avenues—the two finest drives about the city. They are only a ten minutes' walk from the business portion of the town. They are only a ten minutes' walk from the New Driving Park and Fair Grounds. By reason of their location between the two main thoroughfares into the city, they are more accessible than lots in other additions.

The only addition to the city reached by two established avenues. Will certainly have street car privileges at no distant date. If you wish a fine view of the river, locate on a lot in South Park.

To persons in the railroad employ, the eastern portions of South Park is the most desirable residence locality in the city. To persons desiring a residence on Chicago Avenue, the western portion of South Park is available for that purpose.

The B. & M. railroad track runs near the east line of the addition, furnishing good facilities for manufacturing, industries which will come at no distant date.

About $15,000 worth of this desirable property has been disposed of within a short period, and no part has been sold to outside speculators, which is solid proof of the substantial growth of this part of the city.

More substantial houses were built in South Park during the year 1888 than in any one locality in the city, and the prospects for 1889 building are much greater.

Any person or persons purchasing 20 or more lots and paying 1 cash, may have one and two years on balance without interest.

The title of this property is perfect and clear from incumbrance.
