A Wonderfut Lake.

One of the most picturesque and remarkable bodies of water in the world is Henry's lake in Idaho. It is situated in the dome of the continent in a degreation in the Rocky mountains called Targee's pass. It has an area of forty square miles, and all around it rise snow capped peaks, some of them being the highest of the continent's backbone. In the lake is a floating island about 300 feet in diameter. It has for its basis a mat of roots We, your finance committee, respectful- so dense that it supports large trees and a heavy growth of underbrush. These roots are covered with several feet of rich soil. The surface is solid enough to support the places where a house could be built. The wind blows the island about the lake, and it seldom remains twenty-four hours in the same place. - San Francisco Post.

Manners of Americans.

The real test of the manners and morals of a nation is not by comparison with other nations, but with itself. It must be judged by the historical, not by the topographical standard. Does it develop? and how? Manners, like morals, are an affair of evolution, and must often be a native product, a wholly indigenous thing. This is the case, for instance, with the babitual American courtesy to women in traveling—a thing unparalleled in any Euro pean country, and of which, even in this country, Howells ands his best type in the Californian. What takes the place of it among the Latin races is the courtesy FANS of the high bred gentleman toward the lady who is his social equal-which is a wholly different thing. A similar point can save you money of evolution in this country is the decorum of a public assembly. It is known that from two well dressed men, who remained in at the early town meetings in New Engconversation for some little time, and then | land men sat with their hats on, as in England. Unconsciously, by a simple evolution of good manners, the light ha been outgrown in America, but parliament still retains it. Many good results may have followed Imperceptibly from this same tendency to decorum. Thus Mr. Bryce points out that the forcible interruption of a public meeting by the opposite party, although very common in England, is very rare in America. In general, with us, usages are more flexible, more adaptive; in public meetings, for instance, we get rid of a great many things that are unatterably tedions, as the English practice of movmg, seconding and debating the pre-And this was not a case where "the boy scribed vote of thanks to the presiding officer at the end of the most insignificant gathering. It is very likely that even our incessant self criticism conpributes toward this gradual amelioradon of babits. In that case the wonder is that our English cousins, who criticise themselves quite as incessantly, move so slowly.- Harper's Bazar.

A Large Pengulum.

The longest pendulum on this continent swings in the technological school at Atlanta. It is a heavy pear shaped piece of iron attached to a brass wire fortytwo feet long. The upper end of the wire is pivoted in a steel plate so as to cause the least possible friction. The swinging of the penduluia gradually do scribes a circle on the floor in a direction following the sun, showing in this that an old one for interment at $1, making $11, a strictle and plunge it deep into the "the earth do move."

One of these gentlemen went with me through all the graveyards and explained everything of interest. The five cemeteries are the foreign, the Chinese, the Jewish, the old Spanish and the new Spanish. People may be buried in any of these according to desire. The man agers of the cemeteries are the only ones in the business of manufacturing, selling and letting collins; so they have a collin monopoly just as the Boston Ice company has a monopoly of ice, or a New York house has a mone, oly to hams.

There the Panama Canal company manufacture whatever coffins they need for their amployes, and transact a very brisk business in this particular.
