PALM READING IS EASY.

THE STORY OF A FORTUNE TELLER'S WORK AND SUCCESS.

It is Not So Mysterious as It Looks—To Succeed It is Only Necessary to Have a Little Ingenuity and Observation—What Men and Women Like to Be Told.

"I want to tell you that there is nothing in this world so easy as fortune telling when you know how to do it!" It was a woman who spoke, and she knew whereof she spoke. For years she had gathered rich rewards from patrons in the best ranks of society, and she had not yet discontinued adding to her income in the same way. But she laughingly, though half seriously, told me some of the secrets of her trade.

"Do you know," she continued, "that the most popular form of this ancient superstition just now is 'palm reading'?" I have derived a wonderful amount of amusement, a good deal of money and a great insight into human nature by the practice of this mysterious art.

"There is a science of palmistry, and apart from that there is also the gift of palmistry. Of the first I know very little; the second I think I possess in some slight degree. What I cannot explain. I only know that I can tell the character, disposition and general habit of life by the hand.

THEY HAVE TO CHEAT. "The trouble about the whole thing is this: It is almost impossible to be honest, especially when one is only doing it to amuse people, and not to earn a living. It is very hard to read the hands of persons whom you know or are liable to meet again. You cannot tell them the truth without offense. Not that most people have any trait that they wish particularly to hide, but human nature is so queer. I almost always find rather than a necessity of some terrible fault of which they have not the slightest trace than to be told of a slight foible which they really do possess.

"Of course, every one always says: 'Now, tell me the exact truth. Don't gloss anything over. I shan't be angry.' But, then, they will be, so you cannot tell them the 'exact truth.' I will give a few points which I have always found valuable.

"I do not mean points in the art of reading the hand. That is a science in itself, and unless one has it naturally, no amount of coaching will help them. But any one who has some natural shrewdness, and is a good guesser, can master enough of the mystic art to make it a very amusing pastime. Look at your own hand first. See what a peculiar network of wrinkles cross and recross your palm. Observe the hands of your friends, study the different shapes and notice if they accord with the characters of their owners.

You will find it a very fascinating study, and you will soon be able to distinguish the stubborn honesty of the executive head, the artistic hand, as you see them. They are forty years old with a large stock of assurance, and remember the old saying, 'every one is a fool, more or less,' and you have your capital.

"You must not satter people too much. The majority will not see through it, but the intelligent minority will, and that intelligent minority is just what you want to conquer. Except in a very few instances, never tell a person his real faults. He never believes one, and he does not like it. Tell him just the opposite. But there are a few weaknesses of which people like to be told.

"Pride, stubbornness, a hot temper, profligacy, jealousy and a too sensitive conscience, these are the infirmities of which people are proud. But you must regulate your faults by the market.

"Never forget to tell a weak minded, easily led person that he is stubborn. He will be delighted.

"Invariably tell a pretty young girl that she is a flirt, and a too sensitive conscience, and deny it, but she is enraptured.

"Always tell any man that he is fond of the ladies; hint delicately that he is a bit of a scoundrel. If he is a young man he will be entertained; if he is an old man he will have a weakness for you from that day.

THE WAY IT IS DONE.

"I have given a few general rules which must be followed. I will now go into particulars. An illustration is better than a hundred rules, so I'll tell you how to do it.

"I take my victim into a quiet corner and look at his left hand. I look at it a long time without speaking. Then I let the indifferent look on my face change to one of startled incredulity or anxious doubt, and look suddenly into my subject's eyes with a searching glance. He begins to get interested. Let me suppose I have for my victim a young man of ordinary ability and average good looks. By the shape of his hand I can tell whether he is by nature executive or inventive.

"By his voice and manner I can form a pretty good guess as to his social position. Being a woman, I can tell the instant I take his hand whether he is accustomed to ladies' society or not.

"Now I have nothing to do but make a few vague guesses as to his life, and the thing is done. I always tell him he is ambitious; all young Americans are, or if they are not they think themselves so. I invariably tell him that he will make money. I say that his early life seems a bit unsettled; he had some doubts as to the value of his education. He will go back mentally to the time when he wanted to run away to sea, and he'll say, 'Well, that's queer. I did want to go into the navy when I was young.' Tell him he is very proud, very obstinate when roused, very fond of his friends and that he would make a good soldier. Say that he is unlucky, but that he will succeed through the force of his ability; that he has many traits the existence of which his friends do not suspect. Hint darkly at mysterious troubles and jealous rivals. Chaff him a little about his love affairs, and I have worked the miracle. He will go forth and say, 'Well, of course I don't believe in such things, but she really told me some remarkable truths.'

"I am always careful to estimate my man first. But one class is as easy to cajole as another. The shrewd, pushing young business man is no sharper to see his own faults than the languid young society swell. This seems so simple that it sounds absurd. Try it! You will be amazed at the results. You will be astonished at the results of intelligent men and women—at the wonder with which they regard the most self evident fact when it comes from the lips of a fortune teller. I have said the most absurd commonplace things to people, and they have gazed at me in awe and amazement. The most ridiculous statements will be received in silent reverence."—Charity Breen in New York Star.

Raspberry Syrup.

Mash and press with a spoon some very ripe raspberries, let them stand a few hours in a cool place, then strain them. Allow a half pound of sugar to each pint of juice and boil it at once. Let it boil slowly for half an hour; skim it well, or when you have taken it from the fire give it a stir, and any skum will sink to the bottom. When quite cold, fill small, dry bottles, cork them well, using only new corks. Stand the bottles upright in a cool place. A little lime and fresh salad oil poured on the top before corking is said to insure the keeping of the syrup any length of time.—Medical Classics.

HER ANSWER.

The question long had been upon my lips; I asked it, trembling to my finger tips; she did not flatter, though her voice was low; The answer that she made was 'Yes.'

She did not look upon me with surprise; She did not frown by glance avert her eyes; But in her cheeks I saw the roses glow; As she with gentle tones replied 'No.'

She had a trick for artifice with me; She did not say a sister she would be; And no confusion did the maiden show; As to my question she responded 'No.'

What was my question, reader? Let me tell; She had told me that she loved me well; I asked, 'Will you ever love another?' No; And to this question 'was she answered' 'No.'

—The Epitaph.

Toast.

Because people use the same words, it does not follow that they mean the same thing. The word 'particular,' for example, means one bird in New England and another at the south, and the significance of even so common a term as 'toast' appears to be subject to wide fluctuations.

On the second day out from Fort Smith, says Col. Marcy, we halted for the night at a respectable looking farm house, and my New York companion readily obtained from the hostess a promise to make a nice dish of toast and a cup of tea.

In due course supper was announced, and we seated ourselves at the table. The dishes before us consisted of fried bacon floating in grease, some corn bread in the shape of hand grenades, and a quantity of glutinous, half baked hot biscuit, neither of which seemed calculated to tempt the appetite of the gentleman from New York, who called for the toast.

The landlady replied that she "had it on fryin," and she loved it would soon be done.

Capt. McClellan and myself exchanged significant glances, but my friend from New York appeared not to appreciate the joke, and inquired what she meant by frying toast. She assured him it was all right, as he would soon see for himself.

When it came on the table, it appeared that she had taken the loaf, cut it in two parts, placed them in a pan, and fried them in grease for about half an hour.

My friend did not seem to relish this method of cooking, and explained to the hostess in detail the proper method of making toast, whereupon she said, "Oh, I see; you want burnt bread. I thought you wanted toast."—Youth's Companion.

Not So Funny.

It is so much clear gain when the effervescence of boyish force is conducted away from mischief making by a fishing rod, a bicycle or a set of mechanical tools. A sailboat may quench a boy's desire for a sailor's life, and camping out in the woods may cool his ambition to go west and fight the Indians.

Mr. J. E. Trowbridge, in The North American Review, tells how one boy learned a similar lesson at a much greater cost.

A few years ago some youngsters in the suburbs of Boston conceived the idea of going west and becoming cowboys. First, however, they thought best to get little practice as amateurs. They would sasso a cow.

The leader, the Buffalo Bill of the party, having to act the double part of horse and rider, tied a cloth to his own waist and made a loop of the other end which he threw over the cow's horns, as she was quietly feeding in the pasture.

It took her some time to find out what the fooling meant. Then she made things lively for the "cowboy." The part of the lass, however, was successful, but the part of the horse was a failure.

He was thrown to the earth, and one continuous streak of cow, rope, and "colish" boy went flying across the braunly field, and over walls and fences, to the amazement of spectators, and to the especial profit of nobody but the village surgeons, who were sent for, after the rope—along with three of the boy's ribs—had got broken.

A general impression seemed to be left upon the youngsters that there was not so much fun in lassing a cow as they had expected.

OTHER REASONS FOR PURCHASING LOTS IN SOUTH PARK.

As a whole they are the finest lying lots in the city. They are shaded with beautiful forest trees. They are located between Chicago and Lincoln Avenues—the two finest drives about the city. They are only a few minutes' walk from the business portion of the town.

By reason of their location between the two main thoroughfares into the city, they are more accessible than lots in other additions.

The only addition to the city reached by two established avenues. Will certainly have street car privileges at no distant date.

If you wish a fine view of the river, locate on a lot in South Park. If you wish a slightly and picturesque view of Plattsmouth, it can be had from a South Park lot.

To persons in disreputable employ, the eastern portions of South Park is the most desirable residence locality in the city.

The B. & M. railroad track runs near the east line of the addition, furnishing good facilities for manufacturing industries which will come at no distant date.

About $15,000 worth of this desirable property has been disposed of within a short period, and no part has been sold to outside speculators, which is solid proof of the substantial growth of this part of the city.

The effect of using Hilbard's Rheumatic Syrup is unlike any medicine containing opium or poisons, it being entirely free from them. It cures rheumatism by purifying the blood. Sold by F. G. Eicke & Co.

A Bad Spell.

A merchant's clerk wrote a check for forty dollars, and spelled the numerical adjective "fourty." His employer directed his attention to the error, with the remark, "you seem to have a bad spell this morning," to which the clerk replied, "sure enough; I've left out the 'g-h'." Let us hope the clerk will still further amend his orthography, meanwhile, if any suffer from a bad "spell" of headache, superinduced by constipation, ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's "Largest Purgative Pellets. Entirely vegetable, mild, prompt and effective, and a most efficient remedy for derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

A Comfortable Home.

is one where a man that is weary can rest himself upon a neat sofa, if he is hungry he can go to the cupboard or safe and get something to eat, if he is thirsty he can draw a glass of cold water from the refrigerator, if he has company he can show them into a neatly furnished parlor and give them an elegantly arranged spare room, if the wife has sewing she can rest comfortably in a low rocking chair in going out to call a fine dresser is at hand to arrange the appearance before and there is always a hat rack in the hall to keep personal property on and a jar to receive the wet umbrellas. Be comfortable and happy and furnish your home from the Furniture Emporium of Henry Bowers.

Fifteen Thousand Dollars Bonus!

SOUTH PARK AGAIN TO THE FRONT!

The owners of South Park hereby stipulate and agree that in the event of the sale of 200 lots between June the 20th and Dec. 31st, 1889, they will appropriate $10,000 and land in South Park valued at $5,000 as a bonus and inducement for the location of some institution or industry in that part of the city.

2d. Lots will be sold at present prices, viz: $150 for inside and $175 for corner lots, and on monthly payments when desired.

3d. All sales where requested will be made conditional that the $15,000 will be appropriated as stated, otherwise the contracts of purchase be rescinded and money refunded.

The proprietors of South Park believe, that with a bonus of $15,000 an important addition of outside capital can be induced to invest in Plattsmouth, and with that end in view, are opening up an extensive correspondence. After selling 200 lots they will still have over 200 left, to be enhanced in value by the investment, and the general prosperity of Plattsmouth.

Every purchaser of a lot now, gets it at the same price that lots have sold for from the start and before the Park was settled, with the advantages: That it is a well populated, having church and school house privileges; the city water mains extending to its limits, which assures water supply at no distant date; the location of the fair grounds at a distance of only one-half mile; the extending of the corporate limits south of the Park three-fourths of a mile, leaving it the center of the new Fifth ward with able representatives in the city council; the permanent and rapid growth of the additional immediately surrounding the Park, which is constantly enhancing the value of its lots; and with the unparalleled proposition that unless a large sum of actual cash is invested in some industry for the increasing in value of the lots purchased, by Dec. 31st, your money will be refunded.

Remember, when you buy a lot in South Park for $150 it is now worth as much as lots sold in some other portions of the city for $250. Our policy is, low prices and easy terms, and the interesting of many persons in the Park by liberal means, to enhance the value of our reserve lots.
