SAVED BY PRESENTIMENTS.

Strange and Mysterious Warnings Hooded

in Time to Escape Death. "I want to tell you a story," said Dr. Moliere, a well known physician. "Tra not a superstitions man, nor do I believe in areams, but for the third or fourth time in my life I was saved by a premonition. I got aboard car No. 81, on the Sutter street line, at the ferry, to ride up to my office. As usual I walked to the forward end of the car, took a seat in the corner with my back to the driver, and, pulling a paper from my pocket, was soon deeply engrossed in the news. Suddenly something said to me, 'Go to the other end of "Acting on impulse I changed my seat, and so rapid were my movements that the other passengers in the car noticed them. Remember, I was sitting in the first place with my back to the driver. I was paying no attention to anything but my newspaper, and the premonition, if I may so call it, could not have come from any outside infinence, such as seeing approaching danger; but, sir, I had not been in my new seat more than five seconds when the tongue of a heavy loaded wagon crushed through the side of the car just where I had been irst seated, and had I not changed my seat my back would have been broken by the wagon tongue.

"As I said," continued the doctor "I am not superstitions, but the incident I have just related, taken in connection with other incidents of a similar nature occurring in my life, make me believe in spite of myself that there is a 'divinity that shapes our cads, rough-hew them now we will."

In answer to a question as to what similar warning or premonition of danger he had ever received, Dr. Moliere said: "Well, one time I was riding on the Michigan Central railroad. It was a bitter cold night, and when I entered the car my feet seemed frozen. I walked forward and took a seat next to the stove in the forward part of the car, putting my feet on the fender. In a short time a gentleman changed his seat and came and sat beside me. The train was running at a high rate of speed, and the draught soon made the heater in the car red hot. Suddenly there came to me a premonition of danger, and turning to my companion I said: 'If we should meet with an accident, a collision, for instance, you and I would be in a bad place. We would sectainly be hurled on that red hot stove.'

"At the same instant, and before my seat mate could reply, the impulse to grasp the end of the seat came upon me so strong I could not resist it, and hardly had my fingers closed upon the rail of the seat when there came a crash, and the car we were in was thrown violently from the track. I clung to the seat, and my companion, when thrown forward, aarrowly missed the stove. My position in the seat was such that had I been pitched headlong as he was I could not DR UGS have missed the heater. A broken rail caused the accident, but what caused me to grasp the seat as I did I would like to know."-San Francisco Chronicle.

The Sulky Man.

If the temper is a sullen or sulky one, probably he has some little cause for taking offense, or he has at least an opportunity for imagining that he has been slighted. He persuades himself that some one has been wanting in the affection or respect which is his due. He feels himself insulted, injured; and he has not magnanimity enough to pass over the matter without taking care that the slight offered should be expiated by suffering. His self love demands that some one should suffer; and the suffering of the victim-although he might be shocked to think so and might refuse to believe it-affords him a certain satisfaction and a certain pleasure. When the offender has been made to feel that it is no light matter to neglect the comfort of the ill tempered man, or to prefer any other interests to his, when he or she has been made thoroughly miserable, the sulky man is appeased; he is perhaps even penitent; his demon has been gratified, and is no longer hungry. The fact that the bad temper, with its symptoms of black looks or harsh words or sullen silence, was maintained until the suffering of the victim became evident is enough to show that sulkiness is really a much worse kind of fault than people generally imagine.—Chambers' Journal.

Canine Fidelity.

We are wont to regard the dog as the perfect embodiment of fidelity, and on the whole the good opinion of his character has been justified. The saying of the German pessimist that he would cease to believe in truth but for the asherself, one supposes, would hardly claim this excellence for every member of the canine family. We are apt to forget that the instinct of attachment was developed comparatively late in the history of the species. The dog is by nature unattached and vagrant, and only becomes attached and faithful by an infusion of human grace. Hence the comical spectacle one sometimes sees in the streets-a well meaning but misguided youth attempting to keep a loosely inclined pup close to his heels. And not a few members of the species appear to remain in this unregenerate state in mature years.—Cornhill Magazine.

The following is a story told by an old sailor to Samuel Adams Drake, and should be appreciated equally by those who love and those who loathe "the thing they call the sea:"

"Most allus makes more or less folks unwell, the motion does. We had two gents abord of us last trip. One of 'em was a lawyer. My grief, wasn't be done up, though!

"Tother wasn't a bit. There he sot, mokin', as calm as a kitten. He was a high-up jedge, goin' down to hold court.
" Can I do anything for you? says he. "'Yes,' gasped the seasick one, 'I wish your honor would overrule this motion.'"
