PLATISMOUTH

A man with large business interests and a handsome income married a lady who, accustomed all her previous life to the luxuries of wealth, had never formed any clear conception of the worth and purchasing power of money. For some montes the indulgent husband gratified his wife's every whim.

One day the lady, to carry out some caprice, asked for a check for so large a sum that the gentleman was disturbed. He saw that such prodigality, if persisted in, meant ruin; but not wishing to grieve his wife by a downright refusal he determined to give her a lesson in finance. He therefore smilingly remarked that he could not give her a check as usual, but would send up the money from his store.

About noon the promised money came, not in crisp bills, as was expected, but in silver dollars, the sum total ming several specie bags. The wife was first vexed, then amused. and finally, as the afternoon wore away. became deeply thoughtful. When her husband came home to supper she took him gently by the arm, and leading him into the room where the ponderous bags of specie were still standing, said:

"My dear, is this the money I asked you for this morning."

"It is, my love," was the reply. "And did you have to take this money all in, dollar by dollar, in the course of your business?" was the next question. "Yes," he answered, gently, "it repres-nts the earnings of many weeks of hard lapor.

"Well, then," she said, with tearful eyes, "send a man to take it back to the bank in the morning. I can't use so much money for so trivial a purpose. 1 didn't understand about it before."-Youth's Companion.

A Blind Man's Intelligent Dog.

Every one who walks along upper Broadway knows the blind newsman and his dog at the corner of Thirtieth street. The man sits on a camp stool from noon until 8 o'clock every day selling papers, and during that time the dog is his constant companion.

The other evening, when the man had sold all his papers and was ready to go home, he got up, folded his camp stool and tucked it under his arm, and catching a tight hold of the string attached to the dog's collar, started to walk up Broadway. When they reached the the blind man, tugging at the string. But the dog seemingly paid no attention. He was looking intently down the street at the approaching horse cars. He stood this way for some minutes, scanning each car carefully as it passed, and suddeniy ran out into the street, the man following, and jumped aboard the front platform of an up town green car. The car stopped and the blind man groped his way inside and took a seat, while the dog remained on the platform.

The same performance is repeated every night, and it is said that the man and his dog are known to all the drivers

Hopelessness of the "Cracker." One clever, original manufactorer for rive years devoted head, heart and purse to ameliorate the condition of his oper atives-the worst class in the community. They had no homes; he bought and built houses, which fell to pieces through neglect or were burned up in orgies When their dwellings were again repaired the crackers feit out of place in a setting of order and neutness, and "jes to make things sorter homelike," as was afterward naively explained, they kicked out the panels of the doors, smashed the windows, riddled the walls and cut up the floors for kindling wood.

With driftwood for fuel lying almost at their gates, if they have a gate. rather than walk to and from the fence. if they have a fence, the proletarian inhabitants prefer to destroy their landlord's property. An attempt to utilize their horticultural instincts was unavailing. The gardens were fenced, the tenants burned the planks: the plats were plowed, not a seed was planted, and when, undiscouraged, the employer lanted the gardens himself, the people turned in the hogs with the comment. "Bacon's better than garden sass any day."-Century.

A Hymn with Two Authors. Who is the author of the hymn, "In the Sweet By and By?" With regard to the authorship of this now famous hymn there is a difference of opinion. The author of the words is believed to be Dr. S. F. Bennett, who, while living in Elkhorn, Wis., wrote the lines in a fit of mental depression. They were set to music by Mr. J. P. Webster, a composer living in the same town. Another version credits Mr. Webster with the authorship of the music and the first verse of the hymn, which was then completed by Dr. Bennett. The credit of both words and music must be given to the two gentlemen mentioned, though what was the individual contribution of each cannot now be determined. The song was written in 1868, and almost immediately achieved the wide popularity which it has ever since enjoyed .- St. Louis Globe-
