

How a King Keeps Cool.
The King of Siam is said to have in one of his country palaces a wonderful pavilion. It was built by a Chinese engineer as a refuge for the King during the extreme heat of the summer. The walls, ceilings, and floors are formed of pieces of plate glass an inch thick. These are so perfectly fitted together with a transparent cement that the joints are invisible and no fluid can penetrate. The pavilion is 28 feet long and 17 wide, and stands in the middle of a huge basin made of beautiful colored marbles.

When the King enters the pavilion the single door is closed and cemented. Then the sluice gates are opened and the basin is filled with water. Higher and higher it raises until the pavilion is covered and only the ventilators at the top connect it with the open air. When the heat of the sun is so great that the water almost boils on the surface of the freshest fountains, this pavilion is deliciously cool. And that is the way the King of Siam cools himself off in the hot weather. It sounds very delightful.

The Ladies Home Journal.
Lady Macdonald, the widow of the last premier of Canada, opens the August Ladies Home Journal with her first contribution to literature, in the open article of a series which she has written for that magazine, descriptive of "An Unconventional Holiday" which, with a party of friends and in her private car, she enjoyed last summer through the most picturesque portions of Canada. Lady Macdonald's article is written in that delightful fresh and unconventional manner of which we see so little in our modern literature, and which possesses such a charm. Annie R. Ramsey has some very timely "Hints on Mountain Climbing"; Kate Tannatt Woods treats a new subject in telling what "The Girls off to Boarding School" should take with her; the poet Tennyson's wife is sketched in the series of "Unknown Wives of Well-Known Men"; a very helpful handful of articles are those which treat of all the "Summer Ills and Summer Dangers"; the different "Types of American Girls" are treated by four able writers; Jeannette L. Gilder has a clever character-sketch in "Pepper Hash"; Ellen Le Gradd shows the benefits of "Swimming for Girls"; Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney's and Jessie O'Donnell's series are continued; Dr. Talmage writes his month from seashore home; Hezekiah Butterworth and Robert J. Burdette tell some "Bright Things for Boys"; Mrs. Milson has the best Fashion articles supported by any magazine; Maria Parlor and Juliet Carson give some dainties for the summer table; little Elsie Leslie writes of "Children on the Stage"; and all thought this number there is the birth of summer and the strength of merit. The Journal shows in this issue how well it is conducted. One dollar per year. Published in Philadelphia by the Curtis Publishing Company.

A Close Call.
Saturday morning, July the 14th the lightning struck and completely demolished the house of John Scott in the west part of Greenwood. The bolt struck the chimney, leveling it to the roof. Here the bolt divided running in different directions down the roof tearing off fully half the shingles and splintering rafters in a fearful manner. The weather boarding, sheeting and studding were torn from two sides of the house. The inside of the house fared even worse than the outside. Lath, plastering and window casing were thrown to the middle of the floor. The miraculous part was that the family, consisting of five persons, were sleeping up stairs and escaped with only nominal injuries outside of the fright. The beds were covered with brick and plastering. The house litterly torn away from all sides of the beds. Every chair in the house was turned over and pictures and other ornaments were torn from the wall.

Specimen Cases.
S. H. Clifford, New Castle, Wis., was troubled with neuralgia and rheumatism, his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven bottles Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well.

John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely.

Highway Robbery.
F. A. Creamer and Mr. Klein of Ashland brought in a man to-day who attempted to hold a hired man near South Bend last evening. The robber only got 25 cents but if he had persisted he might have got $100 as that amount was held by would be victim. He now awaits trial and boards with Sheriff Tighe.

THE LAND OF INVERTED ORDER

Queer Freaks of Nature Seen in Australia and Vicinity.
In the following it is proposed to prove that Australia can be termed "The Land of Inverted Order." In the Antipodean wilds of that new South Pacific republic everything has some remarkable characteristic peculiarity. Instead of the leaves having their flat sides turned to the ground they stand edgewise. The opossum of America is the only species of panned animal known to the world outside of Australia. On the Australian continent there are at least 110 species having that distinguishing peculiarity.

They have been arranged into five tribes, according to the food they eat. The root eaters (wombats), the fruit eaters (phalangers), the grass eaters (kangaroos), the insect eaters and the fish eaters (native cats and rats). Of the wombats there are four species, all of which burrow in the ground.

Two other very curious animals are found in Australia that are unknown in any other part of the world. These are the echidna and the ornithorhynchus. This latter is a species of beast shaped like a beaver, but having web feet and a bill like a duck. Then there is a flying mouse, about half the size of our common mouse and of a bright red color. It has a very long, furry tail, which is used as a rudder and looks much like a feather when fully expanded.

The trees are always in full leaf, but shed their bark every year, which fact alone would be sufficient to make the Antipodean continent a wonderland. The leaves of nearly all the trees are highly aromatic, but the native flowers, though of most brilliant tint, have no fragrance whatever. In writing of the backward order of things in Australia, Mr. M. W. Ullathorne says:

Australia is the antipode of the entire world. In that country a rising barometer indicates rain, and a falling barometer fair weather. The swans are black and the eagles white; the mole is oviparous and has a duck's beak; the dogs have a wolf's head, a fox's tail, and a never bark. They also have a bird with a tongue like a broom, and a fish which has part of the body belonging to the genus Kaia and part to the genus Squalo. Many winged serpents are found there and fish with large feathery wings. The emu is a bird as large as an ostrich, but instead of feathers has hair. One bird has a note like a bell, another cries like a child, while a third laughs as though his sides would split.—St. Louis Republic.

Hawthorne.
Ancestry and local surroundings, mental gifts and mental defects, unite to make Hawthorne the greatest master of the preternatural, the magician of the spell of supernatural awe. From every side come the elements which produce the effect of unsubstantiality—his power of pensive brooding, the brown twilight color which wraps his figures in a strange, hazy atmosphere, the coldness of his analysis, the self possession of his style, the indefiniteness of his touch, the indeterminateness of his end. His heroes and heroines have little warmth; they scarcely talk like ordinary men and women; they move self consciously; they speak constrainedly, as though there is something present which reads their thoughts, notes their gestures, registers their actions.

The human interest is never so overpowering as to break through the film of the atmosphere. A master of the by-play of suggestion, his hints meet us at every turn. His subtle mind and pictorial imagination give ghostly significance to the commonest objects. He works out the central idea in marvelous detail, never presenting it nakedly, but always giving it concrete shape, exhibits it from fresh points of view, offers it in new combination, till the reader ends by feeling that he is himself haunted by the impalpable, inevitable presence of Hawthorne's thought.—Edinburgh Review.

Some have so charming a manner as to lead you to think that you are, for them, the only person of interest in the world. Observation of their way with others may make you modify your opinion of the manner which once seemed so charming.

Andrew Carnegie has the short, thick-set figure that characterized Grant, Meissonier and many other notable "little" men. He wears a full gray beard, and his eyes are gray and kindly.
