

Arrested, Then Married.
Monday William Jones and Chester Smith, two young Canastota men, came to Utica to enjoy a day's pleasure. They devoted the day to seeing the sights and expended their money in various ways. They thereupon decided to pawn their watches which were in their possession, and by attempting to do this they fell into the clutches of the law upon suspicion. At the police station they said their sweethearts, Minnie Perry and Hattie Dailey, of Canastota, had given them the watches, and Chief of Police Dagwell used the telephone to find out whether the story was true. The young women immediately swore out warrants for the arrest of the young men, claiming they had simply loaned them the watches, and United States Marshal J. E. Stinson came to Utica Tuesday and took the train back to their native town. They were arraigned before Justice Northrop, and the young women were not able to establish their charge of larceny. It appeared, however, that while they had given their hearts freely and wholly to the young men, they had only loaned them the watches, but the crime of larceny was not proven, and the young men were discharged from custody. At this point of the proceedings a consultation took place. Remorse was displayed on both sides, and some one of the four proposed that the whole affair could be nicely arranged in a few minutes by a couple of weddings. The parties most interested agreed to this pleasant way out of the mess, and Justice Northrop tied the double knot with dispatch. Miss Dailey became the bride of Mr. Jones and Miss Perry was wedded to Mr. Smith.—Utica Observer.

He Kept His Youth.
 There was one man in New London before the college boat races had ended who was a refreshing treat to those who were in the Connecticut town. He had a son who was rowing in one of the big university boats, and he was an example of the paternal college spirit which may grow old, but which seldom dies. Here was a man sixty years old, who spent three weeks in New London following college oarsmen from one end of the town to the other. You might see him with a couple of young men whose arms were locked in his. No years could rob him of the sentiment which hung around his memory of his college days. He was an undergraduate again with the undergraduates who were classmates of one of his sons. Whenever he saw a college man whom he knew, whether the youngster were 100 or 500 yards away, the old man would hurry off, crying after the other, "Halloo, old man, wait a minute." That college boy forty years a graduate was one of the most popular men to be found near the famous old four mile course on the historic Thames.—New York Tribune.

An Indiana Snake Charmer.
 Joseph Freibur, of Cincinnati, has acquired a reputation in this vicinity as a snake charmer. Yesterday was his first opportunity to display his powers. He and Samuel Benz hired a rig, and accompanied by Mrs. Benz drove to Taswell, seven miles distant. En route they alighted to gather some wild raspberries, when they were attacked by rattlesnakes. They were in a rattlesnake's den. A small terrier which accompanied them was bitten, and almost instantly swelled to twice his size. Mr. and Mrs. Benz fled and called for Mr. F. to follow, but he stood his ground, and the snakes, which appeared to gather from every quarter, began to huddle round his feet and act as if they had found a long lost friend. Mr. F. now picked up one and ordered Mr. B. to get an old barrel at a house near by. This was procured and Mr. F. put the reptiles into it and brought them back to English. While in English Mr. F. gave several exhibitions of his power over the snakes, such as wrapping them round his neck and body, and stirring them around in the barrel with his naked arm.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

A Statue of Andreas Hofer.
 The emperor Francis Joseph has visited the sculptor Natter's studio to inspect the statue which he is completing of Andreas Hofer, the heroic Tyrolean who defended his country and was shot by the French in 1809. The statue is to be the central figure of a monument to be erected on Mount Isel, facing Innsbruck, with a tablet bearing the inscription, "Für Gott, Kaiser und Vaterland." The figure of the handsome peasant will stand bearing on high the Austrian flag. The bearded face surmounted by the simple broad brimmed hat is copied from a good picture of Hofer taken during his life, and now the property of the Count of Meran, who has lent it to the sculptor. The emperor was very much pleased with the statue of the popular national hero.—London News.

A Companion Hero.
 A day or two before Frederick Brokaw lost his life there was enacted at Washington, Pa., a scene more tragic and not less heroic than that. Walter Jones, aged fourteen years, and three young companions went in bathing and got beyond their depth. Jones could swim, the others could not. But, instead of saving himself, as he could easily have done, he set about trying to rescue his drowning companions. He succeeded in piloting one of them safely to shore and was in the act of landing the others when the death grip of the boys about him bore him down and they all three perished together.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

A Cow's Motherly Love Betray's Her Calf.
 In a pasture on a farm in East Hartford, recently, one of the cows had a calf which no one of the farm hands was able to find the day after its birth. A search proved a failure until some one suggested a novel scheme. It was to bring a dog into the lot, when, in all probability, the cow would return to her calf to defend it. The dog was brought, and sure enough the cow started for a clump of bushes, and among them the calf was found, where the leaves had concealed it.—Hartford Courant.

Lookout for the balloon ascension to-night. It is billed to leave terra firma at 4 o'clock but it will probably be later.

Two more of the massive passenger engines with three drive wheels on a side came in last night from the east. They were numbered 269 and 270.

The base ball boys still think they will get men as good as Motz and Adams to fill their places. Bert Dunn of Weeping Water may yet be engaged.

Benjamin Hasemeier, brother of the unfortunate fireman, together with James Robertson, brother-in-law, and Mr. and Mrs. Woods of Louisville, father and mother of the wife of the deceased, are in the city to-day.

Tom Leach discovered a boy by name of Darwin Alexander up in the cut last evening in an unconscious condition. His foot appeared to have been crushed by the train which had just passed. He was brought in to the Cottage House and the doctor dressed the painful foot, finding it badly crushed but no bones broken.

There will be an elocutionary entertainment at the Presbyterian church Friday, July 24, given by Miss Joanna Graham, a graduate from Chicago, under the auspices of the Girls' Society of the church. Ice cream and cake served afterward in the basement. Admission to the entertainment, 25 cents; children, 10 cents.

The "Light Feet" ball team of Plattsmouth came over here last Saturday to amuse the Crescents for a while. Two games were played, the Light Feet taking the first with a score of 15 to 11, the Crescents capturing the afternoon game in a score of 20 to 19. A large company occupied the grand stand during the last game and gave suitable encouragement to the boys when they needed it.—Weeping Water Eagle.

The Reported Cure of Cancer.
 Dr. H. J. Hardwicke, surgeon to the Sheffield Public Hospital for Skin Diseases and the Ear and Throat hospital, who has studied for twenty years the treatment of cancer and lupus, believes that he can now cure both diseases without resorting to the surgeon's knife. He has been in communication with Professor Von Moritz and finds that his system is similar to that recently announced by that gentleman to the Society of Physicians at Vienna.

Dr. Hardwicke has hitherto for various reasons refrained from publicly explaining his treatment, but having now almost brought his method to a state of perfection he is anxious and willing to place the details before such of his medical brethren as express to him any desire to be acquainted with them. With this object in view he will be glad to invite such would be inquirers to visit a selected number of cases now under treatment and carefully examine them, and also to examine a number of persons who have been cured during the past eighteen years.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Venerable Prelates.
 The announcement that Bishop Huntington at the age of seventy-two asks for assistance because the duties of his diocese are beyond his ability to discharge them, reminds us that this active and indefatigable prelate is one of our venerable men. Bishop Clark, who is the acting diocesan in Massachusetts today, is over eighty and exhibits but few of the marks of old age. Bishop Cox is already several years beyond threescore and ten, and is still a vigorous and active man. Bishop Williams, of Connecticut, the present primate of the Episcopal church, is very nearly seventy-five and is still in charge of his diocese, though his duties fall heavily upon him. Bishop Littlejohn, of Long Island, is not far from seventy, and must be classed among these older men.—Boston Herald.

New York Produces the Most Beans.
 "Can I tell you something about beans?" said B. B. Smith, the bean broker, to a reporter on the floor of the Produce exchange. "Well, I think I can. About the acreage—it is larger in New York state than it has been for the last ten years, and the Empire State produces practically all of the beans produced in the United States. Last year the domestic crop was small, and the foreigners made a handsome thing by sending their beans here. But this year I think the New York farmers will get the benefit of the market."—New York Tribune.

A Curious Freak of Lightning.
 To strike and shatter into splinters a dozen telegraph poles, one after the other, is rather curious. Lightning did this on Cemetery Hill road, near Coatesville. It did not select a pole here and there, but took the twelve in regular order, and splitting some in two it shattered into splinters the others. It is quite a sight to see them as they stand in their present condition.—West Chester (Pa.) News.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved.
 From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles; it has cured me and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at F. G. Fricke & Co's drug store, regular size, 50c. and $1.00.

I am an old man and have been a constant sufferer with catarrh for the last ten years. I am entirely cured by the use of Ely's Cream Balm. It is strange that so simple a remedy will cure such a stubborn disease.—Henry Billings, U. S. Pension Attorney, Washington, D. C. For eight years I have suffered from catarrh, which affected my eyes and hearing; I have employed many physicians without relief. I am now on my second bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, and feel confident of a complete cure.—Mary C. Thompson, Cerro Gordo, Ill.
