with mother. She has epileptic fits talks with a drawl and a nasal whine and emphasizes her words in a peculiar manner.
Her enemies said that she inflicted the troubles she foretold, her friends that she was a surprising medium through which the future revealed itself. She undoubtedly hit the truth in many instances.
For example, she happened to be at a lady's house in her travels and upon opening her book declared that a coffin appeared between her lines. Her hearer was visibly affected, because one of her sons was away at the war.
"No," said Ann, divining her thoughts, "he will not die in battle. He will choke to death."

There was but one way to do this, so thought his mother. He would be captured and hanged as a spy.
Despite the dictates of her reason she grieved for her son. A month later she heard that he had died in a southern hospital of diphtheria.
A poor man lost his coat. He could ill afford such a loss, for he had no other. All through the summer it was searched for, and when fall came and he felt the need of it he walked a few miles to hear what Ann could tell him about it.
"It hangs in a dark place upon a knife stuck in the wall," she read from her wonderful book.

Upon renewed search it was found at the house of his sister-in-law, and sure enough it hung upon the butcher knife behind the closet door. The sister-in-law had left it there when she went from home the spring before.—Virginia

A Beautifully Dressed Man.

"Eureka! I have found it!" as somebody cried when he found out something ages ago as he took his morning tub.
The thing I found was a beautifully dressed man. He did not burst on my view glorious in cuffs and collars. He was not in Life Guardsman uniform, nor was he artistically undressed for the tennis court. Possibly he was not one of the "upper ten," for he was riding in an omnibus near Victoria, and I gathered from his conversation that he was going to his work; but whoever he was his tailor was an artist to make "a thing of beauty," and therefore, according to Keats, "a joy forever," out of a man whose personal advantages consisted of youth, good health and blue eyes.

The tailor took these eyes for his keynote, so to speak, and produced a symphony in light electric blue. A suit of smooth serge repeated the color of the eyes. The ground of the shirt was an octave higher, and the pattern an octave lower in tone. The necktie struck the keynote again, while the highest note of all was represented by a small, but very blue steel chain. Bronze hat and shoes, to match the hair, completed a costume which was simply perfect. It was with much difficulty we refrained from asking his tailor's address.—Cor.
London Star.

Why He Was Eccentric.

Once upon a time I came under the banner of British eccentrics. I paid a visit to Crete, a Turkish island by the Levant, and, not finding the hotel of the capital to my mind, with the aid of some kindly intermediaries, I hired a house in the country, and went thither to take up my abode alone. To make matters worse, it was at an epoch when the island was disturbed by revolt. The Turkish regiments were being increased by new levies, and great was the activity on the various military exercising grounds outside Canea and Candia, the two chief towns.

However, nothing serious came of it, and I am free to confess that I enjoyed my unconventional bivouac none the less for the flavor of excitement that this outbreak in the island lent to it.
"How original! Just like an Englishman!" remarked one of the officers of the Austrian ironclads at that time anchored with the international fleet in Suda bay.
Yet, I believe, as a matter of fact, that he and some of his brethren envied me my residence.—All the Year Round.

One of Twain's Stories.

Here is a story Mark Twain recently told an English interviewer who wanted to learn all about American humor: "A clergyman in New York was requested by a man to come over to Brooklyn to officiate at his wife's funeral. The clergyman assented, only stipulating that there must be no delay, as he had an important engagement the same day. At the appointed hour they all met in the parlor.
The room was crowded with sobbing people. The clergyman stood up over the coffin and began to read the service, when he felt a tug at his coat tails, and bending down he heard the widower whisper in his ear, "We ain't ready yet."
"Rather awkwardly, he sat down in a dead silence. Presently he arose again, and the same thing took place. A third time he arose, and the same thing occured. "But what is the delay?" he whispered back; "why are you not ready?" "She ain't all here yet," was the very ghastly and unexpected reply; "her stomach's at the apothecary's."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Where Wild Bananas Are Found.

Are there no varieties of bananas wild?
Yes, some have been found in Ceylon, Cochin China and the Philippines.
These of course have seeds, but they are inferior to the long, cultivated varieties.
The banana is cultivated by suckers, and it is in this way that the literal plant perpetuates itself indefinitely. In Central Africa you may find thousands and thousands of plants that literally have in them the germ and life of ten thousand years' duration.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.

An Unfailing Sign.

"How do you distinguish the members of the Four Hundred?"
"By their long purses and their long ears."—New York Epoch.

Husbands too often permit wives,

The Way an Artist Reasons.

Here is a characteristic story about the great Parisian man milliner: A lady of high position once ventured to remonstrate with the great man because he had charged her £120 for a ball dress.
"The material," she said, "could be bought for twenty pounds, and surely the work of making up would be well paid with five pounds more."
"Madam," replied the milliner, in his loftiest manner, "go to M. Meissonier, the painter, and say to him, 'Here is a canvas, value a shilling, and here are colors, value four shillings. Paint me a picture with these colors on that canvas and I will pay you one and threepence.' What will he say? He will say, 'Madam, that is no payment for an artist.' I say more. I say, if you think my terms too high, pay me nothing and keep the robe. Art does not descend to the pettiness of the bigler."—London Tit-Bits.

A dog at Bern crept into a counting

I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and liver complaint. I doctored a long time and the medicines prescribed, in nearly every case, only aggravated the disease.
An apothecary advised me to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I did so, and was cured been my family medicine, and sickness has become a stranger to our household. I believe it to be the best medicine on earth."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is a certain cure, when the complaint origi-so much as Ayer's Sarsaparilla, a few bottles

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osceola,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day isn't far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. P. Kinsbelloe, Conway, Ark.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their own practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
