Had to Travel in a Train During a very hot night three Austrian cavalry officers were on a train which sped from Pesth to Vienna. As they had a compartment for themselves they sought to travel as comfortably as possible. First coats and vests disappeared, then collars and cuffs and so on until nothing remained on their bodies except night clothing. It was so sultry they remained awake all night. When the train stopped at one station one of the party remarked that it would be a good idea to have something to drink, and he hastily threw an overcoat over his body and ran to the bar of the station house.
Whether the bartender was too sleepy or the officer too slow, to the despair of the latter and his comrades the train in motion when he was at the door of the restaurant. The two other officers had first a hearty laugh and then pitied him for the condition he was in. But their comrade was not of the affection-kind. As soon as he discovered that the train was in motion he ran quickly after it and was lucky enough to reach the steps of the last car, on which he remained until the next station was reached.
When he made his appearance among his comrades they were much astonished and one of them said: "Why, when we saw you left behind we threw your garments out of the window in the hope that you would get them!" Nothing could be done but telegraph to the other station to have some one pick up the garments and forward them by the next train.—New York Recorder.

Mr. Hoe's Library.
Gotham boasts of a host of literary connoisseurs, who spend fortunes with liberality in the struggle to secure the gems of literary workmanship. The appearance of any particular treasure from the printing press brings them forward in animated rivalry for its possession. At the present time Mr. Robert Hoe, the printing press builder, owns the finest private library in New York.
It is in his city home at 11 East Thirty-sixth street, and is the delight of all his friends. The library is a spacious apartment finished in mahogany, with gallery nearly fifty feet in depth, and it is estimated that over 8,000 volumes of unique interest are stored on the shelves.
Mr. Hoe's cultivated taste as a collector is proved by the comprehensive scope of this magnificent collection. It is rich in old manuscripts, contains some of the rarest of missals and choice examples of the Gutenberg press and a varied group of incunabula, or specimens of the presses of the first century of presswork. Mr.
Hoe has gathered together also some of the most exquisite specimens of the bookbinder's art, sparing no money to secure the prizes that his literary enthusiasm craved possession of.—New York Sun.

A Half a Chance Man.
How many men have succeeded in life to whom not a single circumstance was kind? How often we hear people say of some worthless fellow, "Ah, well, he never had half a chance!" But there are plenty of boys who have come to the front in life's battle, who never had even a quarter of a chance.

Take Thomas Ball, the sculptor, for instance. He was but twelve years old when his father died. The poor widow —Thomas' mother, young herself, and far from strong—had five young children. There was no more school for Thomas after his father's death. He must go to work and help to support the rest. He got a place in a grocery store, where they gave him a dollar a week.
Not much, that—but what a difference it made to the poor little family!
From the time he was twelve young Ball had always to work for the others until they were all grown up.

He had little instruction, even in his art, and he never had that little until after he had earned the money to pay for it. But—he succeeded.—Youth's Companion.

A Tidy Little Romance.
He was a handsome, rosy cheeked old broker.
She applied for a position as typewriter.
And she was plump as a partridge and pretty as a picture.
"Will you give me your name?" he inquired kindly, after a few preliminary questions.

She blushed.
He was blind.
"I'd rather take yours, sir," she said with a cute little smile.
And Cupid's a cow if she didn't get it within a year.—Detroit Free Press.

A Farmer's Idea.
A farmer and his wife who had been doing Central park stopped at the Fifth avenue entrance as they came out and turned for a last look.
"Nice, isn't it?" said the wife.
"Purty darned fine, and no mistake," he heartily replied.
"What's it wuth?"
"Waal, that's hard to say, as I don't know what land fetches by the acre round here, but I'll tell ye this. If we had this thing on our farm jest as it stands I wouldn't take a cent less'n $5,000 for it, and I'd git $0,000 if I could!"—New York World.

Three Hours Too Soon.
The clock in a workshop at Lewiston, Me., stopped at 12 o'clock at night. At 9 o'clock the next forenoon one of the workmen, who had had a light breakfast and was hungry, looked at the clock and saw to his delight that the hour and minute hands pointed to 12. Thinking it noon, he washed up, put on his coat and started out for dinner without a word to any one. He reached home just three hours before the dinner was ready, and sorrowfully and slowly he walked back to the shop.—Exchange.

A Gigantic Vase.
An English firm of potters have produced the largest vase in the world. It is of china, its chief feature being a globe representing the world, which is supported on a pedestal and surrounded by mythological figures. The vase is 11 feet high and 6 feet 4 inches in diameter.
Its cost was $17,500.—St. Louis Republic.

A Husband's Mistake.
Husbands too often permit wives, and parents their children, to suffer from headache, dizziness, neuralgia, sleeplessness, fits, nervousness, when by the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine such serious results could easily be prevented.
Druggists everywhere say it gives universal satisfaction and has an immense sale. Woodworth & Co., of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Snow & Co., of Syracuse, N. Y.; J. C. Wolf, Hillsdale, Mich.; and hundreds of others say:

The Way an Artist Reasons.
Here is a characteristic story about the great Parisian man milliner: A lady of high position once ventured to remonstrate with the great man because he had charged her $120 for a ball dress.
"The material," she said, "could be bought for twenty pounds, and surely the work of making up would be well paid with five pounds more."

"Madam," replied the milliner, in his loftiest manner, "go to M. Meissonier, the painter, and say to him, 'Here is a canvas, value a shilling, and here are colors, value four shillings. Paint me a picture with these colors on that canvas and I will pay you one and threepence.' What will he say? He will say, 'Madam, that is no payment for an artist.' I say more. I say, if you think my terms too high, pay me nothing and keep the robe. Art does not descend to the pettiness of the higgler."—London Tit-Bits.

A dog at Bern crept into a counting house when the owner's back was turned, and after stealthily appropriating 250 francs in notes, scampered off with them and laid them at his own master's feet.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
Is an effective cure for I was a constant and liver complaint. I doctored a long time and the medicines prescribed, in nearly every case, only aggravated the disease.
An apothecary advised me to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I did so, and was cured at a cost of $5. Since that time it has been my family medicine, and sickness has become a stranger to our household. I believe it to be the best medicine on earth."

FOR DEBILITY,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is a certain cure, when the complaint origi-great sufferer from a low condition of the blood and general debility, becoming finally, so reduced that I was unfit for work. Not-so much as Ayer's Sarsaparilla, a few bottles of which restored me to health and strength.

I take every opportunity to recommend this medicine in similar cases."—C. Evick, 14 E.
