Old Methods of an Evangelist.

The death of Miller Willis, the Georgia evangelist, revives many interesting stories concerning his life and methods. He was certainly the queerest character that ever preached the Gospel at a camp meeting, at which places he was generally found. His pure and holy life, however, was a model for all. But about his methods: He frequently stopped strangers in the streets and planting himself in front of them would announce some startling text and then disappear, leaving the man or woman to preach the sermon to his or her own liking.

For instance, he on one occasion stopped a stranger and shouted in his ears, "This night thy soul shall be required of thee!" Willis vanished. But a year afterward he met the man in another city. Willis had forgotten him, but the stranger knew his man. Approaching him he extended his hand and said, "That text you shouted out so strangely to me on the streets of Milledgeville set me to thinking. It was the means of my conversion."

On another occasion, a dark, rainy night in winter, he passed a crowded hotel in the city of Charleston. Men were lounging and smoking in the lobby. Willis opened the door, but the little figure in dripping garments attracted no attention. Suddenly, after rapping loud on the floor with his heavy stick, every eye was turned toward him, when Willis said, "There won't be a man in this house alive in fifty years from tonight!" And he slammed the door and went out into the night.

Some time afterward he was approached by a young man on a street car, who introduced himself by saying: "I have long desired to meet you and to thank you for saying what you did in the hotel lobby one winter's night. Your words have been ringing in my ears ever since, and I am now a Christian man."—Atlanta Constitution.

The Key of Death.

About the year 1600 a stranger named Tebaldo established himself as a merchant in Venice. Soon becoming infatuated with the daughter of one of the most ancient and wealthy families he asked her hand and was rejected, the young lady being already affianced. Half crazed and thoroughly enraged he planned revenge. Being an excellent mechanic he soon evolved a most formidable looking key. The handle of this unique weapon could be easily turned. Being turned it disclosed a spring with a missile in the shape of a needle of exquisite fineness. With this weapon Tebaldo waited at the church door until the maiden he loved passed in on the morning of her marriage. When the bridegroom appeared the desperate lover, unperceived, sent the slender poisoned needle into his rival's breast, and within an hour he was dead of a "strange, baffling disease."

Again Tebaldo demanded the hand of the maiden, but was refused. Within a few days both her parents had died in a very mysterious manner. Suspicion being excited, examination was made, and the small steel instruments found in the flesh in both cases. One day the maiden allowed Tebaldo an audience, but told him that she would never be his bride. Within an hour she was a corpse. Tebaldo was suspected, the key discovered and the culprit hanged. The celebrated "key of death" is still shown to the curious visitor of the Venice museum.—St. Louis Republic.

A Convenient Ring.

The following incident happened at Oroville, Cal.: It was a handsome solitaire, and she evidently desired the jeweler to know that it was her engagement ring.

"I would like to have this ring cut down to suit my finger," said the handsome heart smasher, as she flourished the brilliant ring before the eyes of the jeweler.

The jeweler took the ring and smiled—she had seen it before.

"I can fix that in a minute," replied he. Screwing a magnifying glass in his eye, and taking a small sharp pointed instrument in his hand, he touched a minute button on the inside of the ring and made it the exact size, saying, as he placed it on her finger, "You see these rings are made in this manner for the reason that they are worn by so many different people; it is a great convenience."

The young lady sailed out of the store burning with indignation, and the reason she did not fly was because she didn't have the wings. What did she think? You know, and it is only necessary to state that she did not wear the ring. Another girl has it now, but this time the jeweler was not permitted to touch the button—the young man did it himself.—Jewelers' Circular.

A Deaf Mute Cow.

Alexander Sherkov, the Russian veterinary surgeon, reports the case of a deaf mute cow. She is 12 years old, of Algava breed, belongs to a Russian nobleman, and has never showed signs of hearing or been known to bellow. Seeing that other cows bellow, she tries to imitate them, stretching out her head and opening her mouth, not, however, producing the least semblance to a sound. Two of her offspring have been curiously malformed. One had its tail directly between the eyes; it lived but a week. The other is a full grown cow of 5 years, with her udder in her flank, about eight inches from her backbone.—London Tit-Bits.

Indian Names.

A station not very far from Pittsburgh, on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, has the good old English name of Sobo. In announcing it there is no opportunity for the brakemen to disguise the word, as he is too apt to do with the names of other places.

As a train neared the town not long ago the word was distinctly shouted, and a passenger was heard to say to the man sharing his seat:

"How many towns in this part of the country have Indian names? Just think of it—Sobo, Monongahola and Duquesne, all near together.—Youth's Companion.

A Great Event

In one's life is the discovery of a remedy for some long-standing malady. The poison of Scrofula is in your blood. You inherited it from your ancestors. Will you transmit it to your offspring? In the great majority of cases, both Consumption and Catarrh originate in Scrofula. It is supposed to be the primary source of many other derangements of the body. Begin at once to cleanse your blood with the standard alternative,

"For many years I was a sufferer from scrofula, until about three years ago, when I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, since which the disease has entirely disappeared. A little child of mine, who was troubled with the same complaint, has also been cured by this medicine."—H. Brandt, Avoca, Nehr.
