THE CONVENTION

Democrats meet at Weeping Water and Select Delegates

The democratic convention convened at Weeping Water Saturday with a good representation from every section of the county.

The convention was called to order by Conrad Slater, chairman of the County Central Committee. F. E. White was chosen chairman and Dr. Deering, of Wabash, secretary. The deliberations did not partake to any great extent, of the old time democratic enthusiasm, but the business was transacted in a quiet yet earnest and careful manner.

The convention endorsed the democratic state and national platforms of last year, which they deemed a sufficient test of party fealty. It was thought that a member of the Plattsmouth delegation would insist upon the adoption of a resolution censuring Gov. Boyd's veto of the Newberry bill, but as indications pointed to the fact that it would not be favorably acted upon it was not presented for consideration.

There is but little doubt, however, that the state platform will condemn Boyd's action, with a view of capturing the Farmers Alliance vote, but in our opinion the farmers of Nebraska have had enough to do with democratic promises.

Delegates to the state convention were chosen as follows: W. D. Jones, Al Totten, F. E. White, W. B. Shyrock, J. P. Hansel, S. C. Patterson, Jacob Tritsch, L. G. Larson, D. S. Draper, A. C. Loder, J. F. Travis, J. A. Pollard, G. W. Harshman, J. M. Patterson, Dr. John Black.

Through some mistake in the call delegates were not appointed to attend the judicial convention but a committee was appointed to confer with the Otoe county central committee regarding the matter.

NEBRASKA SOLDIERS' ASS'N.

Third Annual Reunion Held at Cushman Park, Lincoln.

The third reunion of the Nebraska Soldiers' Association commenced last Friday and continued two days. We learn that the attendance was fairly good, and the soldiers enjoyed themselves very well under the circumstances. It appears that Lincoln did but little toward entertaining the veterans, and of course the lack of suitable accommodations had a tendency to render the reunion less pleasant.

We learn from the Lincoln Journal that the following resolutions were adopted as an indication of the esteem in which the late comrade, Gen. John McNeal of St. Louis, was held by the veterans:

RESOLVED, That we deeply sympathize with the family of our late esteemed comrade General John McNeal, in their sad bereavement and trust that He whose hand inflicted the blow will give them strength to bear the burden of their grief.

RESOLVED, That this testimonial of our esteem be spread upon our records and that our secretary be instructed to forward a copy hereof to the widow and family of our late comrade.

We notice that our townsman, H. C. McMaken, as chairman of the committee, submitted the above resolutions.

The next reunion will be held at Nebraska City, Jan. 12, 13 and 14, 1892.

Corn for Food.

We clip the following from the Omaha Bee, thinking it might be of interest to our readers:

"PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Sept. 11.—To the Editor of the Bee: After reading in the Omaha Bee an address of Mr. Webster to the board of trade concerning the food prospects of Europe, it appears to me that now is the time to introduce the chief staple of Nebraska to the people of that continent, especially of Great Britain and Ireland. If properly introduced, I am satisfied that a very great consumption of corn may be stimulated throughout those islands. Emigrants thence to this country readily take to it. Why? Because they learn to prepare it so as to please the palate, and if right steps are only taken to teach them there by their own fire side as it were there is no reason why a taste for it should not be created. Maizma and other preparations of corn readily sell there, as would corn in immense quantities, as wheat bread is very likely soon to be out of the reach of the poorer mechanics and laborers. I would suggest that one or two good colored cooks having a good practical knowledge and skillful in the preparation of the many cheap delicacies into which corn may be cooked, provided with a proper outfit of the necessary utensils and under the direction of a competent and experienced person, visit the principal annual agricultural fairs or shows, particularly those held in the thickly populated manufacturing districts of Yorkshire, Lancashire, Warwickshire, etc., where the distress is likely to be greatest, and by ocular demonstration teach them how simple is its preparation and by distributing that which is prepared it will be readily understood how it has become one of the staple foods of America and has a prominent place at the tables of the rich and poor alike. Small parcels of three or five pounds could be readily sold as samples, and pamphlets distributed setting forth its nutritious properties and containing a few simple recipes for its preparation as a vegetable, or bread or cake or pudding; not numerous, but simple to prepare, enticing to the eye and pleasing to the palate. It could be introduced to the numerous schools of cookers of which there is one in almost every town, and whose demonstrators would find in it a new, agreeable and economical culinary sensation, and would make the preparation of corn part of their course. Other and very important channels, through which an immense amount of this food might be distributed, are the charitable institutions; in these in and about London there are nearly 30,000 children fed and clothed gratuitously. Among them I may mention the Foundling hospital, the Bluecoat and Yorkshire societies' schools, and schools supported by the fishmongers, drapers' and other societies. And with the prospects before them of increased taxation for the support of the poor and criminals benches of magistrates and boards of guardians would lend a willing ear to any representations or suggestions that might be made to them and give them serious consideration, the result of which, I feel convinced, would be favorable. I see by the English press that the use of corn is being strongly advocated, and steps should be immediately taken to place Nebraska to the front. As to the expense it would be a mere trifle in comparison to the substantial advantages to be derived. By setting forth the many advantages of corn in the manner indicated as economical, healthy and nutritious, it would be repeated throughout the land, by an omnipresent press, which reaches rich and poor alike, and I am sanguine enough to believe that it will in time become as popular as the potato, especially in Ireland where that crop has become so precarious.

As far back as 1862 when representing certain interests in the great world's fair of that year in London, I had an American store. Corn meal and buckwheat were sent over to me, by which I entertained some of my friends, who expressed themselves delighted and ate heartily. By those who partook, corn had been considered as only fit for cattle, and buckwheat for fattening pheasants, and such is it considered to-day, lacking the necessary education. Tea, potatoes and tobacco have found a home in every household and why not corn? I would therefore urge upon you the expediency of immediate consideration in this matter.

C. S. DAWSON."

THE PRIMARIES.

The primaries were held Saturday as per previous announcement. From reports thus far, throughout the county, we learn that the party representation was good and delegates were chosen in a quiet and orderly manner.

It appeared that the democrats had all forsaken this city, and accordingly the republicans felt disposed to assume absolute control and carry on an election, purely in accord with republican ideas. The result was that representative men were chosen, delegates well acquainted with the candidates that will appear before the convention, and men upon whom the republicans of Cass county may safely rely, to vote for the nomination of a ticket upon which the members of the party can unite. THE HERALD feels confident that if the campaign throughout be conducted with the same degree of concern, and party loyalty as characterized the primary that the entire ticket will be triumphantly elected. The delegates from this city and as far as we have been able to learn elsewhere, are as follows:
