

A Canine Treadmill.
"Churn dog" stories are always in order. A city man who used to live on a farm, as so many city men did when they were boys, sends us this: "At home on the farm we had a number of cows. So many that churning was too heavy a task for even the men folk, so Mr. L. rigged up a dog churn, an inclined wheel, a sort of canine treadmill. It became the duty of Ponto, a large white mastiff, to tread that monotonous cycle, and notwithstanding the toothsome bit of meat that was fastened on a lath within four inches of his nose, he was not at all proud of his position and responsibility. He made several attempts to shirk his task, and twice succeeded. He got to know when churning day came around as well as any one in the house.
"On the morning of that day he would loiter about the kitchen door until he was fed, and as soon as he heard the note of preparation—the bringing of the cream jugs, preparing the churn, etc.—he would put for the woods and would not be seen again until night. The day of churning was changed, and next morning a more crestfallen and astonished dog was never seen when he was collared and harnessed to the beam which set the dash in motion; he looked positively foolish. He did his work, but with lowered head, and in cognation evidently.
"On another occasion he tried another dodge. When they were about to put him on the wheel he ran up to his mistress, holding up one paw, affecting to be lame. She thought much of the dog, and was inclined to let him off that day. The next instant he was seen charging over a high fence after a neighbor's cat. 'Well,' said the old lady, 'if he can go after a cat like that he is able to churn.' And he did, and never tried to shirk his work again."—Forest and Stream.

Finely Bred Horses Are Nervous.
Finely bred, intelligent horses are often very nervous. They are quick to notice, quick to take alarm, quick to do what seems to them, in moments of sudden terror, necessary to escape from possible harm, from something they do not understand. That is what makes them shy, bolt and run away. We cannot tell what awful suggestions strange things offer to their minds. For aught we can tell, a sheet of white paper in the road may seem to the nervous horse a yawning chasm; the open front of a baby carriage, the jaws of a dragon ready to devour him, and a man on a bicycle some terrifying sort of a flying devil without wings. But we find that the moment he becomes familiar with those things, or any other that frighten him, and knows what they are, he grows indifferent to them.

Therefore, when your horse shies at anything make him acquainted with it, let him smell it, touch it with his sensitive upper lip and look closely at it. Remember, too, that you must familiarize both sides of him with the dreaded object. If he only examines it with the near nostril and eye he will be very likely to scare at it when it appears on his off side. So, then, rattle your paper, beat your brass drum, flutter your umbrella, run your baby carriage and your bicycle, fire your pistol and rattle your tinware on both sides of him and all around him until he comes to regard the noise simply as a nuisance and material objects only as trivial things liable to get hurt if they are in his way. He may not learn all that in one lesson, but continue the lesson, and you will cure all his nervousness.—Exchange.

The Word "Cash."
The word "cash" is understood to be derived from the Italian "cassa," the chest where Italian merchants kept their money, as do at the present time the Spaniards in their "caja," the Portuguese in their "caixa" and the French in their "caisse." The application of the word "cash" to money is English, it not having a corresponding term in any other European language. "Cash" having been so inconsiderably adopted instead of "cassa" (chest), entries to the cash book (it should be chest book) are made in American and English counting houses in this unmeaning way "Cash Dr." and "Cash Cr.," whereas the chest, and not the money, is debtor to what is put into it and creditor for what is taken out.

Great mischief has too often arisen, as is well known, in bankrupt trials from misuse of the word "cash," in which large deficiencies often appear, and which would not be the case if the word chest were used, as it ought to be. Instead of the cash account in the ledger it should be the "chest" account.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Natural Ornaments and Playthings.
The seeds known as Nicker beans and Bonduc nuts, species of Guilandina, are often used for bracelets, necklets and rosaries, and are very ornamental when capped and set. Baskets and other fancy articles made of them are very common in most museums. There are two species, G. Bonducella, the seeds of which are of a gray leaden color or a slaty olive green; and G. Bonduc, which are pale yellow or orange colored. In the Malay Archipelago these seeds are used as counters and playthings by children in place of marbles, and on the Gambia in playing a game called warree-warree. In Bombay, strung upon red silk, they are worn by women as a charm, and also in Egypt by women and children as amulets against witchcraft and sorcery.—Chambers' Journal.

Why He Took Down the Fire Escape.
A local hotel-keeper gives a queer excuse for not having a fire escape from a bedroom in the second story. He says that he had one placed there a year ago, but the first two weeks three boarders skipped their bills by its means and then he had it taken out.—Springfield Republican.

It is said that Alexander Rankin, the Scotchman who succeeded John Brown as Highland servant to the queen, has obtained almost as marked an influence in the royal household as Brown possessed. He is the personal attendant of the queen on every journey.

Engine 243 and 187 came together at South Omaha yesterday morning yet a not great deal of damage was done, the pilot was torn off of engine 243. Strange to say there was a car in the train containing a man and horse and the car was made in to kindling wood and neither one hurt.

Our genial friend, H. C. McMaken, left at this office a couple of baskets of fruit, consisting of peaches, grapes and plums, that are as fine as grow in the county. Mr. McMaken took several premiums at the county fair this season and is recognized as one of our most prominent fruit growers.

Braving the World has always been a popular play at the Park theatre, and that it is still a strong attraction was vouched for by audience that saw the performance yesterday afternoon, and last night. The piece is one of the doubt sensational productions and is doubly attractive this season, because the company presenting it is good. Miss Kate Watson, in a vicarious, and hard working young comedienne, and carried her part in a highly satisfactory manner, she is a good singer and dancer, and puts a great deal of life and fun into her character. The escape from the rookery in the third act created the greatest enthusiasm—Indianapolis Journal. Don't fail to see this great play tonight, for it will please one and all.

Some of the most startling, interesting discoveries of the life and customs of buried Egypt are now being made through extensive excavations. These discoveries are exciting a great interest. Many discoveries are, however, being made in our country that are remarkable among which we may mention that of Haller's Pain Paralyzer which effects entire relief, and in many cases a complete cure of that terrible disease rheumatism, and which also relieves pain of all kinds. A Cure for Paralysis.
Frank Cornelius, of Purcell, Ind. Ter., says: "I induced Mr. Pinson, whose wife had paralysis in the face to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. To their great surprise before the bottle had all been used she was a great deal better. Her face had been drawn to one side; but the Pain Balm relieved all pain and soreness, and the mouth assumed its natural shape." It is also a certain cure for rheumatism lame back, sprains swellings and lameness. 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Frick & Co., Druggists.

Wonderful.
F. W. Sawyer, of Rochester, Wis., a prominent dealer in general merchandise, and who runs several peddling wagons, had one of his horses badly cut and burned with a tarant. The wound refused to heal. The horse became lame and stiff notwithstanding careful attention and the application of remedies. A friend handed Sawyer some of Haller's Barb Wire Liniment, the most wonderful thing ever saw to heal such wounds. He applied it only three times and the sore was completely healed. Equally good for all sore, cuts, bruises, and wounds. For sale by all druggists.
