stry costom, similar to that obrved in England, Scotland and the Juited States on St. Valentine's Day, the 14th of February, is in vogue in Rou-mania on the 1st of March. This is the day indicated in the state and church calendar as the official date for the beginning of spring.

The masculine portion of the popula-tion is not favored with valentines as in this country, but the daughter, friend, sweetheart or bride may be quite sure of receiving ber token of affectionate rememorance on that day. These little gifts are cailed martisoires, and are made of bronze, silver or some cheaper material in the shape of hearts, stars and medallions. These little amulets bear the date March 1, accompanied by that of the year, and any motto or inscription which may occur to the giver as appropriate.

The recipient of the martisoire wears it, held by a small chain, on her arm or hing around her neck until in her walks flow over sands of gold. Alas! the first abroad she sees a rose in bloom or hears the song of the nightingale. Then she takes it off and hangs it on the next green bush to which she comes as an offering to Mother Nature, for whom all Roumanians have a great love.

Whether these little medals are allowed to hang on the bushes and swing in the breezes all summer, or whether after a certain time they are stealthily gathered by a martiscire collector, to be melted for another season's use, is not stated by the German paper which tells of this pretty, if rather sentimental, cus-

A Two Rundred Dollar Speech.

A certain well known German phy sician of the south side was the victim of his own "previousness" the other day He had successfully treated a wealthy lady's daughter for diphtheria, and the lady was extremely grateful for it. When the child was thoroughly well mother and daughter appeared at the physician's office. The little girl shyly handed the physician a neat little knit purse, while the lady went on to say: "For having maved my child, doctor, I want to present you with this purse."

"But," said the physician, after an em-barrassing pause, "I have sent you a bill for $300."

The lady flushed, then said quietly "Let me have the purse, please."

She took two $100 bills out of it and returned it to him with the remark: "There are $300 in there now, so your bill is paid," and left the room. Now the doctor is carsing his clamsy tongue for the bad break it made. That little speech cost him $200.-St. Logis

Father and Son.

A fine young fellow was disinherited by his father, a well to do grazier and cattle dealer, for marrying a domestic servant in the village. The father not only cut him out of his will, but turned frim out of the house and dismissed him from his employment. The young man took service in the county police, and was shortly appointed to his own village. But in a year or two he inherited a sung fortune from a brother of his father's, with whom the latter had a deadly fend, and the old grazier was so put out at his son's good fortune that he cut his throat. Almost the last work the son had to do before leaving the police force to enjoy his legacy was to attend the inquest of his@father officially .- London Tit-Bits.

A Repulsive Custom. The Russians of the old school still preserve the ancient Slavonian custom which makes it binding upon every guest at a dinner party, on rising from table, to go and kiss the hand of his hostess, she kissing his forehead in return; and I have myself seen the soft white hand of one of the most beautiful women in St. Petersburg literally covered with streaks of eaup from half a dozen pairs of greasy mustaches in succession. - David Ker tu New York

This Pulley Weight Seventy Toos. A Willimantic lines mill has a pulley that is said to be the second largest one in the world. Its weight to seventy tons, and its diameter twenty-eight feet. Three belts pass about the pulley, one of which is 49; theres wide, and the two others are twenty-four inches. The wheel makes sixty revolutions a minute. Fish That Shoot Plies.

There is a curious fish of the Indian ocean, to which, although it has long been known to naturalists, attention as recently be n called on account of some new observations of its peculiarities. It pary sunfish, and seldom exceeds seven or eight inches in length.

It # furnished with a short shout or muzzle, which, as we shall see, serves very much the purpose of a sportsman's gun. It is foul of insects, and its method of capturing them has suggested its name of the archer.

Swimming close beneath the surface it watches the brilliant flies flitting above, and, having selected one to its fancy, suddenly thrusts its muzzle out, and with almost unerring marksmanship discharges several drops of water

Confused by the watery projectiles. and with its wings entangled and ren dered temporarily useless, the insect falls upon the surface of the sea, and is immediately seized by its voracious enemy The fish is said to be able to bring down a fly in this manner from a height of two or three feet.

Some of the inhabitants of Java keep these little fish in captivity for the sake of watching them practice their archery upon flies and ants suspended above them.-Youth's Companion.

During his days of youthful enthusiasm every man promises himself a career of perfect happiness-of stainless respectability-of matchless honor. We flatter ourselves that the world will reform itself for our sake. We anticipate a faultless partner in our future bride. and cheat ourselves with the expectation that the even current of destinies will self deception we are compelled to resign becomes a bitter trial to our fortifule. but, one after another, we see these cherished visions fade away-we inure ourselves to the degree of mediocrity which is our allotted portion-and finally learn to be contented with such scrape as the charity of fortune throws in our way .- New York Ledger.

Scallops in an Aquarium.

Nothing is prettier than to watch pectens in an aquarium. They have a fluttering motion and move up and down in the water. Provided with an aductor muscle of great power, they can rapidly open and close their valves and take in or throw out water As Mr. Hugh M. Smith writes, "The sight of a school of suallops moving in unison through the water is a very striking one." Fishermen know that the scallop moves, for it often happens that where there were scallops one day on a bank there are none to be found the next. Probably changes of position are made for food or temperature.-New York Times

A Victim of the Cours It is said that the late Father Damien attributed the leprosy which brought about his death to inoculation by flies which flew from leprous patients to a wound on his head. It must be remembered that though cases doubtless occur in which infectious diseases are conveyed by flies, these insects do an immense amount of useful service by the scavengering which they so assiduously perform.-Brooklyn Eagle.

A Bemarkable Egyptian Custom. The Egyptians had a very remarkable ordinance to prevent persons from borrowing imprudently. An Egyptian was not permitted to borrow without giving to his creditors in pledge the body of his father. It was deemed both an imploty and an infamy not to redeem so sacred a pledge. A person who died without discharging that duty was deprived of the customary honors paid to the dead .-Yankee Blade.

Slik Dye.

A favorits method with silk manufacturers of imparting a pale straw color to pieces of ailk is to steep them in a very weak solution of hydrochloric (muriatic) acid. This cannot be practiced with success by the honsewife, as the process is a somewhat delicate one.-New York
