

The NATIONAL HYMN AS REARRANGED FOR THE WORLD'S FAIR. SANTA CLAUS SOAP

My Country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing:
Land where our fathers
did;
Land where our Mothers
cried,
Over the wash-tub tied
Let freedom ring.
My native country thee—
Land of the noble, free—
Thy name I love;
I love thy tucks and frills
Both; what laundry bills
My soul with horror thrills:
When I think of thee,
Let music swell the breeze,
And blow through all the trees
Hail SANTA CLAUS:
Let tired mortals wake
And gladly try a cake,
Let all for cleanliness sake,
Join the applause.

Making Good Roads.

The movement which has been well begun in many parts of the country to reform the wagon roads, which have to a great extent fallen into a sad state of neglect, is likely to be forwarded by the action taken by several agricultural colleges, and particularly by Cornell university, in giving courses of instruction in roadmaking.

Very often bad roads exist because no one in their vicinity knows how to construct a road. The people often do the best they can, but roadmaking is a science in itself, belonging properly to the civil engineer's profession.

In Cornell university the professor of civil engineering, the professor of agriculture and the professor of horticulture have been directed to prepare a plan for putting the roads of the university property into the best possible condition; and when the road has been completed an inscription is to be put upon it, stating how much it cost, what materials were used, and what methods were employed in its construction.

In several agricultural colleges, courses of lectures are given by practical men upon roadmaking. Farmers' institutes are taking the matter up, and the people everywhere are learning that much better methods of roadmaking exist than the old one of heaping up dirt in the middle of the driveway, to be worked into ruts and washed into the ditches again in the course of a year.—Youth's Companion.

Gold Chain in a Lump of Coal. A curious find has been brought to light by Mrs. S. W. Culp. As she was breaking a lump of coal preparatory to putting it in the scuttle she discovered, as the lump fell apart, imbedded in a circular shape, a small gold chain about ten inches in length of antique and quaint workmanship. At first Mrs. Culp thought the chain had been dropped accidentally in the coal, but as she undertook to lift the chain up the idea of its having been recently dropped was at once made fallacious, for as the lump of coal broke it separated almost in the middle, and the circular position of the chain placed the two ends near to each other. As the lump separated the middle of the chain became loosened, while each end remained fastened to the coal.

This is a study for the students of archeology who love to puzzle their brains over the geological construction of the earth, from whose depths the curious is always cropping out. The lump of coal from which this chain was taken is supposed to come from the Taylorville or Pana mines, and it almost bushes one's breath with mystery when it is thought for how many long ages the earth has been forming strata after strata which hid the golden links from view. The chain was of eight carat gold and weighed eight pennyweights.—Morrisonville (Ill.) Times.

A Landlady's Bill.

In the house of a lady in the Kurfurststrasse, Berlin, an Englishman took a furnished room and agreed to pay thirty-three marks a month for it. At the end of that time he asked for the bill, when to his surprise he found the thirty-three marks had risen to eighty for his apartment. Among other peculiar items in the bill were: "For using the carpet, four marks, for use of knife and fork, four marks, for putting the room in order, ten marks, for use of a chair on the occasion of a visit from your brother, four marks." The lodger considered this reckoning preposterous, and refused to pay, so the lady detained his box, which contained a large sum of money. The Englishman has sought the aid of the law in revising the bill of the speculative hostess.—London News.

Two New Spoons.

The latest outbreak of the souvenir spoon mania is a "love spoon." The bowl is heart shaped and of bright gold, or, cynical suggestion, of gilt. The handle is a silver arrow, its barbed point piercing the center of the heart and its shaft entwined with forget-me-nots. The spoon is intended primarily for an engagement token, but it can be inflicted, in one dozen lots, on a bride, or used as a pledge of affection on any suitable provocation. Another new souvenir freak is the "old oaken bucket" spoon, a "souvenir of childhood." The bowl depicts the bottom of the well, with the bucket floating on the water. The chain runs up through the mouth of the well, at the shoulder of the spoon, and up the handle to an oak tree at the top.—New York Sun.

Shaved While Asleep.

The Bath (Me.) Times says a young man visiting that city takes the prize for the queerest somnambulist feat on record. He went to bed with the idea of arising early and shaving. In the night he found himself on the floor. The next morning he went to the looking glass and prepared to shave, when he discovered that his beard had been removed as clean and nice as a barber would have done it.

Thought They Were Friends.

A big leopard seal came up in the midst of a lot of bathers at Santa Barbara, Cal., causing a good deal of alarm at first, as some thought the creature a shark or sea serpent. Some of the boys barked like a seal and the visitor seemed for a time to think it was among friends of its own kind and kept coming closer, until finally, taking in the situation, it turned tail and fled out to sea again.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Sixth of November.

There are some peculiar coincidences in the family history of Uncle John Threlkeld, of the Bohon neighborhood. He will be eighty-seven years old on the 6th of November; his mother was born on the 6th of November and died on the 6th of November, and he had three sisters, all of whom were born on the 6th of November.—Harrodsburg (Ky.) Sayings.

Like Many Other Signs.

"Keep off the grass." Reads a sign on the court house grounds at Hillsdale. Just five spears of grass are visible by actual count.—Detroit News.

Making It Hot for a Deer.

An advertisement for a wife brought several answers to the advertiser, a young gentleman of Tarentum, Pa. Among them was one signed "Corra," of Springdale. The writer's sentiments and eulogography seemed to indicate a young lady of refinement, regular correspondence followed, and then the young man agreed to go to Springdale and meet his ideal. They met at the railroad station and started off together. Then a procession of 300 wags of the place followed the couple, and paraded the young Lothario by stepping in turn and inquiring about the health of the bewitching "Corra."

It should here be stated that "Corra" was persuaded by a smooth faced young man, arrayed in his mother's silvered, to be the victim of a practical joke, and deserting the guggling "Corra" he hurried to the train and started homeward. A telegraph operator had prepared for his reception in Tarentum by sending a telegram to the young man, and when Lothario arrived there the whole town had turned out in a body to make exasperating inquiries about the conquest of "Corra"—Yankee Blade.

"That Is Love."

In a small watering place in western Prussia a rich lady with her daughter, nineteen years old, hired a cottage for the whole-summer season.

But the two ladies had not been six weeks in the place when they suddenly departed. The reason for this abrupt ending of their pleasure trip was a love affair between the young lady and a spruce fisherman, which the mother crushed in the bud. With this, however, the story does not end.

The inhabitants of the place, fearing that some more young ladies might fall in love with the nice fisherman, which would consequently lead to more abrupt departures, resolved to prevent such occurrences in future.

They held a meeting and decided that the fisherman should be punished severely for his imprudence in allowing himself to be the object of love for young ladies. A committee took the culprit to an open place and flogged him so unmercifully that the poor fellow had to lie in bed for several days.—Boston Globe.

The Price of Coal.

A gentleman who has given much thought to the price of coal said to me: "The owners of anthracite coal hope that when householders return to town in October they will lay in their full supply of coal for the winter. Now, if householders do this, they will simply play into the hands of the coal barons and make the price of coal higher. The sensible thing to do is to purchase from hand to mouth instead of filling their cellars."

Saturn's Rings Disappear.

According to Professor George C. Comstock, of the Washburn observatory, Madison, Wis., the phenomenon of the disappearance of the rings of Saturn has just occurred. Once in fifteen years the earth in its motion about the sun passes through the plane of the rings of Saturn, so that they are turned edgewise toward the earth. The rings are so thin that they then disappear altogether from sight in an ordinary telescope, while in the more powerful ones the planet appears to have a fine needle thrust through it. The appearance of the rings at the times of disappearance and reappearance is of special interest to astronomers, since it furnishes information with regard to the nature of these appendages not otherwise attainable.—Philadelphia Ledger.

School Savings Banks in England.

There has been a large increase of the number of scholars in the schools of England since Sept. 1, when the free education act went into force. The managers of schools advised the parents of the scholars to put into savings banks for the benefit of their children the three pence per week that had previously been paid for the education of each child, and school savings banks were established to receive these deposits. This advice was followed by large numbers of parents in various parts of England, and the banks have already been of service. In the city of Manchester, for example, more than 5,000 new accounts have been opened in the first month. The small funds thus deposited will be useful to the children hereafter.—London Letter.

Cheap Chest Protectors.

At this season of the year so many people are caught unawares at a distance from their hearth and home and warm clothes that it is a good time to mention the great value of newspapers as chest protectors. Let the papers be firmly dried and then folded into several thicknesses and placed across the chest. If they are also wrapped in strips around the arms it will be found that they exert a beneficial influence.

The Thunderbolt and the Barbed Wire.

A wicked Connecticut thunderbolt got hold of a Tartar at the Cheney farm at North Haven a few days ago when it tackled a barbed wire fence that encircled a big lot belonging to Mr. Cheney. The bolt hit the fence near the house, split itself in two, and the divided bolt went entirely around the field in opposite directions at the same time. The wires jingled like a cotton spindle, but held their own pretty well, though the bolt yanked out of the ground eleven posts that carried the wires.—New York Sun.

A stout Indian woman whose weight is over 300 pounds, fell through a wooden sidewalk in Bath, Me. The injury to the walk so annoyed the street commissioner that he told the woman that hereafter she must walk in the middle of the street.

Killed a Deer with a Pocketknife.

One morning about three weeks ago George Phaup, of Chesterfield, Va., heard two hounds running a deer, but as this was no unusual occurrence in his neighborhood he paid no attention to it. Later in the day, while about to cross the Appomattox river bridge below his house, he was surprised to recognize the voices of the same two hounds he had heard in the morning, and this time they were baying something in a slash on the low grounds, which, on investigation, proved to be an enormous buck that had got hung in such a manner that despite his frantic efforts he could not release himself.

Mr. Phaup had no weapon other than a pocketknife, but he attacked the animal with that, and succeeded after a desperate struggle with the thoroughly enraged buck in cutting his throat. The final and most difficult task was getting his prize on the horse, but he soon accomplished this, and his humble servant had a piece of the venison for breakfast the next morning.—Cor.
