

The true months and stomachs of plants are not to be found in the roots, but in the green leaves; their true food is not sucked up from the soil, but is inhaled through tiny channels from the air: the mass of their material is carbon, as we can all see visibly to the naked eye when a log of wood is reduced to charcoal, and that carbon the leaves themselves drink in by a thousand small green mouths from the atmosphere around them.

But how about the juice, the sap, the qualities of the soil, the manure required, is the incredulous cry of other people. What is the use of the roots, and especially of the rootlets, if they are not the mouths and supply tubes of the plants? Well, I plainly perceive I can get "no forrader," like the farmer with his claret, till I've answered that question, provisionally at least; so I will say here at once, without further ado, that the plant requires drink as well as food, and the roots are the mouths that supply it with water.

They also suck up a few other things as well, which are necessary indeed, but far from forming the bulk of the nutriment. Many plants, however, don't need any roots at all, while none can get on without leaves as mouths and stomachs—that is to say, no true plant-like plants, for some parasite plants are practically to all intents and purposes animals. To put it briefly, every plant has one set of aerial mouths to suck a carbon, and many plants have another set of subterranean mouths as well, to suck up water and mineral constituents. —Cornhill Magazine.

This Dog Knew a Good Thing.
It would be quite impossible for any living being, it would seem, to be insensible to the charms of camp life. One morning when the Listener was in camp, a queer looking black dog of uncertain race, but broad between the eyes, like all intelligent dogs, suddenly popped into the place, evidently upon some journey around the lake. He looked about him in astonishment, and then sat down and looked again. Then he settled instantly down, in a sort of glad, grateful way, which was as much as to say, "This is exactly the sort of place that I've always been looking for!" Not another step did he stir on the journey.

He adopted the camp from that moment and everybody in it. Nobody knew where he came from or to whom he belonged. He was a total stranger to the people who lived on the farm not far away. He slept in front of the tent at night, and barked at any stranger who came that way, and answered amiably to the name of Liberty Moses. No doubt, when the camp broke up, he went back to his more civilized home, wherever it was, but as long as that charming spot remained in existence there was no other place for him. —Boston Transcript.

To Remind Him.
Little Pete is a good boy as well as a boy of a great deal of originality in his "notions," but he has the serious fault of being extremely forgetful.
One day, after having gone on an errand and forgotten what he was sent for, he exclaimed bitterly to his sister:
"Oh, dear! I wish I was a snake!"
"You wish you were a snake?" said his sister, horrified.
"Yes, and a great long one—as much as six feet long."
"Why, what for, Pete?"
"So I could tie knots in myself to make me remember things!"—Youth's Companion.

Three Roofs in a Century and a Half.
Morgan Mory, of Upper Saucon, Pa., has had his barn re-roofed with tin. The structure was built in 1753, when it was roofed with cedar. A number of years later pine shingles took the place of the cedar. It has been re-roofed only three times during its existence. The barn is still in a good state of preservation, and will outlast a few more roofs.—Exchange.

give well known work society. A picture, however, is printed in the October number of The New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar, entitled "Pretty girls learning to dance the minuet," which gives some clue to their identity.

Society here also is interested in the fact that each of the four Americans is to wear a dress similar to the one illustrated and marked No. 8 in the colored plates of the magazine, which has partly revealed their personality and set fashionable circles agog.

The young ladies have been practicing the minuet for eight months before venturing to ask the privilege, which has been granted, of dancing before Her Majesty.

The New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar is for sale by all newsdealers. It will also be sent, postage prepaid, for 25 cents per single copy. The subscription price is $3.00 per year.

Vivacious Mattie Vickers entertained an audience at the Grand last night that filled every chair and the balcony stairs. The bill was Miss Vickers' new domestic drama, "Edelweiss," and the approval of the audience was made manifest on numerous occasions. The greater part of the play is laid amid the mountains of Switzerland, and Miss Vickers takes the part of a peasant girl, who rescues and nurses back to life handsome Jack Dutton, whose life is attempted by his partner and supposed friend, Emile Schwartz. The rich brogue and the many amusing incidents give her ample opportunity to display the vivacity which bubbles so incessantly from her sunny nature. And of course there is singing and dancing there always is when Mattie Vickers is about. Chicago Times.

Miss Vickers will appear at the Waterman next Tuesday night.

A Sudden Death.
A vale of gloom was cast over the city at 12 o'clock today by the announcement that Mrs. Fannie Keller had quietly and unexpectedly breathed her last.

Mrs. Keller had been confined to her room for about two weeks with an attack of typhoid fever but her condition was not considered critical and the announcement of her death is a surprise to all. She died at the home of Dr. McCrea, at whose house she had been stopping for a few weeks.

The interment will take place Sunday at an hour yet to be decided upon.

"I'll do it."
"While I think of it, I'll go down and pay that little bill I owe George Vass. It should have been paid a year ago. I understand he's out collecting. I owe him for repairing and also for jewelry." "Yes, your little account with me must be paid by the 15th of October, 1891—must be paid in full to date. If not, you and I will have trouble."
GEO. W. VASS,
Fifth-st. Jeweler."

Grand Family Matinee.
The Golden troupe will give a "special matinee" to-morrow afternoon for ladies and children who cannot attend the night performance, presenting beautiful comedy play, "The Little Duchess," which is a play teaching a moral lesson to both young and old.

All school children will be admitted at the special price of 10 cents, and adults 25 cents. Reserved seats can be secured at J. P. Young's for matinee, without any advance in price.

Do not miss the K. of P. drill by the Golden band on Main street to-morrow at 11:15 a. m.

We have sold Ely's Cream Balm about three years, and have recommended its use in more than a hundred special cases of catarrh. The unanimous answer to our inquiries is, "It's the best remedy that I have ever used." Our experience is, that where parties continued its use, it never fails to cure.—J. H. Montgomery, & Co., Druggists, Decorah, Iowa.

When I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and have not had headache since. J. Sommers, Stephney, Conn.
