NOT THE RIGHT WOMAN.
 PATHETIC RESULT OF A WRITER'S BIT OF DETECTIVE WORK.

She had heard that all beggars were wealthy and she followed a woman who played an accordion, expecting to find a princely home—what she saw she spat all day in the dust and the wind on the street corner grinding dreary tunes out of a dilapidated old accordion that shrieked and groaned and wheezed but was never in the least musical.

"She owns a block of houses," I said to myself, "and has money in the bank.
 I shall not drop a penny in that old tin cup. It is wrong to encourage mendic-acy."

I was only repeating what had been said to me about street impostors. Now that I had a good chance to study one of these characters from the window of a hotel, I became interested. Yes, without doubt this woman was an impostor.
 Her rags of raiment were eloquent with that personal poverty which appeals so strongly to the sympathetic. Her head drooped over her recumbent figure. She sat on the curbstone and mechanically ground out her doleful music.

She was there at nightfall when I stepped out of the hotel, but she was preparing to leave.

"Aha, my lady," I said to myself,
 "there is a chance to follow you and see how much of your doleful plea is true.
 If you are an impostor I shall soon know it," and I skipped along in the shadow until I had traversed a long distance from my hotel, treading all the alleys and back streets in the city, it seemed to me.

NO DECEPTION ABOUT THIS.
 Then she climbed a pair of rickety stairs on the outside of a tumble down house. I still followed her and groped my way in the dark to a miserable room in the rear, where a chorus of little voices saluted her.

"Mamma, oh, mamma, were been good—were been jes as good as were could. Hasn't were, Johnny?" cried a wan faced little girl lying on the poor bed in the corner.

The door was left open and I slipped out of sight behind it, but I could both see and hear, and if I was discovered, why, I was looking for a mythical wash-lady who once lived in those rooms.
 That was all.

"Dot some pread an putter, mamma?" continued the child's voice, while a feeble wail from the bed added its note of supplication.

The woman had dropped her musical burden on the table and now she emptied her pocket.

"Dere's feeteen cents, 'n' all in pennies, Johnnie, run and get some hot sausage an' a loaf of bread. An' I'll boil some hot coffee against yer back."

Johnny could not run. He was a frightful little cripple, but he limped away with the pennies.

Then I came forward and made my bows errand known, and asked to see the sick child in the bed.

The woman looked at me suspiciously.
 "'Taint dip'thery," she said, "it's consumpshun, an' ye cannot take her to any hospital while I have breath in my body."

"Do you go out with that thing every day and leave these children here alone?"
 I asked.

A TALK WITH THE CHILDREN.
 "I ain't a regular," she whined, "the woman—she were a Bohemian—died and left me that takin' care of her.
 I end play it that well you couldn't tell betwixt and between us, and I give up washin, for this leasder and more lolly-like. I was allus that fond of music."
 "So am I, and if you don't mind I will come here sometimes and hear you play, instead of stopping on the street—no, no," as she seized up the instrument,
 "not tonight," and I slipped out, leaving my humble contribution on the table.

I heard the woman singing to her sick child before I had reached the foot of the stairs. At the corner I met crippled Johnny. He had a brown paper package of food.

"Sausages 'n' bread," he said, smacking his lips.

"But what is there for the sick baby?"
 I asked.

"Golly, yer ought to see her eat sassage? She jist snatches 'em."

"Johnny," I asked seriously, "has your mother a block of houses and a lot of money in the bank?"

"What yer givin us?" asked the boy, staring at me.

"I mean is—your mother poor?"

"Ain't she, tho', jist orful somptimes," and he limped away with the food, regarding me with wonder as he walked backward.

I have concluded that there must be some mistake about the princely wealth of this impoverished family, and that it must be the woman with the organette and not the woman with the accordion who owns houses and lands, and I shall make a sneak some day and follow her.
 Then if she is the nabob in disguise I will let you know.—Mrs. M. L. Rayne in Detroit Free Press.

Cigars and Music Combined.
 While I stood at the showcase in a cigar store the other day a music box began playing. I looked all about the store to see where the melody came from, but the instrument was nowhere visible.

Finally the storekeeper, with a broad smile on his face, took a cigar box down from the row on a shelf and set it before me. As he opened the lid the playing ceased. I looked into the box and saw that the lower half of it was devoted to the music box.

"This is the novel way," said the dealer, "that a firm has chosen to introduce a new brand of cigars."—New York Herald.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS.

Persons desiring to vote must procure their ballots from a member of the election board.

They must then, without leaving the polling place, proceed to a compartment and prepare their ballots.

Make a cross mark (X) with ink in the right margin of the ballot opposite the name of each person for whom you wish to vote.

Do not make any mark on the ballot, save as above directed, or the ballot will not be counted.

If you spoil a ballot return it to a member of the election board and obtain from him a new ballot. Take this to a compartment and mark it properly.

Having marked the ballot, fold it so as to conceal the names and marks on the face, and to expose the names on the back.

Take it to the judge of election before leaving the enclosure, and see it deposited in the box.

Immediately leave the raffled enclosure.

If you wish to vote for any person whose name does not appear upon the ballot, write or insert his full name in the blank space on the ballot under the proper office you wish him to hold, and make a cross mark in the proper margin opposite the same.

Do not take any ballot from the polling place; you thereby forfeit the right to vote.

Wonderful.
 B. W. Sawyer of Rochester, Wis., a prominent dealer in general merchandise, and who runs several peddling wagons, had one of his horses badly cut and burned with a lariat. The wound refused to heal.
 The horse became lame and stiff notwithstanding careful attention and the application of remedies. A friend handed Sawyer some of Haller's Barb Wire Liniment, the most wonderful thing ever saw to heal such wounds. He applied it only three times and the sore was completely healed. Equally good for all sores, cuts, bruises, and wounds. For sale by all druggists
