CONSUMPTIVE
 The Original Eleven Ostriches.
 The longevity of the ostrich is a quality that commends it to capitalists. Arthur Douglass, a poor sheep farmer near Graham's Town, South Africa, was the pioneer ostrich farmer. He started in 1865 with eleven wild birds, chicks and finding that they could be raised in captivity, he started in to supply the market with domestic feathers. He has raised and sold thousands of chicks and stocked many of the surrounding ranches, has marketed thousands of dollars' worth of feathers, and still has the eleven original wild birds breeding and yielding good marketable feathers.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Happiest and Healthiest.
 After all, these are the happiest and healthiest persons who can labor moderately and sensibly at their duties day by day through the year, and who take with keen zest the pleasures of each season as they come to them in their own locality. Those who frantically chase happiness and pleasure from seashore to mountain and from continent to continent not infrequently bring back very little from the pursuit.—Providence Journal.
 Give a boy a fundamental knowledge of the principles of chemistry, and the processes and operations of the farm become at once wonderfully interesting to him.

OUTWITTING THE SMUGGLERS.
 How Uncle Sam's Customs Officers Capture Contraband Cigars.
 "The ways of smugglers are peculiar, but the ways of custom-house men are more than outdo them," remarked the purser of a Havana line steamship.
 "You know," he added reflectively, "the man who visits the West Indies and appreciates a fine cigar seldom comes back to this country without making an attempt to do some quiet smuggling. Of course the contraband articles are cigars. It may not be because he is mean, but the duty is stiff, and I can easily imagine with what pleasure a box of cigars can be passed around among a few friends with the recommendation, 'Boys, Uncle Sam never received any duty on these, and I can vouch for them.' I have seen there myself."
 "The shrewd deputy of Uncle Sam understands all this, and in addition the chances are he appreciates a good cigar as much as we do. Of course he makes a thorough search for dutiable goods on the arrival of all our ships, but there are, he thinks, many little ways in which he can be avoided, and travelers are not long in finding them out."
 "This does not worry our friend, the customs man, for his arrangements, although most simple, do not fall far short of perfection. He knows of the whereabouts of every large lot of cigars which leave Havana, and when we arrive here has, in all probability, a complete list of the number we have on board and the names of their owners."
 "You don't believe it. Well, nevertheless it is a fact. When smuggling was more of a business some years ago than it is now, a clever customs man developed a scheme by which the quantity of cigars smuggled in this port was reduced to a minimum.
 "An agent of the department was placed at Havana. He straightway made friends with the cigar dealers and manufacturers. This cost money, but the game was worth the candle. Whenever cigars were sold to an American or an Englishman, in nine cases out of ten the dealer delivered them, and politely insisted on doing so.
 "At the request of the buyer they would invariably be sent on board his steamship or to the hotel at which he was boarding. In this way the buyer's name and address were ascertained.
 "The crafty Cuban would then make a memorandum of this seemingly worthless information and send it to Uncle Sam's agent. Once in his possession, that man kept well posted in regard to the buyer's movements, and on the day he sailed for New York the amateur smuggler's name, description and the number of cigars which he had were cabled to the authorities here.
 "No fear of detection bothered the would-be smuggler, and on arrival he would give the customs man the coldest kind of a bluff until a few facts and figures were presented to him.
 "Do they give up the cigars? Oh, yes, but with mighty bad grace, and if all the customs men could be paralyzed for the wishing, I assure you Uncle Sam would not have an able-bodied man in the business. It is hard luck to have some other man smoke the weed which your money has paid for, but it happens more often than you imagine. The goods are always confiscated, and the amateur smugglers are lucky in getting out of a bad hole, for smuggling is an offense not to be trifled with.
 "Oh, yes, there are dozens of ways by which cigars could be smuggled in this port without detection; but the practice could not be carried on long, so the business has not grown. Sorry I can't give you some inside information, but it would be bad policy."
 Then the smart looking purser reflectively puffed a cigar which had never paid duty.—New York Sun.

Synods and Sinners.
 There's a Presbyterian minister in Detroit whose wife is very fond of this city as a place of residence. Some time ago the synod to which he belongs was discussing the advisability of sending him away on some important business occupying a year or so. It was suggested to him, and he went to his wife as all good husbands do.
 "My dear," he said to her cautiously, "what do you think of going away from Detroit?"
 "I don't think of it at all," she answered promptly. "Why did you ask?"
 "Well, the synod has asked me to go, and—"
 She went over to him softly, and, putting both hands on his head in a motherly way, she said solemnly:
 "My son, if synods entice thee, consent thou not."
 And he didn't.—Detroit Free Press.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS.
 Persons desiring to vote must procure their ballots from a member of the election board.
 They must then, without leaving the polling place, proceed to a compartment and prepare their ballots.
 Make a cross mark (X) with ink in the right margin of the ballot opposite the name of each person for whom you wish to vote.
 Do not make any mark on the ballot, save as above directed, or the ballot will not be counted.
 If you spoil a ballot return it to a member of the election board and obtain from him a new ballot. Take this to a compartment and mark it properly.
 Having marked the ballot, fold it so as to conceal the names and marks on the face, and to expose the names on the back.
 Take it to the judge of election before leaving the enclosure, and see it deposited in the box.
 Immediately leave the railed enclosure.
 If you wish to vote for any person whose name does not appear upon the ballot, write or insert his full name in the blank space on the ballot under the proper office you wish him to hold, and make a cross mark in the proper margin opposite the same.
 Do not take any ballot from the polling place; you thereby forfeit the right to vote.
