All available powers of persuasion being useless, the writer strolled into tile depot, where the News man was found wandering from one window to another, now into the ladies' waiting room, then back again, evidently wondering where the deuce to find some news for his charming little sheet. When we disclosed the fact to him that there was a couple on the platform whose names, residence, occupation and future intentions we desired to know he brightened up and put on a smile. "But," says he, "you are putting up a job on me."

"No."

"Yes, you are."

But on being assured that our intentions were good, faithful and true he bravely overcame that defect of character of which the News of last evening made meation, and sought the couple in question. But his heart would not beat with its wonted freedom until he was at a safe distance. This left matters in a very unsatisfactory state and the two defeated editors eagerly paced up and down the long platform, wondering what to do, when the Journal editor-Junior-came upon the scene and with his usual dignity and self-possession he accosted us with an abbreviated 'Hello!" We said "Hello!" By this time the K.C. train was nearing the depot and everybotly was hurrying to and fro, most of the people in the direction of the train, among whom were the objects of our anxiety.

How Cocoanuts Are Harvested.

The busy season on a cocoanut plantation is when the nuts ripen, which they seem to do all at once, and every hand is engaged in gathering and conveying them with carts to the drying ground, which is always in close proximity to the bungalow, so as to be as much apossible under the eye of the manager.

Here they are split in half, longitudinally, with an ax-a feat which is dexterously performed with one blow by the man appointed for this duty-and then spread out to dry. The intense heat of the sun rapidly shrivels the kernel, which curls up into a ball the size of your fist and detaches itself from the

Haw They Learned to Make Perfumes

What the French know about perframe making is not all the result of their own experience. The traditionary history of the art is that the Hebrews imparted the little they knew to their captors, the Egyptians, who in turn gave their formulas to the Greeks and Romans. The Moors then took a hand at improving these crude efforts, and when they invaded Europe left their art in Spain, whence it soon reached France. There it found its home and resting place, and today no nation can compete with France in the science and art of perfume making.-New York Evening

The Swamp Asgel.

The Swamp Angel was an 8 inch, 200pounder Parrott rifled gun, mounted by the Federal troops in a morass on Morris island, Charleston harbor, in 1863. On Aug. 22 and 23 the city of Charleston, five and a half miles distant, was shelled, the gun bursting at the thirty-sixth shot. After the war the Swamp Angel was sold for old metal and conveyed to Trenton, but having been identified, it was set up on a granite ped-estal at the corner of Perry and Clin-ton streets in that city.—Detroit Free
