THE GOLDEN ROD.

There's gold in the miser's chest Fast locked with a golden key: And a gold most care in a woman's hair And a goed in the sanda at sea; There's a tawny gold on the wheat's lithe length Where its breeze tossed billows not. But never a gold so full and free,

Ab, me-None, none like the guidenrod. There's gold on the maple's branch That gleams on an autumn lea, And a golden crown when the sun dies

While the shadows turn and nee; There's a wealth of gold in the pointed leaves Where the willow strows the sod, But no such feathery flagree,

Ah, me-None, none like the goldenrod. There's gold in the dawn's faint stroaks

That glint on the poplar tree,
There's gold in the mine, and in less of wine.
And gold on the humble bes.
But by the plumes of its knightly crest,
Where the wild wind rides roughshod,
There is never a gold so fair to see,
Ah me

None, none like the goldenrod. -Ernest McGaffey in Arkansaw Traveler.

Few Colds from Exposure.

I remember some curious facts of my own experience in the army in 1862 and 1863. I was not strong, and indeed was hardly fit to be in the army at all. And when I found myself exposed all day long to a steady rain, and at night to the outdoor air, with no fire, no change of clothing, no shelter but a canvas covering open at both ends, through which predicted must surely follow.

Why it did not follow was more of a (Mass.) Republican. mystery then, however, than it is now. For I was in a place where the art of man no longer excluded one of the prime principles of health. I breathed pure air because I could not help it. During a service of fifteen months, with severe exposures, but fresh air constantly, the same immunity from colds prevailed.

I remember, too, that when I came home from the army the blessing and the curse-at least one of the curses of civil life-came back together. I had comfortable rooms to est, breathe and colds, sore throats and related troubles on the other,-Rev. J. W. Quinby in lock up their attorney." Popular Science Monthly.

Worshiping Medicine Buttles.

An eminent lady missionary in Burmah recently gave Dr. A. J. Gordon an instructive but somewhat startling chapter from her experience. In one of her tours, she said, she came upon a village where cholera was raging. Having with her a quantity of a famous painkiller she went from house to house administering the remedy to the invalids and left a number of bottles to be used after she had gone. Returning to the village some months after, the missionary was met by the head man of the community, who cheered and delighted her by this intelligence: "Teacher, we have come over to your side. The medicine did us so much good that we have accepted your God."

Overjoyed at this news, she was conducted to the house of her informant, who, opening a room, showed her the painkiller bottles solemnly arranged in a row upon a shelf, and before them the whole company immediately prostrated themselves in worship.-Modern Church.

The story of a wonderful phenomenon comes from Rossville, nineteen miles west of Topeka, on the Union Pacific. For nineteen days, it is said, rain fell insantly on the orchard belonging to H. Klein, a prominent Rossville resident. This orchard is in the town and is bounded on the east by Mr. Klein's residence, on the other three sides by lines of fences The rain did not fall outside of Mr. Klein's premises, but for nineteen days there was no intermission in the fall, and it was only stopped by a cold snap. -Cor. # A Real Saving Farmer.

There is a farmer in Massachusetts who got his corn husked this fall without cost. Last spring he sowed a quan tity of red corn in his field among the yellow, and then incidentally mentioned the fact to some of the male pupils of a neighboring high school. At once they solicited the privilege of husking his corn and furnishing the refreshments besides, and he granted both. The young people had a good time and found enough red ears to satisfy them.-Philadelphia Ledger.
