Painting Lace.

Has the lace trimming of the dressing table assumed a questionable tinge? If washed, it will still have the "done over" look. Rip it off, thoroughly shape and brush, then press it a little to flatten. Now stretch it firmly upon a board or table, with several thicknesses of newspaper beneath it. Use a half inchbristle brush and put on paint made from dye freely. The paper will absorb the extra moisture. If dyed all one even tint it is very quick work. When the lace is nearly dry, press it with a hot iron over a padded board, as though it were embroidery.

Any of the thin laces, especially Villen-ciennes, can be painted in several dainty tints, thus bringing out the pattern effectively and in a very novel manner, care being used in selecting harmonious colors. The small tasseled fringe which comes in cotton for edging curtains and draperies can be treated in the same manner with the dyes. Any cotton or silk goods take and retain them easily, and they will not overrun the outlines of the design. But on linen they are a little apt to "spread."-Mrs. M. R. Ramsey in Good Housekeeping.

Family Jars.

"A pleasant smile and voice at the morning meal, a nest costume with a knot of becoming ribbon at the throat; a good dinner tastefully and promptly served, a song or an agreeable book in the evening after tea," and a lot of other stuff like the above appears quite regularly in the papers as advice to married women relative to retaining the love of their husbands. I call it "stuff" because I do not believe the results aimed at can be brought about in any such way. It is an attempt to teach a thing which cannot be taught. If the affection exista it is not going to be wiped out by delayed dinners, wash day attire, sick headaches and no music or books, and that is all there is to it, barring an occasional row which sets the household blood moving vigorously and with good results.-Cor. Detroit Free Press. mainly of recipes, interspersed here and

An Apology.

Once, in the house of commons, Mr. Labouchere referred to the conduct of some political opponent as being "unworthy of a pettifogging attorney," and, being called upon by the speaker to withdraw this unparliamentary expression, did so, declaring that he was glad of would naturally expect to find in bark. | having an opportunity of retracting it. Products of Mexico. Although the soil of Mexico and its tropical location are both favorable to agriculture, the lack of energy of its working population, combined with the lack of a sufficient water supply, neutralizes its reographical location, and the production of corn, beans, coffee, sugar and other kinds of products are barely sufficient to supply the home demand.-New York Times.

Reading the Future.

Apples are in much favor in Halloween tests. A maiden may find out at least the first letter of the name of her future husband by peeling a pippin, taking the paring by one end in her fingers, swinging it three times over her head and then letting it drop. The paring will surely fall in the shape of the initial of his name. - New York Herald.

Professor Kohlbrauch, who has been making some curious experiments with lightning, finds that the amount of electricity in an ordinary flash so small that has given it up.
