WEAK AND UNDEVELOPED

Conditions of the human system are so varied that to develop strength, enlarge all parts, and to increase the vitality of the system, is a task which only one medicine can accomplish. This is the only one by which this may be accomplished. Increased flow of blood to any part, produced by the increased action of the heart, creates new tissue, tone and vigor by the same natural laws as the increased action of the heart. But this is not all. It is a medicine that has won fame and popularity on its merits and one that can always be depended upon. It is the only known remedy that will prevent croup. It is put up in 50 cent and $1 bottles.

Safe and Reliable.
"In buying a cough medicine for children," says H. A. Walker, a prominent druggist of Ogden, Utah, "never to be afraid to buy Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it and relief is always sure to follow. I particularly recommend Chamberlain's because I have found it to be safe and reliable. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. A Fatal Mistake.
Physicians make no more fatal mistake than when they inform patients that nervous heart troubles come from the stomach and are of little consequence. Dr. Franklin Miles, the noted Indiana specialist, has proven the contrary in his new book on "Heart Disease" which may be had free of F. G. Fricke & Co., who guarantee and recommend Dr. Miles' unequalled new Heart Cure, which has the largest sale of any heart remedy in the world. It cures nervous and organic heart disease, short breath, fluttering, pain or tenderness in the side, arm or shoulder, irregular pulse, fainting, smothering, dizziness, etc. His Restorative Nervine cures headache, fits, etc.

It Should be in Every House.
J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay St., Sharpsburg, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds that it cured his wife who was threatened with Pneumonia after an attack of "La Grippe" when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Cocksport, Pa., claims Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for Lung Trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. Free trial bottles at F. G. Fricke & Co's drugstore. Large bottle, 50c and $1.00.

A Mystery Explained.
The papers contain frequent notices of rich, pretty and educated girls eloping with negroes, tramps and coachmen. The well-known specialist, Dr. Franklin Miles, says all such girls are more or less hysterical, nervous, very impulsive, unbalanced; usually subject to headache, neuralgia, sleeplessness, immoderate crying or laughing. These show a weak, nervous system for which there is no remedy equal to Restorative Nervine. Trial bottles and a fine book, containing many marvelous cures, free at F. G. Fricke & Co's, who also sell and guarantee Dr. Miles' celebrated New Heart Cure, the finest of heart tonics. Cures fluttering, short breath, etc.

Cough Following the Grip.
Many persons, who have recovered from the grip, are now troubled with a persistent cough. Chamberlain's cough remedy will promptly loosen this cough and relieve the lungs, effecting a permanent cure in a very short time. 25 and 50 cent bottle for sale by F. G. Fricke & Co.

Startling Facts.
The American people are rapidly becoming a race of nervous wrecks and the following suggests, the best remedy: alphous Humpfling, of Butler, Penn., swears that when his son was speechless from St. Vitus Dance, Dr. Miles' great Restorative Nervine cured him. Mrs. J. L. Miller of Valparaiso, Ind., J. D. Taolner, of Logansport, Ind. each gained 20 pounds if an taking it. Mrs. H. A. Gardner, of Vasturl Ind, was cured of 40 to 50 convulsions easy and much acedach, dizziness, backach and nervous prostration by one bottle. Trial bottle and fine book of Nervous cures free at F. G. Fricke & Co., who recommends this unequalled remedy.

HE WAS HOODOOED.

How a Philadelphian's Wife Meantly Betrayed Him Unawares.

Last Thursday four gentlemen sat about a table in a certain hotel in this city, says the Philadelphia Times. The political discussion in which they were engaged was brought to an abrupt close by a remark from one of the party.

"Hello!" he said. "B— is drinking a lemonade. Why, B— hasn't the waiter made a mistake? Didn't you order whisky?"

Mr. B— slowly shook his head, took a final pull at his straws and then pushed aside the empty tumbler.

"It's all right," he said. "I asked for lemonade."

"Surely you have not given up whisky?"

"I've quit drinking, if that's what you mean," B— confessed, somewhat reluctantly.

Unparalleled astonishment was depicted on the faces of his three companions as they leaned forward.

"Well, why in time did you do that?" cried the first speaker. "What in the world has happened, B—? Is the world coming to an end, or are you doing it on a bet?"

"There is no bet about it."

"Some one been talking prohibition to you?"

"Nope."

"Signed the pledge?"

"Nope."

The man gave it up.

"Come," he said, "tell us all about it. Perhaps it will help Billy here."

For reply the abstainer reached into his waistcoat pocket and pulled out a small newspaper cutting. He passed it over to his three companions. It read:

Liquor Habit Cured!
Dr. S—'s preparation is infallible. Never fails. May be taken in coffee without tasting. Wives and mothers should try it on wayward husbands and sons. For sale by all druggists.

There was a moment's silence, and then B— whispered in gloomy tones: "I—I can't be sure, of course, but I'm afraid my wife is on to me. I found that paper on her dressing table this morning, and considering the amount of coffee when I get at every meal, I—guess I must be hoodooed. Anyway, I—bring me another lemonade, Jimmy, and see what the rest will have."

HE OBJECTED TO IT.

This Man Had His Own Ideas on the Subject of Safe-Hoisting.

He was an elderly gentleman with a Micauber-like appearance. He stood looking at a number of men engaged in hoisting a heavy safe into the fifth story of a large building on Chestnut street last Saturday afternoon, says the Philadelphia Press.

After gazing for some time at the tackle that was being arranged, he accosted the man who was directing the work and said:

"Will you let me speak to you a minute, young man?"

"In a few minutes, I'm busy now," replied the rigger.

"But it is important that I should speak to you at once," persisted the old fellow.

"Very well," exclaimed the other, impatiently. "Hold on, Dan. Now, then, what is it?"

"Do you think it is safe to attempt to lower that safe up your way?" inquired the "crank," hesitatingly.

"Certainly! I know my business," said that all very well, young man; but I'm a little bit older'n you and know more about this world'n you do."

"Yes; all right!" shouted the rigger. "Go ahead, Dan."

"But hold on, young man, I have a better way. If you will let me show you—"

"Stand back there, please."

"Yes. But I'm afraid you will let that thing drop an' hurt somebody."

"No danger."

"Now just wait. If you will just throw that rope over what you call an 'an' then bring it through the thing-umbob I think—"

"I think you are a d—d old crank!"

"What? Young man—"

"Stand back, old fossil!" shouted the rigger, "or we'll drop the ax-marvelous, as you would call it, on your head."

"You impudent young rascal! You should know better than to address a man old enough to be your father in that manner. Will you try my way?"

"No! That settles it, old stick-in-the-mud. Get out of the way?"

"Hum! Fiddlesticks! Young men these days know too much for their breeches anyhow. All right! All right! You folks had better git far back. That wild, impudent boy will let that thing drop as sure as guns are made of iron. If he would only try my way he might save life and labor. But I've warned him."

And he retired to the rear to await developments.

What His Cargo Was.

One of the best stories Joe Jefferson tells of his early barn, storming days, says the Albany Argus, was of the time when the company, under the management of Sol Smith, got stranded in a little Mississippi town, and didn't have enough money to reach the next stand where it was to play. Luckily it was in the summer time, and the river was full of flatboats plying to and fro with produce and live stock. It was a case of going the whole hog or none. So Sol Smith, who was an eloquent old actor, finally prevailed on the skipper, who was going down the river with a load of hogs, to give the actors free transportation. It may be imagined that the trip was not enjoyably spent in such unsavory company, but actors were not as particular in those days as they are now. One evening the flatboat passed a palatial steamer, the deck filled with elegantly dressed southern ladies and gentlemen. The captain hailed the skipper of the flatboat: "What boat is that?" "The Mary Ann Jenkins of Bunningsport." "And what kind of a cargo have you got on board?" "Oh, not much of a one—only hogs and actors." The roar of laughter that went up from the deck of that steambot at this announcement must have made the engineer think that his boiler had burst.

The Whistling Girl.

The whistling girl does not commonly come to a bad end. Quite as often as any other girl she learns to whistle a cradle song low and sweet and charming, to the young voter in the cradle. She is a girl of spirit, of independence of character, of dash and flavor; and as to lips, why, you must have some sort of presentable lips to whistle; thin ones will not. The whistling girl does not come to a bad end at all (if marriage is still considered a good occupation), except a cloud may be thrown upon her exuberant young life by this rascally proverb. Even if she walks the lonely road of life, she has this advantage, that she can whistle to keep her courage up. But in a larger sense, one that this practical age can understand, it is not true that the whistling girl comes to a bad end. Whistling pays. It has brought her money; it has blown her name about the listening world. Scarcely has a non-whistling woman been more famous. She has set aside the adage. She has done so much toward the emancipation of her sex from the prejudice created by an ill-natured proverb which never had root in fact. But has the whistling woman come to stay? Is it well for women to whistle? Are the majority of women likely to be whistlers? These are serious questions, not to be taken up in a light manner at the end of a grave paper. Will woman ever learn to throw a stone? There it is. The future is inscrutable. We only know that where-as they did not whistle with approval, now they do; the prejudice of generations gradually melts away. And woman's destiny is not linked with that of the hen, nor to be controlled by a proverb—perhaps not by anything.—Harper's Magazine.

Moonshine Whisky.

Whisky made by moonshiners seldom becomes a weak old, and very often it is drunk warm from the still, having the effect of broken glass on the palate. It is frequently adulterated, tobacco being added to make it bite and rattleweed to make it head. In the moonshine districts almost everybody drinks men and women, old and young—and the mountain boy on pleasure bent carries a quart bottle of the stuff, a package of snuff, and a six-shooter.
