The B. & M. has arranged to hereafter honor second class tickets in pullman cars. To through passengers and all who are accustomed to using pullman privileges the change effects a material reduction in cost of travel, and at the same time it puts the comfort of the pullman service within the reach of those who have not heretofore been able to enjoy them.

What is the reason the young republicans of this city don't get action on themselves and organize a young men's republican club? Every city in Nebraska has a club and there is no reason why Plattsmouth should not have one. Let some of the members of the old club get together, call a meeting and reorganize a club. Call a meeting some time this week at the council chamber. Plattsmouth has got the material that will make the strongest club in this part of the state.

THE EDITORS MEET.

Busy Session of the Press Association.

The Largest Attendance and the Most Interesting and Profitable Session Ever Held.

The twentieth annual meeting of the Nebraska Press association, which closed Friday evening, was pronounced by the veteran members the most largely attended and successful meeting ever held by the association.

The annual address, delivered by President F. G. Simmons, embodied many timely and pertinent suggestions.

J. D. Kleutsch, of the Lincoln Freie-Press, and Editor Marvin, of the Beatrice Democrat, delegates to the national association recently held at St. Paul, Minn., made their reports, each of which indicated that the association is in a prosperous condition.

The evening exercises, held in the W. C. T. U. Temple, were largely attended by the citizens of Fremont. Rev. Buss, of the Congregational church, delivered the address of welcome which was appropriately responded to by E. M. Correl, of the Hebron Journal.

A. L. Bixby, of the Columbus Sentinel, delivered a humorous poem which put the audience in a proper frame of mind to appreciate the practical and solid oration delivered by Editor Brown, of the Kearney Hub. The exercises were enlivened by the delivering of recitations and vocal solos by Miss Nellie McPherson and Mrs. Fred Nye respectively.

Friday morning the association met at 9 a. m. After the appointment of committees it was decided to arrange for an excursion to Duluth next summer, and the chair appointed as a committee, F. G. Simmons, E. M. Correl and S. C. Woodruff.

S. P. Mobley, of the Grand Island (Ind.) introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Nebraska Press Association is hereby in favor of having Nebraska make such an exhibit at the world's fair as will fitly set forth before the world her advantages and natural resources, and that we will at all times render all reasonable assistance in promoting said exhibit, and that we will favor such financial assistance by the state as will be shown to be necessary to enable Nebraska to make a creditable showing alongside of her sister states in this great exposition.

Resolved, That we request the ready print and house-supplying Nebraska papers to maintain a special department devoted to promotion of the interests of the Nebraska exhibit, in which all Nebraska citizens should be and no doubt will be interested.

Upon a motion to adopt the resolution a heated discussion was engendered, two or three reformers(?) favoring the striking out of that portion referring to the financial assistance but it was finally adopted by a large majority.

F. O. Edgcomb, of the Falls City Journal, read an able paper upon "Business" methods.

At this juncture Grand Island and Columbus each extended the association invitations to hold the next meeting in its town. Columbus secured the plum by a vote of 27 to 30.

S. P. Mobley, of the Grand Island Independent, read a well prepared paper upon "Independent Journalism."

The time from 1.30 to 3.30 was devoted to a drive about the city visiting the many places of interest, for which the promising little city of Fremont is noted, notably among which were the Fremont twine manufactory, foundry, bucket manufactory and the normal school. At the latter institution the visitors were accorded a hearty welcome by President Clemmons, who with his estimable wife entertained them handsomely. This school is an institution of which Fremont feels justly proud. It has been under the management of President Clemmons but three years and has already attained a membership of over 400.

At 3.30 the association re-convened Geo. P. Marvin, of the Beatrice Democrat, read a very interesting and highly creditable paper upon "Local News" after which the election of officers for the ensuing year was given attention resulting in the re-election of F. G. Simmons, of the Seward Report, president; C. M. Hubner, Nebraska City News, first vice president, and Ross Hammond, of the Fremont Tribune, secretary.

The business of the association having been completed, the entertainment for the evening was placed in the hand of the reception committee. Under their direction the generous citizens of Fremont provided a banquet which was largely attended.

Your correspondent thinks this account of the meeting would be incomplete without reference to the hospitality and generosity exhibited by the citizens of Fremont in providing entertainment for the guests. No expense or pains were spared to render their visit enjoyable and profitable.

SPECIAL MARKET LETTER.

W. G. Press & Co., Bankers & Commission Merchants, Nos. 2 and 4 Sherman Street, Chicago, in their last special market letter say: The most important influence now affecting the value of wheat and which promises to afford a substantial support to the market during the remaining months of the crop year is the urgent demand for the spot grain at prices relatively higher than current quotations for deferred futures. While the liberal stocks at leading primary markets have not been materially reduced, the movement from first hands in a large portion of the winter wheat section has been so light that millers having exhausted their reserves are compelled to purchase at points of accumulation or cease grinding. The gradual increase in the demand from this source, with the continued investment buying of occasional speculators, on all moderate reactions, have caused a marked change in sentiment and prevented serious breaks when there was apparently but little substantial support. The export demand continues excellent and the needs of Europe sufficient to assure its continuance. The Liverpool Corn Trade News has raised its estimate of the probable demands to be made on America, 34,000,000 bushels, and its estimate of Europe's weekly requirements from 7,000,000 bushels to 7,680,000 bushels, indicating that the consumption has been greater than expected and that their stocks are smaller than the heavy imports suggested. The weather has again become an important factor and as spring approaches will exert a marked influence in determining prices, and the volume of outside business. The growing crop cannot sustain any additional damage without causing quite general complaints and a revival of speculative interest. Numerous reports of damage by freezing and thawing have been recently received, and unless another fall of snow occurs the discouraging reports will doubtless multiply. The Chilean difficulty has been responsible for several speculative furries of short duration but presented no special features to permanently affect the supply and demand relations.

The corn market after having ruled dull and uninteresting for many weeks shows signs of renewed activity, and promises to afford speculators a field for profitable operations. The magnitude of the last crop induced free short selling of the May future without regard to the possibility of there being insufficient grain available on delivery day with which to fill outstanding contracts, resulting in an oversold market. We have several times in our special, and daily market letters called attention to the fact that the demand for cash corn held prices so near the May future that cribbing at country stations was unprofitable, and it is to this condition of affairs that the revival of interests is due: for with no corn in country grain dealers' hands to supply the unusual consumptive and export demand at a season when farmers will be busily engaged with their spring work, where the grain is to come from to meet these requirements and fill the surplus in the future, may prove difficult of solution. That the requirements will tax the transportation facilities of our railways is evidenced by the unprecedented export demand which thus far during the crop year had required 125,000,000 bushels more than for the corresponding period last year. The increased foreign demand is most gratifying because it is occasioned in a great measure by the better knowledge of the value of American corn as a cheap bread grain and will doubtless result in creating a market for a larger proportion of our surplus in the future.

Oats, while influenced by the action of corn and wheat, maintain a fair degree of independence and more readily respond to advances in the other cereals than to the declines. This is due to the steady consumptive demand, although the movement eastward is still hampered by inadequate transportation facilities, and the fact that the invisible supply is known to be less than it was a year ago.

Provisions have shown great independence, being influenced but little by the fluctuations in wheat and have found friends in strong local operators besides the packers, who, having liberal stocks of manufactured product are interested in maintaining remunerative prices. The packing returns show a marked decrease in the number of hogs slaughtered and contribute to the feeling of confidence and strength exhibited.
