The Fremont Tribune has this to say about the proposed state league to be organized at Lincoln March 1st. "A meeting will be held at Lincoln March 1st for the purpose of organizing a state league, which it is intended shall vie with the presidential election in excitement during the feverish summer and autumn of the coming year. Hastings, Grand Island, Fremont, Lincoln. Kearney, Plattsmouth, Beatrice and Nebraska City are the sprightly young cities that are expected to fight for the pennant. Fremont will be "in it," and pretty close up to the front too. This city has the best ball park of any offthe cities named and by judicious management a team can be supported here in good shape. Meanwhile the fans are agog with 000 in five years.

A Traveling Umbrella.

An umbrella which was evidently intended for the Wandering Jew, made its appearance at McAdam Junction. N. B, the other day, having arrived by express from Hali fax, enroute to Quebec. This umbrella is old and battered and travel stained and during the past three mouths it has traveled thousands of m'les in search of an owner. It was first sent out from the United States Express Company in St. Louis and first traveled south. After visiting nearly all of the southern and western states the umbrella flitted over into Canada, took a trip on the Canadian Pacific to Van Couver then crossed the Hong Kong and returned over the ocean and the continent to St. John, N. B. From St John the much traveled umbrella was sent to Halifax from which place it was forwarded via McAdams Juntion to Quebec to take the steamer for Liverpool. It is completely covered with tags, labels and wrapping twine, attached by the different express companies .- Argonaut.

The Noss Family. The Herald of Suffolk, Virginia, has this to say about the Noss family which will appear at the opera house Thursday, February 25th. The celebrated Noss family gave one of the finest entertainments that has ever been in Suffolk. Their musical novelties were immense and elicited great applause throughout the entire performance. Each member is a thorough musi cian, and each performs upon a number of instruments, which shows careful musical training. It crashing into the other, wrecking is hard to say what part of the performance was enjoyed the most for demolishing one car and scattering all of it was good. The musical absurdity, "A Quick Match," brought down the house in one uproarious applause. It was a first class entertainment, and those who failed to see it missed a great treat.

A Russian's Prophecy of War.

A Russian veteran having been asked by an English tourist at Warsaw if he thought there would be war replied: "My dear sir, do you suppose that Grand Dukes Alexis and Vladimir have gone to France at this time of famine, when they can be so little spared, without a purpose? Do you suppose that M. de Giers went there for pleasure? Do you know, sir, that we have our entire available force in the vicinity of the German and Austrian frontiers? We have 500,000 men, including 92,000 cavalry, posted on our western frontiers. Petersburg we have 50,000 men, in Moscow 50,000. The Caucasus and central Asia, including Siberia, have only 200,000 men between them. Besides, we have no recruits on our western frontier, only men who have served at least a year with the colors. Do you think that all these precautions have been taken for no purpose whatever? We have a strong fleet in the Black sea, and 100,000 men ready for embarkation the moment a favorable opportunity presents itself; and when we do declare war do not think we shall make it with rosewater. We have about half a million of Cossacks. These Cossneks we will let loose upon the Germans. They will burn and kill everything that comes in their way. The land that they will have passed over will be black and desolate. Not a tree, not a house will be left standing, not a blade of grass; not a child shall survive to tell the tale."

Only the Lady Did Not Buy, but Would Call Again.

It was in a millinery store on Sixth avenue, says M. Quad in the N. Y. World. There were hundreds of hats and bonnets in plain sight, but as she stood and looked around she gently inquired: "Do you keep millinery here?" The young lady who advanced could have deceived her by replying that it was a cooper-shop or a hardware store, but she didn't, and I gave her a long credit mark for her hon-esty. She placed a chair before the glass, motioned her caller to sit down, and began to open the case. The first hat brought out had a palegreen complexion and was from Paris -hadn't gotten over being seasick yet. No go. The lady tried it on and stuck up her nose at herself in the

The second hat was a coy and bashful affair and for five minutes the lady tried to make herself think it carried her back to her girlhood. No use.

The third hat was as black as a pirate's heart, with a good deal of open work lying around loose on top. Perfect circulation of winter atmosphere guaranteed. Didn't charge for the hat, but for the open work. Price for the open work, $35. No sale. "I want something tasty," said the lady as she looked at her teeth in the glass. The girl brought a big blue felt, which would have made a nice cover for a salt barrel. Ruled off the track at once. "Haven't you something to match my complexion?" She had. She brought out a hat trimmed with leather-colored ribbons. It was a perfect match, but the lady was only seven minute: deciding that her husband wouldn't like her in that hat. Then she tried a little black hat on her left car. Seemed at first to have hit the mark, but soon grew despond-

Next came a hat which covered both ears. Thought for awhile that it might do, but finely concluded that it would

Sat down with a sigh. Arranged her bangs and examined a pimple on her chin, and then tried on a sort of Continental cocked hat. Instinctively winked at herself in the glass. Too

Then she tried on something sedate and dignified-something very becoming to the mother of seven children. As she hadn't but five she went back on the hat. At the fourteenth hat the lady looked hopeful. At the seventeeth she had seemingly lost all hope. At the twenty-fifth she chirked up a little, but after laying aside the twenty-ninth she donned her own, examined her eves and teeth and the end of her nose in the glass, and went out with the remark that she'd call again.

"What was her object?" I asked of the proprietor. "Nothing; women never have any object!" he quietly replied.

Grasshopper's Legs in His Eye.

Dr. Baldwin says: "One day a railroad engineer 'came into my office in great pain. He had a bandage ever his right eye. 'I am suffering frightfully, doctor,' he said, 'with my eye. There is something in it. I was running my engine at a high rate of speed, with my head out of the cab window, looking down the track to see that there was no obstruction. I passed through a lot of grasshoppers, and one of them struck me in the eye.' I examined the man's eye, and, sure enough, the legs of the hopper had penetrated the poor fellow's eye and were giving him great pain. The saw-like legs had almost completely filled up the eye. I placed him under the influence of ether and began the operation of extracting the grasshopper's legs. After a tedious job I succeeded in removing the impediment, and the man got well without his sight being affected." - Globe - Demo-

"There was a mistake in that last order that Sellers sent in from the road." said the proprietor, scowling at one of the clerks.

"You've no right to suppose anything of the sort!" exclaimed the proprietor. "He makes more mistakes than any man on the road.'

"He does?" asked the clerk. "Certainly he does. He's one of the most careless men I ever knew." "And I'm supposed to correct them?" nquired the clerk.

"Of course you are." "I'm supposed to be absolutely accurate?" The clerk was getting excited.

"What?"

"Certainly." "And know all about his business?" "You should detect his errors." "Well, why don't you pay me for it?"

The clerk dropped his pen in his excitement. "Look here!" he said. "You hold me responsible for his errors, and you pay him more for making them than you do me for correcting them. Good day!" He left without waiting to be discharged .- Chicago Tribune.
