Plattsmouth,

Whither We Are Drifting. Whither is the drama of our day drifting. Dollarward and downward some will say. Too much vulgar comedy. Too much kicking and too little talking; too much tinsel, and too little gold. But who's to blame? Frivolity made a hit, and frivolity reigns where pathos perished in the cold waves of public Farce flourishes indifference. where legitimate drama starves to death. Forms flit where talent languished. Lithe limbs cleave the air that elocutionery gestures struggled and died in while striving to mature art. The Lillian Russells and Pauline Halls and Fay Templetons have crowded the Charlotte Cushmans and Fannie Kembles off the stage. But the public seems to be pleased, hence the public alone is to blame.

But where will this craze end? The loudest applause follows the lines that contain a hidden meaning; the heartiest laugh comes after the double entendre; the most glasses are leveled at the shapliest forms, the highest kickers, the most bouquets. Surely the recipients of the public favors are not to be blamed for striving to win them-with legs and heels instead of hands and brains. They work, and work diligently, to touch the fickle fancies of people. If a broad joke brings the hands together, a broader one secures the foot accom paniment. If a scant costume brings roses; smilax and heliotrope a scantier one will yeild a jewel If a high kick will yeild an encore a higher one will raise the galleryand perhaps the roof.

The play producers, who string together wit and melody to fit the forms, the feet and the taste of the people they gather together-see the bent of the public and go it one better. A word here a gesture there, a suggestion yonder, spices the exhibition and guarantees a fortune, if not fame. They struggle with fun, pure and simple at first, but fun is a wily temper and they were led astray. The public willingly followed, however, and will continue to follow until something more novel offers. Pretty pictures, clean wit, trank and open folly are harmless, entertaining, and restful. The snake of suggestiveness is crawling across the stage, and will bask in the glare of the footlights. charmed with the light music which works the shapely automatons and keeps the singer in tune.-Kearney Hub.

THE HERALD has it on pretty good authority that Geo. B. Mann who has been connected with the Evening News ever since it was established, has sold out his interest in the paper to G. F. S. Burton who will have full control of the paper hereafter, and that the transfer has already been made.

Carl Carlson was instantly killed on the B. & M. near Nebraska City yesterday morning. He was in company with John Olson, section foreman, and was going down the track on a hand car, when a freight train approached. They stopped the car and attempted to remove it from the track, but the engine caught it, driving one of the handles through Carlson's head.

End of the Trouble.

WASHINGTON. D. C. Feb. 23.-The state department to-day made the following telegram public from Minister Ryan at Mexico: MEXICO, Feb. 10, 1892, via El Paso, Texas-Blaine, secretary, Washing ton: Minister for toreign affairs of Mexico makes ths following statement: Accordding to advices had by this (Mexican) government the bands of Catarino Garza, organized solely in the state of Texas, have been completely dispersed, thanks to the efficient pursuit of the same recently set on foot in said state by the United States forces. The Mexican railroad system inclusive even of lines crossing the northern frontier has ever enjoyed complete security, although upon two distinct occasion the bands referred to crossed over into Mexico, on the occassion remaining two days in constant movement and on the second occason only a few hours, due to pursuit kept up by forces of this country. The precautionary measures they instituted to prevent a fresh incursion into Mexico resulted in strengthening the sense of absolute safety and immunity from harm always enjoyed by Mexican railways. Such security continues unshaken and unaltered and sufficiently well grounded is the hope that in the future no danger will
