SING A SONG OF DEMOCRATS.

Sing a song of democrats,
 Mostly full of eye,
 Going down to Washington
 Feeling pretty fly.
 But when congress opened,
 What a lively muss!
 Every mother's son of them
 Began to kick and cuss.
 Cleveland in the nursery
 Acting very funny
 Hill in the pantry
 Eating bread and honey,
 Mills in the back yard
 Hanging out the clothes,
 Along came a "Crisp" breeze
 And nipped off his nose

AMERICAN TIN PLATE.

ELWOOD, Ind., Jan. 25—Some time ago I vouched for the richness of the tin mines near Rapid City, S. D. I said they occupied a section of Harney's Peak about twelve miles square, and that the scientists there assayed the ore and found it from 25 to 95 per cent. The article was printed 22 to 05 per cent, and mugwump journal in New York used up two columns in editorial showing that 25 and 95 per cent tin ore was ridiculous, a self-evident fact that any average man could see.

The fact that we had in the United States large sections of rock-bearing ore richer in tin than that of the mines of Malacca is what I said. Such fact is not doubted in Dakota. Yesterday I visited a tin factory in Elwood, Ind., that would be a joy to any American. It is situated in the gas belt, at the junction of Senator Calvin Brice's Lake Erie and western Railroad and President Roberts Pan Handle. This tin plate plant built up from the ground in this country by Welsh skill and money. Money to build this great factory is furnished from Wales and by Col. A. L. Conger, who has great plate glass works here, and W. B. Leeds, and other Pennsylvania magnates. The McKinley bill made this factory.

"Yes, the Demler Tin Plate Company of Demler, Pa., is making 1,000 boxes a week; the Britton Tin Plate Works in Cleveland are turning out 1,000 boxes a week; the work at Apollo, Ind., are turning on 800 boxes a week; Anderson, Ind. is making 500 boxes a week; Neidringhaus of St. Louis is turning out 1,000 boxes a week, and Somers of Brooklyn, N. Y., is turning out large quantities, I don't know how much."

"Now, you know this, Mr. Stanford, I said, eyeing the Welshman steadily. "You know that these quantities of bright tin are being made in this country. You know the New York Times denies it." I rode over and inspected the building yesterday with Superintendent E. Stanford of the Jersey Tin Plate Company of Britton Ferry, Wales. Mr. Stanford has been making bright tin for twenty five years in Wales. After showing me through three mammoth brick buildings covering several acres, I asked him if he could make the best bright tin in America as well in Wales.

"Certainly," he said. "I have made it for twenty-five years in Wales, and we can make it more profitably here, with the tariff as it is, than in Wales. That is what brought me here. We shall turn out 2,500 boxes of American tin-plate a day by the first of May."

"Is bright tin being made in other places in the United States?" I asked. I don't mean terne plate but bright tin.

"Yes, sir, I know it. And why not until American tin ore can be gotten out of the rocks in sufficient quantities we can do just what I did in Wales—use block tin from the straits of Malacca. That comes free of duty. The McKinley bill will bring many tin factories to this country in time. With natural gas here as fuel, we expect to make more money than in Wales."

"How about your iron?"
 "We shall roll that from bar iron in these Elwood mills." Elwood had about 1,000 people two years ago. To day, with her plate glass factories, natural gas and tin factory she has 5,000 people. —Eli Perkins.

DON'T FORGET IT.
 Don't forget that the McKinley bill still lives, and is hourly vindicating the wisdom of the protection system. The Tribune is perfectly aware that the campaign of 1891 is over, but also calculates to do a little missionary work occasionally. For instance, it rises to remark that one year and a half ago every free trade organ in America was a daily prognosticator that the iniquitous McKinley tariff law would destroy American commerce. What does the present situation show to us? That our foreign trade, for the year ending December 31, 1890 counting both imports and exports amounted to $1,417,172,421. For the year 1891 it was $1,808,818,928. Net gain for Uncle Sam of $381,646,507 in just twelve months.—Webster City Tribune.

Farm and Factory.
 Prosperity to the farmer means similar conditions to all who labor; but prosperity must first come from the farm; and through the farm to the factory. The farm stands at the threshold of production, and if the farmers' labors go unrewarded success cannot come to those that base their hopes upon what he produces. The vast interest represented in manufacturing, transportation, mining and the minor industries must look to agriculture as a basis for all calculations for the future. It then follows that the home market is the market worth considering; and the political party which aims to impair its consuming power should be denounced as a common enemy, publicly arrayed against prosperity.

All perishable products must find a market near home to be valuable. It is far easier to bring the factory with its employes to the vicinity of the farm than it is to transport the perishable product to the great centers of trade. The increase of farm property within a radius of ten or twenty miles of a large factory can be used to demonstrate this fact.

La Grippe.
 No healthy person need fear any dangerous consequences from an attack of la grippe if properly treated. It is much the same as a severe cold and requires precisely the same treatment. Remain quiet at home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed for a severe cold and a prompt and complete recovery is sure to follow. This remedy also counteracts any tendency of la grippe to result in pneumonia. Among the many thousands who have used it during the epidemics of the past two years we have yet to learn of a single case that has not recovered or that has resulted in pneumonia. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by F. G. Fricke & Co.

For Rent.

To the Public.
 The Y. L. R. R. A. have arranged with F. H. Thompson, of the Excelsior Library Bureau of Chicago, to add at least 300 volumes to their library each year for a term of five years, charging $6.25 for the whole term, $5 for four years, $3.75 for three years, $2.50 for two years, $1.50 for one year membership.

We bespeak a cordial reception for Mr. Thompson or his representative from every progressive or public spirited citizen and any person who is interested in education and mental culture. To start with our library will contain over 500 volumes of standard literature, comprising works of history, biography, science, religion education, poetry, fiction, references and miscellaneous. We will endeavor to satisfy your literary wants and trust as in the past you will favor us with your liberal patronage. If Y. L. R. R. A. By order com.

A Million Friends
 A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs, and colds.—If you never have used this great cough medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of the throat chest and lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottle free at F. G. Fricke & Co's drugstore. Large bottles 50c and $1.00.

FIGHTING WITH A BABOON.

A Man's Desperate Hand-to-hand Battle With a Monster Anthropoid.

I was working through my lands and had my gun with me, and the baboons were screaming on the top of the rocky precipice that overhangs my homestead. The dogs in the farmyard, on hearing the noise the baboons were making, rushed up to the mountain and were soon engaged in a deadly fight. I took up my gun and climbed up the mountain for the purpose of assisting the dogs and in the hope of saving them from being torn to pieces. When I reached the summit of the krantz a number of baboons fled. I fired and wounded one in the shoulder; he was immediately pursued and tackled by the only dog left, the others having been torn to pieces. The struggle for life or death was taking place between the wounded baboon and the dog on the very brink of a precipice. I had not another cartridge for my gun, so I put it down and picked up a couple of large stones and walked to within a few feet of the spot.

I was just in the act of hurling one of them at the baboon when suddenly a tremendous male baboon, the largest I have seen, came straight at me in a bold and defiant manner, his eyes gleaming with anger and his huge jaws working together as if in anticipation of the crunching that was in store for me. I just had time to hurl the stone in my now upraised hand at him, when he was upon me. He seized me by the leg first, and bit me with such violence that I thought every bone in my leg was smashed to atoms. I kicked with all my might. I tried to get hold of a stone. I attempted to seize him by the throat, dealt him several blows with the fist, but it was all useless; the strength of the enraged African mandril overpowered me completely.

After he had finished with my leg he raised himself on his hind legs, put his arm around me and seized hold of me on the chest with his powerful jaws. What could I do? Every now and then he let go his hold of my breast and snapped at my throat. I seized him by the throat with my right hand and clinched my fingers, but he would not yield his grasp for a single moment. Every time I moved he dragged me nearer to the edge of the precipice, and we were now within three feet of the brink and the ground sloping down to it. I knew that if for a moment I lost my footing down we should go into the chasm below. The wounded baboon and the dog, that were responsible for the awful predicament in which I now found myself, had just rolled over into the abyss. We had been at it nearly an hour, and, as the baboon showed no signs of releasing me, I felt I should not be able to hold out much longer, as I am an old man, considerably over 60.

At this stage I bethought myself of a penknife I had in my waistcoat pocket. If I could only get it out, I might ward him off by stabbing him in the face. I gradually got my left hand into my pocket and got the knife out, the brute scratching and tearing my face with his hands all the while. I got it to my mouth and held it there till I had an opportunity of opening it with my left hand. I then began stabbing and prodding him, but the knife was not large enough to do him much damage. I drew blood, however, the sight of which only made him more vicious still. By this time I had scarcely a vestige of clothing left, and my lacerated body bore tokens of what a South African baboon can do when he chooses to tackle and fight an unarmed man.

I was wondering how all this was going to end when one of the dogs that had been wounded in the fight, and had recovered sufficiently to make his way to where we were, seized the animal from behind. I felt the brute wished to get at the dog. He threw himself from me upon the dog; they had one rough-and-tumble, and then the baboon walked sullenly away along the ridge of the precipice, looking back from time to time as if undecided whether he should renew the attack. It was some time before I could recover sufficient strength to descend the mountain. I got home, however, and the dog, too, after an encounter such as I shall never forget, and the like of which I hope never to experience again.—Graf-Reint Advertiser.

No Place Like Home.
 He was writing an essay on the beauty of home life and with his pen held suspended in the air, soliloquized thusly:

"There is no place like home—"
 "Papa," called a boy voice at the door, "will you mend my sled?"
 "Go away, sir. Don't you know better than to disturb me when I am writing. Now that idea is gone and I must begin all over again. There is no place—"

It was a woman's voice this time.
 "Reginald, the gas is leaking like everything and you must see the company and have it stopped."
 "There is no place like home," began the wretched man again, just as Hannah, the girl, thrust her head in to ask:

"Did you order kindlin'?"
 Then he seized his pen and wrote fluently for full five minutes before he gave up his wild dream of fame.
 "There is no place like home—for discomfort, annoyances, cold, hunger and every kind of disturbance on the face of the earth, at the most inopportune and trying moment."—Detroit Free Press.

Last year America turned out 40,000,000 artificial teeth.
