THE TARIFF ISSUE IN A SUNBURST.

Voters who can give an hour to reading "The Tariff Riddle" will find this great question a riddle no longer. In this little work, just from the press, the author reviews a singularly-overlooked chapter of history, and by copious citations from the so-called tariff reformer of sixty years ago, presents the whole matter in a light new to the present generation, but wonderfully clear and instructive.

The revenue tariff men of 1832 had the full courage of their convictions, and "talked like Dutch uncles" to workingmen. As is shown in this little work the democratic tariff reformers then said in congress that the white labor of the North must "compete on equal terms" with slave labor; that the pay of labor in the North ought to be "precisely the same as the manufacturing labor of England and not a cent more;" that a lower tariff would compel Northern manufacturers to "reduce the extravagant wages of their labor;" that "but for the operation of the tariff laws in enhancing the price of Northern labor a day's labor in the cotton field would have commanded two days' of Northern manufacturing labor." It was the low tariff leader of the democratic house who pronounced the laboring population, "bleached or unbleached, a dangerous element in the body politic."

In "The Tariff Riddle" a second free trade assault on Northern protected labor, just before the war, is also put under review. The low tariff advocates then declared that men who worked with their hands were unfit to take part in politics or vote; that manual laborers were dangerous enemies of society and, if allowed the suffrage, "liberty could not long survive;" that the democratic party was committed to "a tariff on free trade principles;" that in the Southern Confederacy, which had slavery for its cornerstone and free trade embodied in its constitution, "capital and labor would work in beautiful harmony," because "capital would own all labor, which, from its nature so lowers the man as to make him unfit for society and self government."

In "The Tariff Riddle" the whole truth, will be found stated in the exact language of low tariff democrats. Ben. Franklin Pub. Co., 900 F street, Washington, D. C. Price, 25 cents.

SPRINGER AND HIS LAMB

Springer had a little lamb,
Its fleece was white as snow,
And every place that Springer went
The lamb was made to go.
It went with him to congress once,
Where lambs have little pull,
And there the boquet congressman
Went straightway for its wool.
"What makes the lamb fear Springer so?"
The people all did cry.
"Oh, Springer has a notion that
Its wool is much too high."
"And what does he propose to do?"
"Why, kill the lamb, and roam
In foreign lands to get the wool
We ought to raise at home."

BEFORE the McKinley tariff took effect American cotton was baled for the most part with imported cotton ties. There were only two or three mills making them in this country. Now there are eleven, and the 33,824,387 pounds of them, valued at $521,451, imported in the calendar year 1890, were reduced to 416,550 pounds, valued at $13,368, in the calendar year 1891. In the meantime the price of ties to the cotton growers has fallen 20 per cent. Perhaps it is because of these things that the free trade majority in the house propose to restore the American cotton tie trade to their friends, the foreign manufacturers, by placing them on the free list.—American Economist.

J. I. UNRUH should be re-elected to the school board by a handsome majority. Mr. Unruh has been secretary for the board the past year and he has kept the books in much better shape than they have ever been kept before. Any one, by looking at his books, can tell in a moment how much there is in each and every fund.

The farmers of this country should be warned by the conceded fact that free trade, or a tariff for revenue only, has ruined the agriculture of England.

SINCE Hill has been making speeches in the south he has completely "pulverized" that "good western democrat," Governor Boies of Iowa.

THE Cleveland faction considers Hill's proposed tour through the South as a "Southern outrage."

How would such a ticket as Boies and Dana strike the New York Sun?

I feel it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it more or less half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostum, 45 Warren Ave., Chicago Ill.

Some Foolish People allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They say "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists.

Startling Facts.
