

I am a Trav'ling man! I'll tell you of my plan.
In spite of all temptation
I pursue my old vocation,
I'm still a Trav'ling man! A jolly Fairbank man!

CHORUS:
For he himself has said it,
And it's greatly to his credit,
That he is a Trav'ling man! That he is a Fairbank man!

Two Kinds of Diamonds.

"Several years ago I chanced to stop at the same hotel in Dallas, where Alvin Joslin did," remarked an actor now filling an engagement in Chicago, "and I was astounded by his ostentatious parading of his diamonds. There were a number of ladies sitting upon the hotel veranda, and he seemed to take especial delight in dazzling their eyes with his jewels. After strutting past them several times he suddenly stopped, made a bow to the coterie, and said very brusquely: 'An, I see that you admire my diamonds. Permit me. This one is worth $2,000. This cost me $2,500. This cluster pin I value at $5,000. I have with me diamonds worth $30,000, and I own $100,000 worth which I have stored for safe keeping in a Chicago bank.'"

"None of the ladies fainted or fled or went into ecstasies over the display, and not a word was vouchsafed in reply. "That evening when Davis entered the hotel dining room he was seated at a table in the middle of the room and alone. A few minutes later a half dozen young men in full dress entered the dining room in a body and sat down at the same table. In the center of each immaculate shirt front shone a bit of plate glass as large as a marble, while brass rings bearing great settings of glass fairly loaded down the hands of the newcomers. Davis glanced about the table and his jaw dropped from sheer astonishment. Before he could recover himself, one of the young men arose and, walking around the table to Alvin's seat, said in a tone that was distinctly audible throughout the room: 'Ah, I see you admire my diamonds. Permit me. This one is worth eight cents a pound, retail. This cost me a nickel, just as it is. This one I value at a dime. I have with me seventy cents' worth of gems, and I own an interest in a glass works at Chicago besides.'"

"Before that speech was ended the bediamond Joslin either lost his appetite or finished his supper, for he hastily arose and left the room, followed by a lively chorus of ahs and ohs."—Chicago Mail.

He Wanted to Get In.
Jimmy Murphy was a newspaper office boy, and Jimmy was a terror. He did nothing in particular save smoke cigarettes and beg for theater tickets, and was known to all the reporters as "Murph." One night he wanted to go to a certain show very badly, but had not been successful in begging or stealing a ticket from the dramatic editor. He went up to the theater about 8 o'clock and stood around the gallery entrance in the hope that he could in some way gain admittance. The manager of the theater came along in a little while, and noticing him standing there, said, "Hello, Murph!" and went into the house.

Five minutes later "Murph" walked up to the doorkeeper at the main entrance and said, "Say, is de manager in?"

"What do you want to know for?" asked the guardian of the portal.

"Well, I wanter see him, see?"

"But what do you want to see him for?"

"I wanter get him ter pass me in."

"But he won't do it."

"I tink he will, see?"

"What makes you think that?"

"Well, he came along out dere an said, 'Hello, Murph,' an ennybody wos familiar enuff wid me to call me 'Murph,' will do a little favor like dat fer me."—Buffalo Express.

An Innocent Rural Lady.
Monroe is a flag station on the Botsford branch of the New Haven and Derby road. When the engineer of Conductor Beer's train saw the flag exposed a day or two ago he stopped his train. Only one person, an old lady, was to be seen, and the conductor stepped from the train to help her aboard. The old lady did not stir, and the conductor said, "Step on board, lady, so we can go on." Then her mouth opened, and she said: "Laws, I don't want to get aboard. I stopped you to send word to my folks that I was coming up tomorrow, and I want you to tell John to meet me at the station to care for my baggage."

Then she stopped, for the train was moving, the conductor having given the signal to start without waiting to learn where "John" and "my folks" lived, while the old lady looked as though she thought train officials were not very accommodating when they would not even carry a message for her.—Hartford Courant.

An Actor's Unknown Friend.
"Joe Jefferson," said an old theater goer, "had taken a lady to a restaurant, and when he put his hand in his pocket to pay his bill he didn't feel a penny. He explained his position to the cashier, but the cashier 'didn't know him.' The perspiration began to ooze when a gentleman stepped up, laid a twenty dollar bill on the desk, and said: 'I know you, sir; allow me to settle.' Jefferson was profuse in his thanks, and when near the door, said: 'You must give me your name and address, sir, in order that I may call around tomorrow and settle.' 'Never mind that,' said the stranger with a smile. 'That bill was a counterfeit and I got seventeen dollars in change.'"—St. Louis Chronicle.

"What do you study?" "Oh, everything—free and drawin, an cookin, an bacteriology, an music, an spectrum analysis, an sewin on buttons, an agricultural chemistry, an dish-washin, an everything."—Good News.

THE HOUSEHOLD IDOL

By Marie Bernard, author of "The Rector of St. Luke's." Translated by Elsie L. Lathrop. 1 vol 12mo, 2 Nos., $1.25, paper 75c. This, the latest novel of Marie Bernard, author of "The Rector of St. Luke's" is a charming story of life among the highest circles of society, the scene being laid at the present time. The heroine "The Household Idol" is the artist and belle of all the artists and belles of the time. One of the principle personages is a celebrated artist and the book contains graphic descriptions of studio life. The interest is fully sustained throughout the entire story, the characters being drawn with singular clearness and fidelity.
